HOW THE CITY WOULD GROW BY CONSOLIDATION

Rough sketch shows the new City of Victoria proposed by municipal experts in report for Chamber of Commerce. City would take in all Oak Bay and Esquimal, all View Royal district and the southern part of Saanich, approximately out to 5-mile circle from Victoria City Hall. Top arc indicates new boundary.

Mica Creek Talks Set Here July 4

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Lesage said today he will confer in Victoria July 4 with Premier Bennett of British Columbia on planned Canada-United States talks on control of waters flowing across the international boundary.

Canada and the U.S. announced May 23 that control of these waters is to be examined by the two governments for the first time in 46 years. Main object of the study is to find a solution to apparent problems which have arisen in development of the St. John River in New Brunswick, the Columbia in British Columbia and the Yukon River.

Mr. Lesage said May 23 he planned a full discussion with Premier Bennett June 5. Federal officials said Thursday the meeting would be held June 25, but Mr. Lesage stated today the conference has been postponed until July 4.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia confirmed here Thursday night he will meet Resources Minister Lesage in Victoria July 4 for preliminary discussions concerning development of a $247,000,000 hydro-electric project in Mica Creek on the Columbia River.

Asked in an interview to comment on a statement in Ottawa by Gen. A. G. N. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the international joint commission, that engineers have deemed such a project feasible, Premier Bennett said:

"There has never been any doubt about the feasibility of this dam. The Social Credit government of B.C. has always been in favor of the Mica Creek dam. We've said all along that it was feasible."

After a political speech here Thursday night, the premier told a reporter he has made no definite plans as yet concerning construction of a power station at Mica Creek, 150 miles north of Revelstoke. The talks with Mr. Lesage would be a preliminary nature.

Asked if the B.C. government planned to carry out the project or if it would be left to private enterprise, Mr. Bennett said it would be done by "whoever can do it best."

"If it hadn't been for the interference from Ottawa, we in B.C. would already have the dam under construction."

Ducsharm Hanged

SUDBURY (CP)—Convicted killer Robert Bruce Ducsharm died on the gallows early today, 18 months after a school teacher's bullet-riddled body was found stuffed under a woodpile.

Without emotion, but hesitantly, he walked 20 feet to the gallows on the second floor of Sudbury district jail. A six-man coroner's jury witnessed the hanging.

RCMP Corporal Appointed to Safety Committee

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today announced that Cpl. M. R. Godfrey of RCMP headquarters, Victoria, has been appointed a member of the B.C. Highway Traffic Safety Committee.

He replaces Staff Sgt. Lock, who has retired from service. Other members of the committee, which was set up in August, 1955, are George Lindsay, superintendent of motor vehicles, and J. H. Harding, traffic manager of the department of highways.

$500,000 Hail Loss

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Hailstones as big as marbles chewed up a newly-planted tobacco crop in nearby Innerkip township Thursday, causing an estimated $500,000 damage within 15 minutes.

Conscription 'Unrealistic'—Sinclair

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fisheries Minister James Sinclair said in an interview here Thursday that conscription is unrealistic now.

Mr. Sinclair said defence problems have changed so radically that he is even opposed to national registration.

The fisheries minister said advice being given by Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds at the convention of the Canadian Legion here is the point of view of the professional soldier only.

"I would rather see compulsory mathematics and sciences for our 16-year-olds than any other form of compulsory service."

RIGHT TO LIFE WON BY GWAUN-CAE-GURWEN

GWAUN-CAE-GURWEN, Wales (AP)—The National Coal Board decided today that Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen should live.

The board, which runs the nationalized mines, made the decision after three weeks of watching 279 Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen men dig coal in a test to determine whether the mines should stay open or be closed forever, bringing death to this Welsh hamlet of 1,065 miners.

What they saw convinced them Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen's record—249 strikes in nine years—was not as bad as it looked and that it should be given a second chance.

The people of Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen took the news in a holiday mood.

"It is as if we had placed our last penny on the Derby and won," roared a delighted miner. "The valley will breathe again."

Subway service was "100 per cent on schedule" this morning for the city's 4,500,000 riders from Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens. During yesterday's strike chaos ruled under record 96.1-degree heat.

Legion in Stormy Debate On French Language Issue

VANCOUVER (CP)—A four-page supplement in French will be published each month for the next two years in the 40-page Legionary, official organ of the Canadian Legion.

Decision to continue the French insert in the veterans' magazine, with one of the largest circulations in Canada, came after a stormy debate today at the 16th convention of the Legion's Dominion command. The first French insert appeared in the Legionary four months ago.

Before a resolution from the Quebec command was approved, statements of "very offensive suggestions" and "contrary to the constitution" were heard from the floor. Some of the delegates indicated the Quebec motion was an attempt by the Quebec command to seize control of the Legionary, which in its first full year of 100 per cent circulation, accounted for $24,000 of the Legion's $32,000 overall surplus.

The stormy bilingual issue was introduced when Alex. Solomon of Montreal, said the Quebec command had thought originally that "some criticism should be sent to the Dominion command" over a 13-month lapse between the time the idea of a French edition first came up in 1954 and the first attempt to find how many wanted such an edition.

Earlier, in an interview, John Hunderd of Ottawa, editor of the Legionary since 1932, said delegates to the 15th convention in Toronto in 1954 proposed a full French edition for all Legion members requesting it.

Experts Envision New Victoria City Of 115,500 People

Full Amalgamation Urged for Area

Civic and business leaders of Victoria and its surrounding municipalities today are studying the most comprehensive report yet compiled on the subject of amalgamating them into one separate civic unit.

In effect, it lays down a preliminary blueprint for a new Victoria of 115,500 instead of four separate municipalities and their fringe areas.

The report, compiled by Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, was submitted to Victoria senior and junior chamber of commerce directors Thursday afternoon.

One of the most significant findings was that instead of a loosely knit metropolitan area, with a "super" body over the individual districts, they should all be joined in one compact city with single administration.

The proposed full union would include the city, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and southern Saanich, roughly in a five-mile circle from the city centre. The new city would be Canada's 13th largest in terms of population.

The report recommends that Langford and Colwood should be given local government and after these areas had raised their standards of municipal services to urban level, they, too, should be brought into the new city.

This would boost the population to 120,500.

SURVEY CHIEF

Compiler of amalgamation report was Dr. George Hougham, assistant director, Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, Toronto. He and assistant came here last Dec. 5, studied functions of all municipalities and municipal affairs branch of provincial government in matters pertaining to Greater Victoria. He took leading role in planning for Metropolitan Toronto.

GOVERNMENT OF MAYOR AND EIGHT ALDERMEN

It is further recommended that a planning control area be set up in conjunction with neighboring districts extending to the northern boundary of Saanich and as far west as Albert Head or Metchosin.

Government of the expanded city would be by a mayor and eight aldermen, but it would not be formed for a year after any decision to amalgamate was reached by member municipalities.

The first council would comprise of a mayor and four aldermen elected by Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and a combined Esquimalt-View Royal. Term of office would be two years.

Second and later councils would be elected at large.

The planning control board would have nine members.

Four would represent Victoria, two Central-Saanich and that part of Saanich excluded from the new union, two Langford and Colwood, and a chairman would be chosen at large. Capital Region Planning Board would be an advisory committee.

The plan recommends reduction of the number of other district control boards.

It calls for expansion of school district 61 to agree with the boundaries of the new city.

The report stressed that no very precise estimate on the effect of amalgamation on local taxes and the general financial situation could be conscientiously given.

When the compilers of the report carried out their survey of municipal records last year, only 1954 statistics were available. Any estimates would be vitally affected by conditions in individual municipalities at the time of possible union.

EFFECT ON LOCAL TAXES NOT GIVEN IN DETAIL

What economies would be effected by pooling of services are not known. Debentures might get more favorable interest rates. Civic manpower might be lessened. New and improved services might be promoted before union financing studies are conducted.

"Have not" areas such as View Royal would have to be brought to the same level of municipal service as the "haves"—another unknown cost.

The extent of provincial aid in the civic upheaval can only be guessed.

The planners suggest that "... in the short run, all municipal taxpayers cannot gain financially ... In the long run ... unification may open up avenues of future development ... of benefit to all or the vast majority."

However, the institute analysts, working from 1954 figures, set the required tax revenue for the new city at $2,425,000 annually. Aside from school costs, the 1954 assessment total would indicate a 17-mill rate would be required.

This compares with 23 mills in Victoria, 10 in Oak Bay, 8.8 in Saanich and 13 in Esquimalt. (Also 1954 figures.)

First opinion, therefore, based on cloudy estimates, indicate Victoria would pay less general taxes and the three sister municipalities more under amalgamation.

This may reflect the fact that under the present municipal structure citizens of some municipalities are able to take advantage of services now provided by another.

Main Points

Here are the main points in the 75-page Canadian Research Institute report:

1. Greater Victoria municipalities should amalgamate rather than join in a metropolitan federation.
2. The union should include Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and the urban section of Saanich south of Royal Oak.
3. Langford and Colwood should be incorporated as separate self-governing communities and be drawn into Victoria at a later date.
4. A planning area should be set up extending from North Saanich to Albert Head.
5. Government of Victoria should be by nine-man council.
6. Effect on taxes is uncertain, could help city, hurt others.
7. Province should be asked for added grants.
8. Decision should not be by referendum.
9. Province would be required to pass special legislation permitting the proposed union.

be in store for some municipal taxpayers in the Victoria region even without unification.

"Since school costs are already distributed on the same basis throughout most of the area, unification would have little, if any, effect on the mill rate for schools," according to the report.

However, under the new system of municipal grants-in-aid started last year, the total of individual grants now in effect would be sizeably reduced by amalgamation.

A municipality now receives $14 per capita for the first 3,500 of population, $9 per capita from 3,501 to 8,000, $6 from 8,001 to 50,000 and $4.25 per capita from 50,000 up.

Based on estimated 1955 population, Victoria would get $367,000 this year, Oak Bay $125,500, Saanich $24,500, Esquimalt $107,500 of a total of $648,000 to the municipalities.

If they were linked in one city with population of 115,000 the same grant scale would bring a grant of only $617,750, a loss of $231,000. Other municipal grants to education, health and social assistance would be unaffected.

The report points out that in a budget sure to be close to $10,000,000 the loss should not be a "governing consideration."

"If it were feasible to strike a balance in dollars and cents, a financial penalty of this magnitude would not be an exorbitant price to pay for the civic benefits which unification may be expected to bring."

SUGGEST SPECIAL AID FROM B.C. GOVERNMENT

The institute examiners suggest this is not an important point and in the capital region in particular a strong case can and should be made for the provincial government to provide special financial assistance to foster the setting up of development of unified cities.

In the event of unification it is recommended the province be asked for a Greater Victoria per capita grant and should also be prepared to assist financially in the launching of the new administration.

It is pointed out that when Metropolitan Toronto was brought into being, Ontario put up over $1,250,000 to defray expenses in the transition period, and larger unconditional per capita grants benefit the city in perpetuity.

SPECIAL GRANT

The often-heard claim that the province at this time makes no payment in lieu of taxes for provincial buildings in this area, is repeated in the report.

A special grant to defray costs of bringing undeveloped View Royal up to the standard of the other proposed components of the united area, would also be justified, the report states.

It also points out the city would have grounds for additional aid from the federal government in lieu of taxes on federal installations here at Esquimalt, Royal Roads and various other Dominion government buildings in Victoria and Saanich.

With regard to the problem of pooling of municipal liabilities and assets, the only fair way to settle the issue in the eyes of the institute examiners would be to lump them all together and start fresh.

The question is so complicated, and the responsibility for both so socially and geographically combined, "... the institute recommends generally against any adjustment of assets and liabilities between present municipalities entering the city."

NO REFERENDUM

The 75-page submission recommends against any final settling of the amalgamation question by referendum.

"If, however, the viewpoint of the Institute is accepted, the latter issue will not even arise. "Most problems of government have to be entrusted to representatives who are expected to study them in detail, Continued on Page 2

CROSSWORD PRIZE $275; T'WAS 'LOB' NOT 'MOB'

Once again Times' crossword puzzlers failed to send in a correct answer to last week's puzzle so this week's award to a winning subscriber jumps to $275.

The first clue down was one of the big stumbling blocks last week. The answer was "LOB" but most contestants came up with "MOB" and "Job."

The clue read: "Can certainly be difficult to control at times." This makes "Job" the answer since the clue specifies "at times." A mob, necessarily an unruly crowd is always difficult to control.

Complete answer and explanation to last week's puzzle and a new contest for this week are on Page 27 of today's Times.

sound out the views of their constituents and then hammer out the best form of remedial action.

"View questions are sufficiently straightforward... that they can be adequately resolved by popular vote... the points at issue are too complicated for constructive use to be made of the referendum technique."

UNION FORCED

Though the report was prepared for the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Institute points out that little can be done to implement its recommendations without the interest of civic officials and taxpayers of the district and full co-operation of the department of municipal affairs.

It adds that if unanimity cannot be reached at the local level, the province has the right to work openly for those changes which it believes would be most desirable. It points out that in the case of Metropolitan Toronto, the province stepped into the picture and forced the union.

FOUR APPROACHES

The Institute listed four alternative approaches to Victoria's metropolitan area problem—add to the number of existing intermunicipal boards; form a metropolitan federation (recently suggested by the department of municipal affairs) wherein each municipality would retain its own administration for local matters but would support an intermunicipal council for projects of mutual interest such as water, sewage, road and garbage services; remain as they are at present, or amalgamation.

Weaknesses to all the proposals other than full amalgamation are spelled out in detail. Also detailed is the full argument for complete union.

Complete union has been discussed here since 1911.

Exact delineation of the boundaries of the proposed new city will require further study and surveys according to the report. But rough recommendations start the boundary at a point on Cordova Bay and take it west just north of Royal Oak Avenue to Patricia Bay Highway then to West Saanich Road at a point north of Royal Oak community.

The line would go southwest to the swamp area near Ivor and Charlton Avenues, then southwest east of Burnside to View Royal.

UNDEVELOPED LAND

The area enclosed takes in all the heavily urbanized sections of Saanich and also encloses sufficient undeveloped land to allow for a likely pattern of urbanization to follow.

Objections to divided jurisdiction of an area which is geographically a tight unit are first that development of municipal services is hindered.

"Artificial partitioning" means that the area of industrial development, or the area of fine homes, enjoys the best tax rate, while escaping any responsibility of the tax load of the whole metropolitan area.

SPECIAL ACT

In Greater Victoria, the city is shown to suffer for its position as the trading centre for the district. The new Point Ellice bridge to be built by the city next year is given as a case in point. The city will pay but the bridge is a necessity to Esquimalt.

Saanich would be paying for her neighbors' convenience if the proposed east-west arterial Saanich highway ever is constructed. Similarly, heavy use

DUTCH DENY ROYAL RIFT

Juliana Divorce 'Just Silly Rumors'

AMSTERDAM (UP)—The Dutch government took the unprecedented step last night of denying rumors of a divorce between Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard because of the queen's trust in a faith healer.

And the faith healer, Miss Greet Hofmans, a 61-year-old spinster, told the United Press today she exercised no influence over the queen and that her sole mission in life was to dedicate people to Christ.

The government's official denial broke a strict government rule that no statements are made concerning the personal affairs of the royal family.

Dutch newspapers already had departed from tradition by reprinting the foreign rumors about the queen.

Both developments indicated that the reports of a rift between Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard had deeply shocked the nation.

A Dutch government spokesman said the government was issuing the denial "notwithstanding the silliness of these rumors" that the queen was contemplating a divorce.

The brief statement telephoned to correspondents here read: "A government spokesman emphatically denies any rumors which have been circulating in the foreign press relating to divorce proceedings having been planned or initiated."

The reports originated in the West German weekly news magazine der Spiegel and were reprinted throughout the world. They were not published in newspapers in Holland until yesterday, one day after the Dutch parliamentary elections.

The reports said the queen had gone to Miss Hofmans in hopes of restoring the sight of her half-blind daughter, Princess Marijke, nine and that Prince Bernhard had broken with the queen over the issue.

Tax Sleuths Pick Up Cool $89 Million

(From Times News Services)

Revenue Minister McCann has given the Commons a peek into the work of income tax sleuths who check up on false tax returns.

He said Thursday night that they collected $89,000,000 last year which otherwise would have been missed.

The money—extra taxes, interest and fines—was about three times the cost of administering his department's taxation division, estimated at $27,488,000 in the current fiscal year.

Dr. McCann made the statement after hearing a catalogue of opposition complaints about the way in which tax inspectors and assessors do their work.

The complaints were made as members reviewed the spending plans of his tax-collecting department.

Finally Dr. McCann stood up with a yellow-bound document. It was a confidential report of investigations made, he said. He would disclose no names. But he read a list of offences discovered, including falsification of business sales, inventories, expenses and donation receipts, and fictitious book-keeping records.

He mentioned a few of the extra amounts collected in taxes and interest: $29,000, $225,000, $411,000. He gave no indication of the number of such cases.

Not One Farmer Prosecuted

Many of the day's complaints were about the way tax inspectors deal with farmers.

"In this whole thing there was not a farmer who was prosecuted," Dr. McCann concluded.

Victor Quelch (SC-Adia) said that in dealing with farmers, some inspectors seem too anxious to collect more money and not anxious enough to help the farmer get his rights.

Many farmers had told him of being asked to come to the income tax office to explain the source of their income. By friendly chatting, the inspectors would lead a farmer to "put his foot into it" and perhaps commit "certain indiscretions" in conversation.

Guided by Court's Interpretation

Dr. McCann said tax-collectors are guided by the court's interpretation of the law.

The main interpretation used was that made in 1904 by a British justice who had said there could be no taxation of the gain when the owner of an investment sold and realized a greater price than he paid. But gains were taxable when made "in the operation of business in carrying out a scheme of profit-making."

The House finally approved the revenue department's spending plans for the year totalling $60,326,000—less $50,000—which had been originally budgeted on the possibility that the department might lose a major court case and have to pay the other party's court costs. It won the case instead, and Dr. McCann knocked off the $50,000.

Liberal Fernand Viau said Thursday the CCF party in Manitoba raises political funds by "operating one of the largest gambling joints in Manitoba."

Mr. Viau said in the Commons that it is the Commonwealth Recreation Society, which holds bingo games in his home city of St. Boniface.

He said fraternal societies and service clubs are allowed to operate bingo games possibly once a week or twice a month. But the CCF group ran bingo games 13 nights a month.

Attendance ran between 400 and 450 persons, paying 75 cents each. The money was not spent for social or fraternal work, as was done by other organizations operating bingo games, but was used "primarily for political organization in the province."

He replied to a speech Wednesday by Ross Thatcher (Ind.-Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) who said taxation of capital gains is being brought in through "the back door."

Mr. Thatcher said tax collectors are interpreting the law so as to improperly levy taxes on profits on real estate, stocks and mortgage dealings.

"We are getting sick and tired of having these Socialists parade around with halos over their heads," he said. The income from the bingo games would be far more than the $30,000 paid by the breweries to other parties.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday he doubts the forthcoming Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London will reach a firm conclusion on the question of diplomatic recognition of Red China.

He declined to make a definite commitment on behalf of his government when asked by John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert), to state the government's attitude on the recognition of Communist China.

Game of Catch With Live Bomb Sears Three Boys

DENVER (AP)—A game of catch with a live five-pound bomb, played intermittently during the last three months by two dozen Denver boys, ended Thursday in a blinding flash that burned three of them. The aerial bomb exploded after three older boys had poured out most of the powder and removed the detonating device.

Bingo Charge 'Vile Slander' Says CCFer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Provincial CCF leader Lloyd Stinson has described as a "vile" slander charges that the CCF was "operating one of the largest gambling joints in Manitoba."

The charge was made in the Commons Thursday by Fernand Viau, Liberal member of Parliament for St. Boniface. (See "In Parliament.")

Mr. Stinson said Thursday night the provincial CCF organization had no connection with the bingo games.

Mr. Viau's "Vile charges cannot be supported by the facts," he said. "The society is a separate organization that sponsors recreational activities of various kinds. It may have assisted some local candidates from time to time but it is in no way connected with our provincial organization."

The CCF leader said he was not a member of the society.

Raising Taxes Unsound Bennett Tells Douglas

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—A sound financial basis is a prime requisite of a provincial government and it can't be obtained by raising taxes, Premier Bennett of British Columbia said Thursday night in his first political address in Saskatchewan.

"We in British Columbia have an expanding economy," the premier said. "That's the only way to get revenue—not by raising taxes."

Mr. Bennett spoke to 800 persons in this "capital of northern Saskatchewan."

Mr. Bennett did not make election promises, but expounded for 50 minutes on what his government has accomplished in British Columbia.

"The same thing can be done in Saskatchewan with a Social Credit government," he said. In B.C., Mr. Bennett claimed, the Social Credit has in four years reduced the net provincial debt by $77,000,000; reduced taxes; given more aid to municipalities; improved social services and built more and better highways.

ON GROUND FLOOR

In a direct reference to Premier Douglas' recent announcement of plans for a $60,000,000 pulp mill in the Prince Albert area, Mr. Bennett said "if it's coming it's because a fellow from Vancouver (industrialist Robert Campbell) knows Saskatchewan is going to elect a Social Credit government and he wants to get in on the ground floor."

Manitoba Daily Times FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1956

Mr. Bennett also said his visit was not an "invasion from B.C." into the election campaign here but a return of a "courtesy to my fellow premier of Saskatchewan," who had visited B.C. during the 1952 election there.

Conscription?

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL GUY Simonds, a great Canadian soldier and ex-Chief of Staff, indicts the nation's defence policies as a failure in conception and a bungle in execution.

Speaking on the public platform, he urges the use of peacetime conscription to solve the problem of manpower needed by the armed services. Writing in Maclean's Magazine, he denounces the Federal Government's administration of those services as incompetent, distorted by political pressures and totally inadequate as a preparation for peace or war.

Many Canadians will agree with General Simonds that Canada should impose conscription, that a training period of two years or so would greatly benefit both the minds and bodies of our young men.

Canada boasts that it has generally made good its commitments to NATO but the other partners of the alliance impose conscription while we rely on the volunteer system. Whatever our contribution to the free world's defence may be, we are not allowing it to cause us any serious inconvenience.

But whatever the advantages of conscription might be, General Simonds must know that it is not practical politics at the moment. No political party is prepared to advocate it. Even General Peckles, VC, spokesman of the Conservative Party in military affairs, is opposed to conscription.

When virtually the whole of our Parliament takes this position, it seems evident that the nation would not accept conscription today. The nation may be wrong—we think it is wrong—but no Parliament and no government will disobey its will. If conscription is to be imposed, a long period of public education will be required. General Simonds evidently is trying, with his high prestige, to educate the public.

When he comes to examine the existing conditions in the defence services he considers problems that are immediately curable and, if he is right, should be cured without further delay.

As a retired soldier in possession of the most secret information, General Simonds feels compelled to write in generalities. It is difficult for the civilian to follow his exact meaning. The essentials of his indictment, however, are clear enough.

In the first place, he regards the central command of the armed services as top-heavy and as "not evolving sound and objective defence policies. Because of this cumbersome system of direction the responsible military chiefs of the three armed services are denied an opportunity to confront those responsible for political decisions with objective military advice. Civil servants can, by deliberate and unwarranted stalling, defeat the recommendations of the armed forces, even though those recommendations have been approved by the cabinet."

This is a soldier's restrained language but it contains the most serious ous accusations against the defence department and its responsible minister, Mr. Campney.

Secondly, General Simonds charges that the armed services often "embark on new projects without too searching a consideration of whether what is being researched, developed or constructed necessarily represents the most valuable contribution to defence in the longer term."

For example, he doubts the wisdom of Canada's huge investment in the development of the new CF-105 fighter plane when the future of war lies in guided missiles, and of the McGill Fence radar line when the more northern DEW line is nearing completion.

Thirdly, he makes the direct and startling charge that the "Canadian Chiefs of Staff Committee is 'packed' to protect the Government against the receipt of unpalatable advice, rather than present the military case objectively and fearlessly on its merits."

"The deputy minister of national defence, the permanent chairman, Chiefs of Staff, and the chairman of the Defence Research Board are all members of the Chiefs of Staff Committee, yet none of these has any definite responsibility either to Parliament or to the one-hand-or-for-the-end result as represented in the operational capability of each service."

Again: "As often as not the efforts of... intermediaries are directed toward 'dividing and conquering', to having their own views prevail, rather than promoting harmony between the three services. The result is that there is no co-ordinated effort to evolve a sound and comprehensive defence policy... but rather the acceptance of any concept that seems most nearly to justify measures predetermined by political expediency and avoid coming face to face with the issue of manpower planning."

"Little dodging expediences grow into vast incubuses and huge sums of money are committed on a 'defence policy' that has never been thought through in all its ramifications and consequences, and is no more than a ramshackle expensive patchwork. In a real crisis this whole machine would come to a grinding, shuddering halt."

Such an indictment from a soldier as distinguished as General Simonds calls for an answer from the Government. Are the taxpayers getting full value for their defence expenditures of about two billions a year? Or is the whole defence system a wasteful blotch, as General Simonds says?

To such questions it is very difficult to get an answer in Parliament. The technicalities of the military services, the need of secrecy in some areas and the Government's unwillingness to face trouble have left Parliament and public with little understanding of our actual situation.

The Government may have an answer to General Simonds' criticisms. If so, the public should be given the answer without delay.

The Final Class

STUDENTS OF THE 1955-56 class walked through the doors of the Normal School for the last time yesterday, attended their annual banquet last night, and an important era in British Columbia's education came to a close.

They are members of the last Normal School class. Future students will enroll in the College of Education and the new system will be inaugurated next September.

Much of the material the young men and young women of the last half century learned at Normals here and in Vancouver will survive, modified in form as it has been modified to meet the changing conditions of the day. The full course required of teachers will entail increasing preparation for their jobs and, generally, a greater emphasis on academic subjects. The program is aimed at the establishment of higher standards.

Yet it seems fitting, at this time, to acknowledge the debt British Columbia owes to those countless young people who have gone through Normal and, often with little more in the way of advanced education, have helped to teach, sometimes inspire, the children who have passed through their hands.

Their accomplishments have depended on their own personal abilities to a very great extent. Yet it is a matter of record that these abilities have been brought to flowering by the training they have received at Normal School.

Over the years, many of them came to the school at Mount Talmie as teenagers, fresh from High School, and often with the irresponsibility attributed to youth of their years. They have gone out to the classrooms of British Columbia to do a remarkably good job in most cases. And they have been prepared for that job largely by the influence of teachers under whom they studied a bare nine months.

As the last class leaves the Normal School, it is proper to express public thanks for the service given by those who have preceded it—and to the institution which equipped them for the work they have done.

May the new teacher training program go on to increased strength, with a full appreciation of the strength of its predecessor.

Small Item on the Credit Side

AGAINST THE TRADITIONAL adult inclination to see shiftlessness in youth of the day, place the report of Mr. John Garard, federal-provincial farm placement supervisor.

Mr. Garard has commented on the work done by students released from school to help Saanich berry farmers in an emergency harvest of the strawberry crop.

"The youngsters are doing a very good job and the growers have all reported they are more than pleased," he says. "The growers needed help badly and these students aren't letting them down."

The report is less spectacular than many accounts of teenage activities which make their way to print. It is useful, however, to emphasize the fact that all youth today doesn't wear foot-suits, or the female equivalent, and spend its time hanging around downtown corners to insult passers-by.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

I WAS reading a smashing article by the Reverend Doctor Norman Vincent Peale, inventor of Positive Thinking. Sorry, I mean Positive Thinking. There appears to be some difference between thinking and thought.

Not that one is the exact opposite of the other. Books on thinking just make lighter reading than books on thought. Books on thought can worry you. Books on positive thinking can soothe you, and hence their popularity. They are printed wonder-drugs.

The article is called "Your Attitude." Briefly, it says that "what life does to you is pretty well determined by the attitude you take." You must just accept what comes in a cheery, impersonal way. "The mature person imperturbably takes people and happenings as they come, and learns from them."

WHAT led Dr. Peale to this conclusion was a recent experience at a baseball game with his stepmother. It was a home game for the Dodgers, at Ebbetts Field in Brooklyn, and conditions were pretty rough. "Soon everything started coming down onto the field... spectators, paper containers, apples, balls, even metal objects." I don't know if people were actually throwing spectators, or if the spectators were just floating down under their own steam. Anyhow, Dr. Peale's stepmother was struck on the head by a heavy tin can, presumably full. She was badly wounded, and for a time was in a daze, but after medical attention she insisted on seeing the rest of the game and this attitude impressed Dr. Peale a lot.

I don't know if her attitude proved that life had not struck her with a heavy tin after all, or if it proved that it doesn't matter when you DO get struck with a heavy tin. There is a good deal of confusion here.

FOR example, Dr. Peale indicates that his stepmother had the right attitude, which we should all try to copy next time we are mixed up in blood sports and spectator sports, and yet he adds that he will watch ball games on TV only, from now on, which seems to say that he will take the wrong attitude from now on.

Also, he complains a good deal about the lack of interest in the ball park of officials after his stepmother got hit. A policeman left the scene at once. Officials callously told him they could do nothing, and that they were helpless in the face of rowdiness, and so on. He is also highly critical of the rowdies themselves. Now, an old negative thinker like myself would also be critical of the rowdies and the officials, but then I am not an apostle of a cheerful uncritical impersonal acceptance of people and things as they come. Nor am I anxious to learn from people and things as they come, having long ago learnt to run like hell when I see people and things coming... my opinion of people and things is about two miles below sea level.

BUT Dr. Peale, strictly speaking, should pluck up his heart in a more mature and positive way, and not go saying things about the officials and the rowdies, or even about a Brooklyn cop. Before he starts telling the reader to take people as they come, he should have a great big try at it himself. What's the use of accepting people cheerfully while writing articles about them, and then getting critical of people while they are throwing things at your stepmother? Maybe they were aiming at somebody else. For example... well, perhaps not.

ONE word more: the jargon-word "mature" is getting looser all the time. It has been bandied about so much, it has the blind staggers. The word has passed its own maturity and is now senile. The more I hear about what a mature person will do and think, the less am I prepared to take him as he comes. There is simply no pleasing the Mature Person any more. He is a most demanding creature, and demands contradictory things. And talk about confidence... the Mature Person's sureness sometimes seems even more of a bore than the cocksureness of youth. If there is really any difference between the two. For to tell you a secret, most of the people who talk about maturity sound terribly young to me. They sound as if they are playing House... playing at grown-ups. And in this game of Intellectual House, or House of the Personality, they sound as if they are making up the rules as they go along. "Hey, kids, listen, I know what... let's say the Mature Person must never be angry." "O boy, yeah, let's try that one, that'll be super."

COUNTRY SLICKER

A GRADE 9 boy of my acquaintance spent about fifteen minutes fixing his locks into a kind of hairy imitation of Hokusai's famous print, "The Great Wave Off Kanagawa." He pretends mere fashion forces him into this policy of ruining his locks, but a glance at his class-photo proves this talk of averageness to be misleading. In the matter of tidal waves along the foreshore of the skull, he is an extremist. His mother took one look at his latest and greatest blonde billow, the best part of half a foot from trow to crest, and she said "Heaven forgive you, boy, you look like a one-horse hood."

Power Commission Rates

At a regular meeting of the Cowichan Electrical Association it was the opinion of the members that they should register their disapproval of the unfair distribution of the recent rate increases made by the B.C. Power Commission.

Under the old rate a residential consumption of 2,500 kwh. would cost $28.71, under the new rate this same consumption will cost $40.32.

We feel that this terrific increase of $11.61, which is 33 per cent over and above previous rates, is outrageous. This percentage of increase varies with the amount of consumption both in residential and commercial rates, and while the smaller consumer will have an increase of a minimum of 11 per cent, some of the larger consumers will be hit as high as 50 per cent.

These larger users are the very people who had faith in the Power Commission and installed electrical equipment which cannot be removed or replaced without great expense. Yet these are the very people who are being penalized.

In the last few weeks we have been told by local Power Commission officials that due to the increased demands on the generation and distribution facilities, the B.C. Commission is faced with a large capital expenditure for expansion. We submit that if it were not for the new pulp mills and their respective demands there would be adequate power with existing facilities for some time.

Evidently the long term contracts with private industries are not paying their way though their yearly profits have amounted to millions of dollars, percentage-wise as high as 20 per cent on their capital investment. Instead of hitting the owners of the Power Commission with these added expansion costs, should we not revise or cancel any contract which is not profitable to the Commission?

It is a strange thing that the private citizen is unable to obtain the secret terms of these pulp mills and B.C. Electric (Victoria) contracts! Is it true that the B.C. Electric buys power wholesale from our company at 1/3 of a cent per kwh as against the system average to the private individual of 2.5 cents residential and 2.5 cents commercial per kilowatt hour?

It has always been our belief that the B.C. Power Commissioners were appointed to manage our utility to our advantage and for the protection of the public. In conclusion, we therefore ask the Commissioners to review the recent rate increases and to apply increases if justified in a sensible and equitable manner.

FRED B. WILSON,

President, Cowichan Electrical Contractors' Association, Duncan, B.C.

Rewards for a Labor of Love

Thank you for the two recent articles on art and Canadian culture.

My family and I came to Canada from England five years ago this month.

I fell in love with Canada, its people and its way of life, so much so that I had a very strong desire to paint the people and things I saw.

Three years ago I started to study art and I have worked hard during the past three years, spending every spare moment at the job of painting Canada and Canadians on canvas.

The results of my labor of love are a few hundred sketches, at least a dozen worth while oil paintings, a few water colors and about a dozen dry point etchings.

During the past few weeks I have sold one oil painting, one Conte crayon drawing, plus one etching—total $132, all purchased by Canadians and I am quite unknown as an artist.

In England I would never have had the price of a tube of paint, and so I take off my hat to Canada and give her my heart for she has given me the means to express my talent both materially and spiritually.

Both Sides of the Picture

IT IS good to know that the President's operation was a brilliant success, that his recovery should be complete within six weeks, and that his doctors agree that his illness need not bar him from a second term. Even so, there is no ducking the fact that the President and the country are again squarely faced with a familiar question whether a man in his condition should attempt to carry the crushing burden of the Presidency for four more years.

The question can only be intelligently decided by a frank and careful weighing of the medical factors, and of other, more intangible, but equally important factors as well.

The world's greatest medical authority on the President's disease, ileitis, is Dr. Burrill Crohn, who first diagnosed the disease as benign and operable in 1932—before that, the patient usually died. Since 1932 Dr. Crohn has treated some 700 cases of the disease.

Dr. Crohn agrees, on the basis of this experience, that the President should have recovered fully in six weeks. Moreover, Dr. Crohn points out that there is virtually no chance of malignancy developing, since the small intestine is almost immune to malignancy.

It is thus quite reasonable to hope that the President has many years of active and happy life ahead of him.

Minus Side

But there is a minus side to the medical picture as well. As Dr. Crohn points out, the President's operation, involving the elimination of several inches of intestine, is most distinctly a major operation. Although the heart is not directly involved, the President's heart attack and his age are unquestionably complicating factors. Finally, based on Dr. Crohn's experience, there is a 35 per cent chance of recurrence of ileitis.

There is, of course, a somewhat similar chance of recurrence of coronary thrombosis. In sum, like his heart attack, the President's operation has been no minor indisposition. Even after his recovery, Dr. Crohn and other doctors consulted agreed, a physically vigorous campaign by the President must be ruled out.

So much for the medical factors. The President's personal prestige is perhaps the most important of the intangible factors to be weighed.

In a speech some days ago, the President said: "Certainly the prestige of the United States since the last world war has never been as high as it is this day." The statement is open to dispute. But hardly anyone will dispute that the prestige of Dwight D. Eisenhower has never been higher, all over the world.

Almost single-handed, the President has removed the false face of the United States as an unstable and warlike power. This has been, perhaps, his single greatest service to his country. His second greatest service has been to restore a large measure of the national unity which was so sadly lacking only a few years ago.

If the President decides to withdraw, the irreplaceable national asset of his world prestige will be lost. A period of extreme political confusion will also be ushered in, in which the violent partisanship which the President has done so much to still will again be loudly heard.

Yet, as in the case of the medical picture, there is another side of the picture which must also be considered.

Ever since his heart attack, there has been a tendency among his subordinates to shield Mr. Eisenhower from the unpleasant responsibilities of his office. A case in point was the urgent message on the Middle Eastern crisis from British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden, which was apparently concealed from the President.

Over-Protected

Military leaders, appalled by the accelerating shift in the world power balance to the Communist bloc, complain that the President is so protected that they have not been able to make known to him the real case for a sharply stepped up defence effort.

Again, there is heavy pressure on the National Security Council to avoid troubling the President with split papers. The result has been largely to transform the NSC into a mechanism for reading the lowest common denominator of indecision.

Since the President's latest trouble, the tendency to over-protect him is sure to grow. Perhaps this is not too great a price to pay for his prestige abroad and his leadership at home. But it is silly to pretend that there is no price to pay; or to disregard the risks involved in a second term for a man of sixty-five who has had a coronary thrombosis and a major abdominal operation within less than eight months.

As before, the final decision will rest with the President himself. But it is not only legitimate, but right and needful, that the matter be fully and frankly debated by the country.

CONTINUING INTEREST

I have known drab, dull men who, after the age of forty, actually cease to be interested in, and indeed complain continually about, events, inventions and ideas with which they were unfamiliar during their own first youth. This habit—and it is little more than a mental habit—has a most stultifying effect. I admit, of course, that after the age of sixty-five the senses become a bit muffled and that it is an unfortunate affection to pretend to love and understand things which in fact one can no longer understand or love. But there will always remain certain sections of one's fading brain which really do respond spontaneously to modern ideas, and these sections should be kept bright and well nourished.

BASIS OF RELIGION

That men should go to war and fight to the death for the shades of religious interpretation is surely a denial of religion itself. The basic foundation of religion is humanity, the love of human men and women for their fellows. That to me is the essence of all faith.

—Sir Miles Thomas

The Old Order Changeth

DAN Moses crossed the last finish line yesterday, ending a race that was harder than any man should be expected to row.

When he was transferred back to Victoria from Ottawa by the RCMP, he was given six months to live. Dan extended his fight against leukemia to a year. He wasn't one to give up on the final stretch.

Stott

His death severs the frayed threads of the old James Bay Athletic Association rowing tradition he had carried and had seen die. Though there are men still living, and in robust health who rowed with him, against him and for him, his passing seems to mark irrevocably the close of an era.

Dan Moses had inherited the glory and splendor of the old JBAA. He knew its rowers and many of its personalities from the years of early triumphs. As a competitor he had helped to add lustre to its name—particularly with his double-sculls partner, Ray Ditchburn. He had stepped into the shoes of its outstanding coach, Dan O'Sullivan, and he had filled them well.

TWO OF A KIND

There was a certain similarity between the two. Both were oarsmen in their own rights. Both came to coaching with the respect of their contemporaries and of the younger men and boys they handled. Both were men of soft speech in conversation. Both could wield the whip over lazy crews and wield it in a way that brought results without resentment.

Dan Moses could and often did look back to the JBAA, when the ugly bulk of its club quarters rose in drab grey from piles where the CPR car wharf now stands. He could remember it on regatta days, when strings of pennants gave it a rakish gaiety, when men in white flannels, blazers and straw hats mingled with their picture-hatted ladies in the upper-lounge-rooms and when the smell of varnish, sweat and liniment rose with a strong language from changing rooms and boat racks below.

He could remember days under a brilliant sun, manoeuvring carefully through the flotsam of the Inner Harbor to start the long sweep to the Gorge, with Dan O'Sullivan shouting through his megaphone from the cockpit of the speedy coach boat, the Bluebird.

He must have looked back, in later years, on countless afternoons and Sundays when he stood in the same cockpit, striving alternately by persuasion and invective, to bring some cohesion into the crews under his charge. There would be recollections, too, of the cheerful days at the "new" clubhouse, now the Gorge, beer parlor, which the Bays acquired on property taken over from the Elks.

BREATH-CATCHING DAYS

There would be mental pictures of the Gorge, its banks crowded with holiday crowds watching the slim shells come up the narrow and hanging tensely forward as the craft, oars flashing, shot past the line below the bridge to the heavy cough of a shotgun marking each boat's finish.

There were, no doubt, later images of activities at the Roberts Street quarters, not quite so bright as the earlier ones as the club moved toward the sunset of its rowing days.

Through all this Dan Moses moved with a casual modesty, a wide smile for friends, and an ability to get the best out of the crews under him.

And there were more depressing pictures. They told of the passing of an age and the upsurge of youngsters with different ideas about rowing—youngsters who wanted to step into their boats, row, and then step out, ready to leave to someone else the chores of swabbing down the shells, working on them weekends and shouldering responsibility for the equipment.

That hurt Dan. It wasn't the attitude he had shared with competitors of his day, the attitude that had made the JBAA great in North Pacific rowing circles. It wasn't part of being a member of the Bays.

He watched the rowing section of the club fall apart through the heedlessness of a new generation and the disinterest which strikes all branches of athletics in cycles.

But if the rowing club perished, the name of Dan Moses continued as a reminder of its former strength. So it will remain—a name, also, to express high achievement in a fine sport and in the broader realm of sportsmanship.

A Changing Psychiatry

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation

In the early years of psychiatry doctors studied insane and neurotic persons; they described their symptoms, they tried to classify their troubles, they recognized the fact that nervous diseases are inherited, and they did what they could in practical ways to help their patients. As the great Dr. T. A. Ross, of England, once wrote me, he began as a general practitioner, and gradually, by studying his nervous patients and talking to them day after day, he learned to help them. He thought he was a much better psychiatrist for having started without any indoctrination with the dogmas of any school. Instead of telling people why they thought as they did or acted as they did, he kept asking them how they had been thinking and what was troubling them.

Dr. Alvarez

Then came Freud with a lot of theories, some of them queer and highly improbable, and some of them unprovable. He assumed that mental troubles are due to sexual conflicts in early childhood. Some of these ideas were so weird that even Freud's closest followers could not stomach them. If laymen were to wade through some of the books written by certain psychoanalysts, they would be surprised and disgusted. Some analysts tell me they cannot stand the mental antics of some of their fellows. They say the stuff their "lunatic fringe people" write has no relation to science. I know some analysts who became so disgusted with it all that they quit; others have told me they would love to quit but haven't the courage to make the break, or cannot afford to do it because of financial needs.

ANALYSTS SMALL GROUP

Although the analysts make up only a small group among psychiatrists, by hanging together and by writing in such a way as to catch the ear of the public, they have had an unduly large influence on psychiatry and on the thought of the world. Many psychiatrists of the old school who growl under their breath at the situation which they abhor, admit to me that they do not dare speak out for fear of being ganged up on and blacklisted in university departments and in psychiatric societies.

As Dr. Percival Bailey said at the recent big meeting of the Psychiatric Association, psychoanalysis is hardly a science. Many able psychiatrists have always felt that. Others have shown that the cult of psy-choanalysis resembles much more a religion than a science. It has its revered head of the church, and anyone who disagrees with him is excommunicated.

His name becomes anathema, and is never mentioned again. Dr. Bailey quoted the great brain surgeon, Dr. Harvey Cushing, who said, "The task of the psychiatrist is to get back into the asylums and laboratories which they have left behind them, and prove... that their concepts have scientific validity."

Under the surface, rebellious feelings have long been gathering, and at last they have come out. The more conservative and really scientific psychiatrists are now joining with the new physiologic or laboratory-research psychiatrists to build a new science of psychiatry.

At the recent meeting most vocal of the attack on the status quo was made by able Dr. Percival Bailey, of the University of Illinois. He objected to several things that he feels was wrong with modern psychiatry. He dislikes not only the doings of some analysts but also the doings of some old-fashioned psychiatrists. Thus, he has been appalled over those cases in which an ill-advised prefrontal lobotomy (a destructive operation on the front of the brain) leaves the victim a mental "mess."

What is bad today is that an operation which may be well worth doing in the case of a dangerous, hopelessly insane person is offered to a sane person who perhaps is suffering severe pain. In many such cases the performance of a lobotomy would probably be a tragedy.

Dr. Bailey wisely objected, also, to the use of a long series of electro-shock treatments in cases in which this treatment is not indicated and hence does no good. He knows that some psychiatrists have largely given up talking to their patients. They just put them up on the table and start giving shock treatments.

What is hopeful today is that a new group of men are entering the field of psychiatry—men of science who, with laboratory methods, are studying the functions of the brain as they have never been studied before.

For years, physicians have suspected that an insane person might occasionally go into a spell because of the presence in his blood of some nerve poison. This suspicion was strengthened when lysergic acid amide was found to produce temporary psychosis in volunteers. Other such drugs are being found. Now comes Dr. Robert S. Heath and his co-workers who report having found in the blood of schizophrenics a substance that causes monkeys and men to become, for a few hours, mentally disturbed. Obviously a new and better day is dawning in psychiatry.

BINGO PROFITS FOR GORGE IMPROVEMENT?

Victoria Kinsmen will study possibility of spending a portion of its $16,000 profit from recent huge bingo games they sponsored on improvement of Gorge recreational park facilities.

President Vic Lea said "this is one of several things we've been considering well look into first."

Chairman of the Gorge Waterways Improvement Association, Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, proposed some time ago that the Kinsmen provide park bathing facilities.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Both Soil, Weather Right for Work Now

Any garden work which can be done now while the soil has moisture in it, and the temperature is not soaring, will result not only in time gained but in better plants for overwintering.

The job I have in mind is the division of the early summer flowering perennials.

Doronicum (the yellow daisy-like leopard's bane), pyrethrum (painted daisy), polyanthus (Jacob's ladder) and geum may all receive this attention.

In some gardens, some of these plants may be in full bloom, but it is advisable to divide large clumps after the first abundance of bloom is over.

The old advice of dividing clumps of fibrous rooted perennials by inserting two digging forks back to back and prying the handles apart, really works.

Hilda

For years I had read about the method in every gardening book, but frankly had thought of it as an old gardener's tale. It was not until last year that I proved to myself how easily the idea works.

Even large heavy roots succumb simply by moving the handles of the forks outward from their upright position. Small hand forks may be used for small roots.

Replant divisions about a foot apart to give effect of mass color, but flowers will be finer on smaller plants.

Dam Builders Get Extension To August 1

CHEMAMINUS—North Cowichan council has granted Tidewater Construction Co., Vancouver, an extension of time to Aug. 1 to complete the Holyoak Lake dam phase of the new Chemainus water system.

Chemainus and District Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to council, requested that its grant in future be the same as the grant given the Duncan Chamber of Commerce. The letter pointed out that the Chemainus chamber served municipal areas, including Crofton. Council this year gave a grant of $100 to the Duncan chamber and $25 to the Chemainus chamber.

D. R. O'Brien has been appointed municipal accountant, at a salary of $30 per month.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A 12-year-old boy really put his foot in it Thursday. It took police almost an hour to extract Ronald Blair from a 35-gallon drum of tar, minus his shorts and shoes. The youngster said he was dashing over the tops of several tar-filled drums at a building project when one of his feet sank.

ROYAL JUBILEE LABORATORY WORKER, Miss Carole Savage, shows spectrophotometer used in new heart tests.

'MOST SENSITIVE YET'

New Heart Tests Conducted in City

New blood tests for detection of "hidden" heart attacks, which were described to a Chicago convention of the American Medical Association, Tuesday, have been carried out in Victoria hospitals for at least two weeks.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital said the new tests are "... valuable in locating damage specifically in coronary thrombosis cases (when blood supply is cut off to part of the heart)."

They were anxious that persons suffering heart ailments generally did not put too much emphasis on the Chicago announcement.

The test was described at the convention as "... the most important forward step in diagnosis since the electrocardiograph was introduced early in the century."

St. Joseph's Hospital has also been carrying out the test procedure recently and Veterans' Hospital is setting up laboratory equipment to follow suit.

DONATED

The test is conducted by use of an ultra-violet spectrophotometer. Jubilee's was donated last year by police and firemen, sponsors of annual "Family Night" at Memorial Arena. The device was primarily intended for use in treatment of polio.

Now that polio is on the wane, it still will be valuable.

Laboratory officials describe the test as the "most sensitive yet devised," but pointed out it is not a magic formula for discovering heart damage where it was never suspected in a patient.

For careless driving on Trans-Canada Highway, June 1, William B. Finlayson, 368 Phoenix, was fined $40 and his licence suspended.

Police said he was driving north on Tillicum and stopped for a stop sign at the Trans-Canada Highway. Watching a train on the other side of the highway, he did not notice a car approach the intersection and he started across colliding with the other car.

It was sent a distance of 300 feet, overturned, with a total $1,000 damage caused.

Richard D. Tinkham, 780 Rogers, was fined $40 and his licence suspended for careless driving on Carey Road. The car he was driving went out of control at McKenzie, went through a garden and knocked over a power pole, causing estimated $400 damage.

Thetis Lake Logging Not Yet Dead

Selective logging of Thetis Lake Park to raise funds for improvement of the area now used by the public, is again under consideration by city council.

Council decided Thursday that unless the B.C. government indicates within two weeks whether it has plans for the park in the Capital District Improvement Commission scheme, the logging plan will be lifted from the table.

Council offered the park, along with parks at Goldstream and Elk Lake, to the province last fall for development as provincial parks.

NO ANSWER YET

Since then, although it has been indicated Goldstream Park is the only area the province would consider accepting, no definite answer has ever been received from the government.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell brought the matter up, and urged council go ahead with the plan to log back areas of the park, beyond the points accessible to the public.

The plan was approved by a majority of council after a visit to the back areas last year. But it was strongly opposed by former mayor Claude Harrison, who threatened to veto any decision by council to log.

Council gave in to his proposal to sound out the government on development first, and there the matter has been stalled since last November.

CAUTION URGED

Present Mayor Percy Scourah said prior to his election that Thetis Lake was valuable property and the city must be careful not to destroy its natural beauty. He thought he would have to look further into the meaning of council's selective logging plan before deciding whether he would favor it.

The council of last fall felt selective logging would yield about $62,000 now and $15,000 every five years on a sustained yield basis, money to be used in park beautification.

Saturday Hearing for Final Vogee Arguments

Summation of arguments in the appeal of Arthur E. Vogee chairman, refused on Thursday against his demotion from the post of principal of Mount Newton High School will be heard Saturday by the board of reference hearing the appeal.

The hearing opened May 14 and since then the reference board has met 14 days.

Saanich school board demoted Mr. Vogee for what it called shortcomings in the administration of the school. It took action following receipt of a report on the school by Dr. Harold Johns, inspector for the district.

J. Alan Baker is counsel for the school board, and Victor Dryer of Vancouver is representing Mr. Vogee. Following arguments Saturday, the board will consider evidence and report to the council of public instruction, which in return will notify both parties in the dispute of its decision.

CHICAGO (AP)—A sharp break in July soybeans toward the close upset the rest of the grain list on the board of trade today.

July beans fell 10 cents, the daily limit, on a heavy liquidating move.

Wheat had an easier tone throughout the session on precautionary selling prior to anticipated heavy receipts of cash wheat at southern terminals Monday.

New crop corn and soybeans scored small gains early as expected rains failed to materialize in any volume in the Midwest. They fell back toward the close when July soybeans broke.

LONDON

LONDON (Reuters)—London stock markets ended the week on a subdued note.

Interest was again centred in Trinidad Oil shares which were appreciably higher on the day although other oil issues turned dull.

British funds were easier. Dollar stocks were dull in sympathy with Wall Street.

Wheat Exports Hit Record Pace

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said today Canada has exported 244,000 bushels of wheat in the current crop year up to June 6, and by now probably has matched the 252,000-bushel export in the whole of the last crop year ended last July 31.

"In all my years of wheat business, I have never seen wheat moving as it is today," Mr. Howe said in the Commons.

The minister, replying to a question by John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert), said exports in the present crop year Aug. 1 to June 6 were 29,000 bushels above the corresponding period a year earlier.

Later official figures were not available, he said, but he thinks the export mark of last year has been equalled in the nine days since June 6.

Boats were waiting at every port to take shipments and the Hudson Bay port of Churchill, Man., soon would open to a "record" shipping season.

DELIVERIES AHEAD

Mr. Diefenbaker asked about the rate of farmers' deliveries to country elevators. Was the government trying to ensure that all farm-stored grain would be delivered before the new crop began?

Mr. Howe said that in the crop year up to June 1, farmers had delivered 248,000 bushels of wheat as against 218,000 a year earlier. Deliveries of all grains were 12,000 bushels ahead. Loadings of freight cars were running at 2,200 a day.

Mr. Howe said that from now until the crop year ends July 31 the Canadian wheat board will try to equalize as far as possible the amounts of grain which farmers can deliver to elevators. But at the same time it had to give preference to grades moving quickly to market.

One grade moving slowly was No. 3 northern. The board was trying to "find a place for it" so that deliveries could be increased at points having that grade.

LAG OVERCOME

At June 3 there were 106 Prairie marketing points on a three-bushel delivery quota, 538 on four bushels, 509 on five bushels, 741 on six bushels and 168 on seven bushels.

Mr. Howe's statement about wheat exports shows that recent shipments have overcome an export lag in the first part of the crop year last fall, when shipments fell below those of a year earlier.

In a recent report, the wheat board said the reason for the pick-up was a poor winter crop in Europe, hit by severe storms, and a poor crop in Argentina.

Earlier this week, a crop report said Prairie farmers have virtually completed spring wheat seeding operations.

Sag in Canada's Boom Feared by Credit Man

WINNIPEG (CP)—G. J. McLean, president of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association Ltd., said Thursday Canada's economic boom may be in for a slight sag this year.

However, Mr. McLean was reassuring about consumer credit. He said that although it had increased it was still within relatively reasonable bounds.

J. Langley of Montreal was elected president to succeed Mr. McLean. Vice-president is T. O. A. West of Calgary.

my side of the story

By The Duchess of Windsor

Ernest and I sailed for New York aboard the Mauretania late in March. The Isle of Wight had scarcely dropped below the horizon before a messenger came dashing up with a radiogram, one which I judged from his agitated manner to be of the utmost importance.

It was a bon voyage message, signed "Edward P.," wishing Ernest and me a safe crossing and a speedy return to England. From the respectful treatment that we were thereafter accorded by the ship's company we gathered that the grapevine had carried the word that the Prince of Wales had sent us a personal message. Let me be candid: the attention was flattering. I enjoyed every minute of it.

We were back in London in mid-May, and life resumed its pleasant round, including several weekend invitations to the Fort soon after our return.

June 19 is my birthday. To my surprise the Prince and Thelma gave a dinner party for me at Quaglino's, a famous restaurant just off Jermyn street. The Prince gave me a lovely orchid plant. He assured me that it would bloom again within a year if I faithfully followed certain instructions as to its care. I set the plant in the sunniest window at Bryanston Court. For a year I watched it; nothing happened. Meanwhile the Prince had become a frequent visitor. And one afternoon the plant came beautifully into flower exactly as he had predicted. I was afterwards to feel that there was something symbolic about this.

The Prince Accepts

One thing had begun increasingly to trouble Ernest and me: how could we possibly repay the Prince's hospitality? The Fourth of July was now approaching. This anniversary has always been the occasion for celebration among Americans in London. So we decided to give a dinner party, and it was with trepidation that I wrote out the Prince's invitation. He accepted almost immediately.

Ten of us sat down to dinner—the Prince at the head of the wholly American outlook on the subjects under discussion, and was somewhat surprised by my independence of view. I had no reason to believe that he ever looked upon me as other than a member of the special group Thelma had drawn around him to enliven weekends at the Fort or to fill out a casual supper party at the Embassy Club or Sartori's.

Aura of Splendor

As much as anyone I was mesmerized by the aura of splendor surrounding the Royal Family and even more by the glamor emanated by the Prince of Wales of popular legend. I was glad to be even a minor satellite in the company revolving around him.

Now, however, Ernest and I found ourselves becoming permanent fixtures at the Fort weekends. It may be that the Prince and Thelma had come to regard us as convenient chaperons. At any rate, the association was imperceptibly but swiftly passing from an acquaintanceship to a friendship.

The Prince was still a mystery to me. A reserve surrounded him that was like an impenetrable protecting film. I had already observed that while he undoubtedly had many friends going back to his childhood—friends who must have truly wanted to share their lives with him—few were ever encountered at the Fort. Except for an occasional equerry or his private secretary, his official staff went unrepresented there. Of his four brothers only Prince George was a steady visitor. David, I came to realize, was a spirit apart, and the Fort was his refuge from the artificial gregariousness imposed on him by his official duties.

I had, of course, been seeing a good deal of Thelma. Our relationship was friendly and easy but scarcely intimate; neither of us, I suppose, was given to exchanging confidences. Around the turn of the year she announced that she was planning a trip to the United States. The day before she sailed she asked me for cocktails; as we said good-bye, she said laughingly, "I'm afraid the Prince is going to be lonely. Wallis won't you look after him?" I promised that I would, but privately doubted that he would be in need of solace.

First Personal Call

A few days later my parlor maid came hurrying into my room. "Madam, the Prince of Wales wishes to speak to you on the telephone." It was the first time he had ever called in person. He wished to ask us to a dinner party he was giving at the Dorchester for two old American friends.

That dinner was memorable for a special reason. Heretofore the Prince had never dwelt upon his imperial duties as if he felt this subject was something to be thrust aside in hours of relaxation. But on this particular evening some chance remark of mine broke through this barrier and suddenly while the others were away from the table dancing, he began to talk about his work, the things he hoped to do, and the creative role he thought the monarchy could play in this new age. He also dropped a hint of the frustrations he was experiencing, and his ambition to make a success of his job.

I was fascinated. It was as if a door had opened upon the inner fastness of his character. I cannot claim that I sensed in him something that few around him could have been aware of—a deep loneliness, an overtone of spiritual isolation. "But this is all boring for you," he said, as if ashamed of revealing so much about himself.

"On the contrary," I answered. "I couldn't be more interested. Please, please go on." While he was still looking at me questionably the music stopped and the others began to converge on the table. Then he said a surprising thing. "Wallis, you are the only woman who has ever been interested in my job." A little later on, as we were dancing, he asked me if I would mind his dropping in at Bryanston Court for a cocktail now and then when his other engagements permitted.

He seemed to find stimulation in the changing company in front of my little cocktail table. In the beginning he stayed but briefly sometimes before a public dinner or while on his way to see his old and deeply admired friend Freda Dudley Ward. This way-stopping gradually grew longer. Then one evening he stayed on and on. The other guests, one by one, had to excuse themselves, would you care to take pot-luck with us?"

SATURDAY: Pot-luck dinners at my flat.

Injuns Miss Boat

Yanks Increase Lead;
Mantle Belts No. 22

By The Associated Press

Cleveland's Indians are like the horse player who stayed up all night figuring the angles for a sure thing, then overslept and couldn't get his bet down.

When New York Yankees built their American League lead to 6½ games with a hot 13-4 streak late last month, manager Al Lopez and the Tribe shrugged it off. "It can't last," said the Injuns. "They can't keep hitting like that. Their pitching isn't really that good."

The Tribe was right. The Yankees have won only five of 12 in June—the worst record of any club in the AL including last-place Washington. Cleveland, however, has won eight of 15 in that stretch and has managed to trim New York's lead by a mere 1½ games.

TRUMP-CARD FAILED

Pitching—Bob Lemon, Early Wynn, Herb Score and Mike Garcia—was to be Cleveland's trump card. But in the 15 games played in June, Lemon, Wynn and Garcia have a combined 3.5 mark. Score, sidelined by a stomach ache, worked only one game, and won it.

Lemon's been the big loser, dropping three of four June decisions. He was whacked again Thursday for 11 hits and eight runs in four innings as Boston Red Sox out-slugged the Tribe 10-9.

The Yankees, meanwhile, were taking the rubber match in a series with the second-place White Sox 5-1 with Bob Grim tossing a four-hitter and Mickey Mantle hitting his 22nd home run—his first in nine days.

No other games were scheduled in the AL as the Yanks, who open a road trip at Cleveland tonight, put their lead at five games with the Indians only 5 percentage points back of the White Sox.

Only one National League game was scheduled and Milwaukee Braves closed their 15-game home stand with a 5-10 mark by beating New York Giants 5-2.

Rocks Regain Form; Belt 'Bellies' Crew

NEW WESTMINSTER—Victoria Shamrocks, sharp-shooting their way to within noddling distance of first-place Nanaimo in the Inter-city Lacrosse League, blasted New Westminster Salmonbellies, 14-6, Thursday night.

Shamrocks, who dropped 11 points behind Nanaimo in their loss to the Timbermen Wednesday in Memorial Arena, regained two points with their win Thursday.

Harry Irwin with three goals led the attack on coach Harry Preston in the Salmonbelly net, while Bill Bamford and Mel Davison each had a pair and Al Gill, Ed Kowalyk, Jack Norrup, Bert Bertoia and Ed Longpre picked up singletons.

Victoria scored their 14 goals on 29 shots.

MINOR BALL ROUNDUP

Emery Rewrites Whiffing Record

Dave Emery whiffed 18 batters in seven innings Thursday night, tying a Babe Ruth League strikeout record as he pitched UCT to a 10-4 victory over Menzies at Beacon Hill Park.

Four of his strikeouts came in the second inning, when catcher George Webb dropped the ball on a third strike, enabling the batter to reach first base. Emery then fanned the next batter.

It was his fifth straight victory.

POLICE WIN

At Carnarvon Park, Victoria Police scored five runs in the fifth inning to down Jaycees, 9-6, in a Pony League game.

David Rees, with a double and two singles, was the leading hitter for the winners.

Doug Osterstrom struck out nine batters to pitch Lions to within one game of second place in the American Little League, defeating Kinsmen, 9-7, at Little League Park.

BIG INNINGS

In the Esquimalt-Vic West Little League at Bullen Park, Yarrow's Dodgers edged Pirates, 7-6, on the strength of a six-run third inning. John Yan-koski pitched a two-hitter for the victory.

Another big inning, 11 runs in the second, gave Totems a 14-8 triumph over Cubs in a Hampton Little League game at Hampton Road Park.

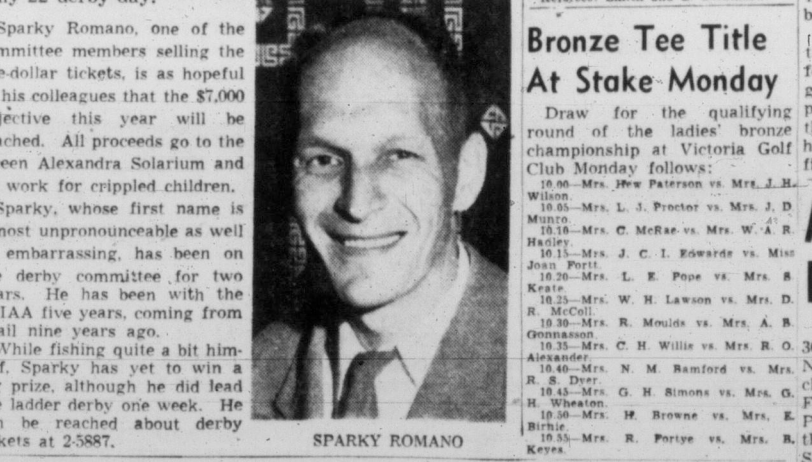

Solarium Corner

Ticket sales for the Anglers-Times Solarium Derby, co-sponsored by the Victoria Times and the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, are well past the $1,000 dollar mark, with five weeks to go yet until the July 22 derby day.

Sparky Romano, one of the committee members selling the one-dollar tickets, is as hopeful as his colleagues that the $7,000 objective this year will be reached. All proceeds go to the Queen Alexandra Solarium and its work for crippled children.

Sparky, whose first name is almost unpronounceable as well as embarrassing, has been on the derby committee for two years. He has been with the VSIAA five years, coming from Trail nine years ago.

While fishing quite a bit himself, Sparky has yet to win a big prize, although he did lead the ladder derby one week. He can be reached about derby tickets at 25887.

The efforts of Pop and president Reg Corfield that the club was still operating when service members returned.

Many times Pop and Reg would be at the club at 7 in the morning, tending to the grounds, and after the work was done, Pop would take over in the kitchen, lighting fires, making tea and washing dishes, since the club could not afford a caterer.

When the badminton building was moved from the Wil-lows to its present site, Pop telephoned and organized recruits for working parties and kept them supplied with coffee and donuts. And, of course, he washed the dishes.

Three years ago this month, Pop passed away.

And a little bit of the club died with him.

Hot Tempers, Cool Golf Featured in U.S. Open

Rosburg Leads in Rash of Controversies

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP)—Hot tempers and hot temperature, which sometimes go together, stirred things up today in the U.S. Open much more than the hot golf that was predicted.

Only one man in the unwieldy field of 160, Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., was able to break par in opening round and he shot a 34-34—68 to take a two-stroke lead in a gruelling day that was more stable for arguments and complaints than for good golf.

The small Canadian contingent found the going tough. Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., and amateur Gerald Magee of Toronto, carded 37-36—73 and 38-39—77 respectively.

WHITE SPOTS THUMPED

Farmer Bats Hum; Near League Lead

Ed Ash and his merry Farmer Construction crew, the music of their bats tinkling gently in their ears, are off to Deming tonight in search of first place in the Northwest International Baseball League.

Farmers, now in second place via an 11-8 decision over Vancouver White Spots at Athletic Park Thursday night, will return home Saturday against league-leading and undefeated Bellingham.

A sweep of tonight's and Saturday's games will put Farmers in top spot in the seven-team loop.

That old big inning, which Farmers turned out in mass production last year, turned the trick Thursday night. Picking up seven runs in the fifth on two doubles, a single and a prodigious two-run homer over the left-center field wall, 380 feet away, by Norm Curran, Farmers took an 8-5 lead and never looked back.

Saturday, however, those bats will really have to be booming. Bellingham, undefeated in league play this year, will field a powerful club for the double-header starting at 2 and 7:30.

MARSHALL BACK

With them is expected to be John Marshall, former pitcher with Victoria of the old Western International League, and popular with local fans.

Manager Joe Martin of Bellingham told the Times today that Marshall was due to join Bellingham tonight and would be one of his pitchers Saturday.

Ash will go with Bill Garner in the opener Saturday, and Bill Prior or Paul Beck in the nightcap. Young Jake Jacobsen will get the nod tonight in Deming.

THURSDAY NIGHT, JIM HARFORD'S BASES—LOADED DOUBLE AGAINST THE LEFT CENTRE FIELD WALL, FOLLOWED BY CURRAN'S HOMER, DID THE DAMAGE AGAINST STARTING PITCHER AND LOSER NORM ALLAN.

Norm Lund, making his farewell appearance on the mound for Farmers, took the victory although departing in favor of Beck in the sixth.

Curran with three for four was the big batsman for Farmers, who picked up four doubles during the game.

Artful Ab Starves Students

Gorge Hotel 1 Chinese Students 0

Ab Wiebe pitched a fine two-hitter to lead Gorge Hotel to a tight 1-0 victory over Chinese Students in senior A softball at Central Park Friday night.

Hotelmen's lone run was scored after Mick Smith singled, Ben Price sacrificed him to second, and Students' first baseman Tom Sloan made two errors that enabled Smith to cross the plate.

Students best chance came in the sixth, when they got their only hits, two singles. Pitcher Dennis Beaulac managed to reach third base on two singles and a sacrifice before Wiebe retired the side on a fly ball and a grounder to first.

Vern Evans got the only extra base hit in the game, a stand-up triple to right field.

REPORT FROM THE OUTDOORS

If there is such a thing as a perfect life for a lover of the outdoors, Les Morrow appears to have come as close to the Utopia as anyone.

Les is a public relations man, a writer, fisherman, hunter, amateur naturalist, conservationist and a lover of guns of all calibre.

And by careful organization, Les has managed to weld all these activities into a combined hobby and profession that not only nets him a comfortable income, but provides him with what he calls, "a perfect life."

Primarily, Les is an information officer for Canadian Industries Limited's ammunition branch and he specializes in spreading the gospel to hunters and shooters on the newest ammunition wrinkles turned out by CIL's research labs.

But Les, being an ex-newspaperman, as so many public relations men seem to be, still has an urge to pound out stories. He satisfies his urge by selling to publications like Sports Illustrated, which recently paid him $750 for one article; Field & Stream, Sports Afield and Outdoor Life and writes a monthly column for Rod and Gun.

In addition, he makes frequent radio and television appearances in his hometown, Montreal, again through his intensive knowledge of the outdoors.

Eating plays a large part in Les' life, since he once wrote a food column for the Montreal Herald. To satisfy his culinary cravings, Les is a charter member of a select Montreal organization known as Les Chevaliers de la Cuisine (Knights of the Kitchen). The club consists of 11 World War II veterans and their wives, all of whom love good food properly prepared. They meet at regular intervals and the men do the cooking, each preparing his own specialty. Les' specialty is biscuits but he hopes soon to graduate to spaghetti as he claims to have concocted a marvelous sauce of white wine and garlic.

Children Follow Tradition

Les' wife contributes outdoors columns occasionally and is, an ardent sport shooter. His three children follow the family tradition. Both boys received a gun at the age of four and were taken hunting at six. Daughter Dolly will be four this year and she, too, will receive her gun and instruction.

When he is not bounding across the country for CIL, Les fits in this hunting schedule:

After Christmas, he starts shooting rabbit and fox until the timber wolves oblige as targets. He has a special licence permitting him to shoot wolves from a low-flying airplane.

After the wolves, he amuses himself by hunting crows and ground-hogs and long-range varmit shooting.

In the fall, he switches to upland game birds—partridge, woodcock and odd pheasant and it is a happy coincidence that the deer season opens at the same time, enabling him to pick up his white-tail for the family freezer.

Ducks and Snow Geese are in his sights in the early part of the winter, he usually picks up a moose in October and then it is back to ducks until December, by which time it is rabbit season again.

Yes, Les Fishes, Too

Fishing? Yes, he does this too, pursuing trout, pickerel, pike, muskie and bass.

And in case time should weigh heavy, he works out on a small-bore range twice a week and plans to start trap shooting sometime this summer.

But CIL is still his big love and he is proud of the fact that his company manufactures more kinds of ammunition than any other concern in the world. CIL does a service to gun-collectors and owners of obsolete guns by manufacturing small amounts, as low as 1,000 rounds per year, of any odd-line calibre that there is the slightest demand for.

Les currently is plugging for CIL's new magnum lines in 16 and 20-gauge which joins the 12-gauge introduced last year.

According to Les, CIL's research crews have designed a magnum cartridge that increases the shot load by 30 per cent without increasing the breech pressure, making it usable in any ordinary gun.

The magnum load will not increase the distance but packs greater hitting power and, particularly in the late fall when ducks are packing heavy plumage, will register kills where old loads only wounded.

Major League Clubs In Rash of Trading

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schuendienst, Mr. Redbird himself, went to New York Giants Thursday in a four-for-four trade which brought veteran Alvin Dark to St. Louis Cardinals.

The 33-year-old Schuendienst, a veteran of 12 seasons with the Cardinals, took the news of the trade in the same stoic manner in which he plays second base. "That's the way the ball bounces," he said.

General Manager Frank Lane, moving quickly before the deadline on trading at midnight to night dealt off Schuendienst, outfielder Jackie Brandt, catcher Bill Sarni and pitcher Dick Littlefield for shortstop Mark, first baseman Whitey Lockman, catcher Ray Katt and pitcher Don Liddle.

NEEDED INFELD DEFENCE — "Red was the toughest to give up," Lane said. "He's the type of ball player who could go out and make five errors in a row and the fans wouldn't be made at him. But then again Dark is good, too."

Lane said he will use Dark, who is also 33, at shortstop, switching rookie Don Blasingame to second, his natural position.

"We felt that without defence on our infield we couldn't call ourselves a contender," Lane said.

Lane said that Dark isn't the "great ball player he was five years ago" but he still would improve the Cards at shortstop.

Lockman, who will go to first, replacing Wally Moon who will play the outfield. Katt will alternate with Hal Smith behind the plate, the fast-dealing Lane added.

The Yankees and Athletics also figured in another four-player deal of their own.

Eddie Robinson, 35-year-old long ball hitting first baseman, was sent to Kansas City by the Yankees along with outfielder Lou Skizas.

In exchange, the Yankees acquired pitcher Ed Bartsch and outfielder Bill Renna, both of whom were assigned to Richmond, along with an undisclosed amount of cash.

In the only other pre-deadline activity, the Red Sox optioned third baseman Frank Malzone to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League.

Small Field Entered in Plate Classic

TORONTO (CP) — Ten horses will go to the post Saturday in the 97th running of the Queen's Plate. It is one of the smallest fields in the history of the $25,000-added classic for three-year-olds.

Entries closed Thursday and only 10 owners stepped up with the necessary $250 final subscription fee to keep their horses in the running for the Queen's 50 Guineas and $26,650, the winner's share of the purse.

A record 238 colts and fillies were originally nominated for the stakes Dec. 15, 1954, by payment of $10. The list was trimmed to 90 a year ago and to 45 last May 4.

Since then owners have taken a good look at aptly-named Canadian Champ, owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, and one by one they decided their entries wouldn't have a chance over the nine-furlong distance against the nifty bay colt, unbeaten in eight starts the last two years.

Canadian Champ, by Windfields out of Bolesto, set an earnings record for two-year-olds in Canada last season when he collected $51,840 in purses. This year he started three times, including the Plate Trial over seven furlongs on Tuesday, and was an easy winner each time.

Stars Win 11th Straight; Mounties Roll

Hollywood and San Francisco are winning furiously in the Pacific Coast League but who's getting all the gravy? First-place Los Angeles.

Hollywood dumped San Diego 11-6 Thursday night, stretching the PCL season's longest victory run to 11. San Francisco took its third straight from second-place Seattle 4-1.

Hollywood has jumped from seventh to fourth on its string and the Seals are up from seventh to fifth.

So Los Angeles, which had Seattle breathing down its neck only a half game behind Sunday, now has a comfortable four-game lead. The Angels have taken four straight from Portland, including yesterday's 12-5 win.

Even last-place Vancouver got hot, drubbing Sacramento 14-1 after losing nine in a row to the Seals. Kai Segrist got two homers and Bruce Edwards one for the Mounties. Winner Charlie Beamon gave only five hits, struck out eight Solons and drove in four runs.

Sacramento signed outfielder Wally Westlake, a PCL veteran down from the majors.

TIME OUT!

Marlene Gains Collegiate Semifinal

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Petite Marlene Stewart of Rollins College played the sharpest golf Thursday in quarter-finals of the women's national collegiate golf tournament to get a shot at defending champion Jackie Yates of the University of Redlands in the semi-finals today.

The Fonthill, Ont., youngster played even par golf for 14 holes over the wooded hills of Purdue's South course to defeat Virginia Denney of Maryville, 6 and 4.

Miss Yates, Hawaiian star who has been runner-up in the Tam O'Shanter "world tourney" the last two years, eliminated Anne Richardson of Rollins, 1955 semi-finalist in the coeds' meet, 4 and 3.

Barbara McIntire of Rollins and Ruth Jensen of Seattle will meet in the other semi-final.

RECORDS COULD FALL

Trinidad Mike Eyes 220 Mark

The oldest Canadian record in the book, 220 yards in 21.4 seconds, will be the big target for Trinidad's Mike Agostini next Saturday in the YMCA-Victoria Times Vancouver Island Track and Field Championships at Victoria High School Stadium.

Agostini, double world record holder with the 100-yard mark of 9.3 and the 220 of 20.1, will also have a good chance of breaking his own Canadian 100-yard record if conditions are right.

To push him along his way, he will have Rafael Duke of Victoria, current B.C. sprint champ, and Harry Nelson of New Westminster, who has a 9.6 to his credit this year and who was a BEG finalist.

As for Agostini, he is the current British Empire Games champion and besides his 9.3 100, has run 9.4 four times and 9.6 four times this year. He has also been under 21 seconds for the 220 on six occasions.

CURVED TRACK — Most of his 220 times have been on a straight track, while at Vic High he will be running on a curved track, which experts say adds 4-10ths of a second to the running of the distance.

The old Canadian 220 record was set in 1908 by Bobby Kerr of Hamilton, Ont.

Looking impressive in his first workout at Vic High this week since returning to Victoria from the University of Washington was the Cumberland Comet, Terry Tobaco, now a much more stylish athlete than the gangling 17-year-old that captured the imagination of 35,000 people watching the BEG quarter-mile two miles ago.

Terry's stiffest quarter-mile competition should come from teammate Ted Whan, who took both the 440 and 880 in the Evergreen Conference meet recently, the first time that feat had been accomplished.

Brousseau Defends Junior Golf Crown — Ken Brousseau will be defending his title against a field of at least 70 golfers Saturday in the city junior golf championship at Gorge Vale Golf Club over 35 holes of medal play.

9-Man Council-at-Large Suggested for New City

3-Phase Proposal To Smooth Switch

The proposed "new city" of Victoria should have a mayor and eight councillors elected at large, the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada says in its amalgamation report unfolded Thursday.

The council would be chosen by the electors of Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and the southern portion of Saanich. The planners recommended three separate stages for the unification plan, based on experience in formation of the municipality of metropolitan Toronto.

Here is the section of the report dealing with this phase:

A reading of Sections 10 and 11 of the Municipal Act reveals that the provincial government generally favors a two-year term and election at large for municipal councils in British Columbia. Section 491 of the same act sets out a procedure whereby municipalities having a population of 15,000 or more may also institute a board of control system. Although the provision is of long standing, no municipality has taken it up.

The institute is generally opposed to a board of control system and, moreover, believes it to be incompatible with the council-manager plan. On the other hand, it fully endorses a two-year term and election at large for the new municipal council. It is further recommended that the governmental framework of the proposed new city be established in three separate stages.

One Year Needed for Survey

1. Whether unification of the proposed area requires a special act or not, provision should be made for a one-year interval between the final decision to create the new municipality and the date of its actual incorporation. During this period, a special inter-municipal committee made up of representatives from the existing municipalities and the provincial government would survey the detailed adjustments necessary and formulate the policies required in order to get the new municipality launched on a sound basis.

2. For the first two-year term, we suggest that the new municipal council be composed of a mayor and four councillors elected at large plus one representative elected from within the area of each of the four existing municipalities. For the election of one of these area representatives, it would be most appropriate to include the Improvement District of View Royal with the District of Esquimalt.

3. It is proposed that the council elected for the second two-year term and every council thereafter should consist of a mayor and eight councillors elected entirely at large.

Toronto Merger Plan Followed

Each of the stages here outlined has, in our opinion, a good deal to commend it. In the Act which established the Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto, an interval of eight and a half months was provided for the necessary work of organization before the new administration undertook its full responsibilities. The experience of the responsible municipal officials during these months demonstrated clearly that not enough time had been allowed. Although Victoria's experience with inter-municipal arrangements may, as already noted, help to make the transition easier, a year's work by the proposed inter-municipal committee should prove to be a very worthwhile investment.

Qualified Pool of Candidates

A further point is that, through the proposed inter-municipal committee and the area representation on the first council, representatives from the various sections of the metropolitan community will have an opportunity to gain broad and valuable experience in the handling of area-wide problems. The plan would also help to create a qualified pool of candidates for election at large.

In the proposal for a permanent council consisting of a mayor and eight councillors elected at large, consideration has been given both to the current population picture in the Victoria area and to the desirability of establishing a suitable council structure to meet the needs of a large and growing urban centre.

If the proposed new city had come into being in 1955, its total population would have been, by a very rough estimate, about 115,000, of which some 60,000 were in the suburban area.

On the question of council representation, a number of points should be noted with regard to these figures. The large single block of voters in the new municipality will continue for some time to be the residents of the present City of Victoria. Adequate representation of this area on the new municipal council is virtually assured. On the other hand, the suburban areas need have no fear that they will be completely over-ridden in the make-up of the new municipal council. In 1955, the population of these areas already constituted a majority of the proposed new city's total population. A comparison with the totals derived from the 1951 census indicates that this ascendancy is almost certain to continue and, indeed, to increase. A further point is that individual communities like Oak Bay or Esquimalt will undoubtedly have outstanding citizens who can attract a sufficient area-wide following to achieve election to the new council regardless of the particular population distribution.

A council of nine members, it is suggested, offers a reasonable balance among the conflicting requirements for an effective representative body. It is sufficiently large to allow for a proper distribution of the likely workload. On the basis of the 1955 population totals, it also provides reasonable representation both in relation to the existing size of the electorate and to the probable growth in the number of voters in the foreseeable future. Yet a coun-

Rate of Growth Uneven in Component Parts

Between 1941 and 1951, what the census defines as the Victoria metropolitan area increased in population by 38 per cent. While the figure quoted is reasonably accurate, the definition of the area is deficient in that it leaves out that by portion of the real metropolitan area which lies within unorganized territories. A further point is that the rate of growth within the municipal components of the census area itself were by no means even. The City of Victoria grew by only 16 1/2 per cent between the two census years. Thus the overall average of more than double the rate in the city proper was accounted for the much higher rates of growth in the three surrounding municipalities.

The overall rate of population growth between 1951 and

THESE ARE MEN who prepared and are now studying amalgamation report. Report was prepared by George H. Houghman, assistant director of Citizens' Research Institute of Canada (centre), and F. H. Finnis, executive

CONTROL FUTURE DEVELOPMENT

'Greatest Long-Run Stability' In Unified Form of Government

The amalgamation researchers came up with these specific advantages of unification:

"A unified form of local government will have by far the greatest long-run stability. Where there are racial, religious or other deep-rooted divisions within a community, a federal system may offer the most effective structure that is politically feasible. It remains, nevertheless, a second-best alternative which the citizens of the Victoria region have no real need to favor and should not be prepared to accept. The current level of development in the area makes it desirable and practical to get a more suitable form of local government firmly established before the needs and requirements of metropolitan growth reach a more critical stage. In a very real sense, acceptance of unification is a measure of the metropolitan community's political maturity."

WELL-DEFINED

"An area-wide unification in Victoria will introduce a governmental framework within which the political and administrative responsibility for all municipal services is clearly defined and immediately determinable. Within the limits imposed by general provincial control and the community's financial resources, the local government will have the necessary power to discharge its responsibilities, control the nature and direction of future development and evolve a comprehensive policy for improving the level of existing services where necessary and meeting anticipated future requirements. A pooling of assessments will ensure, at the same time, that the distribution of the local financial burden is reasonably fair and equitable."

circumstances would be one which excluded areas of this framework for concentrating population growth within these sections most readily and appropriately serviced. Unless population is likely to remain static over a long period, the territory embraced by a unified municipality should, of course, include a sufficient amount of land for likely urban expansion in the future. It need not, however, take in areas which do not at the moment form a direct part of the urbanized metropolitan area which, for that very reason, a majority of the citizens in the organized municipalities would not be prepared to recognize as their immediate responsibility or concern."

COMMON

"The Victoria region is confronted with a situation which is far from uncommon in metropolitan areas. A failure to control urban development adequately in the past has produced both a series of ribbon developments adjacent to main traffic arteries and a number of population pockets that are relatively close to but separate from those areas of current urbanization which are contiguous to the fully-developed urban community. Cordova Bay to the northeast, Langford, Colwood and even Albert Head to the west and south, provide cases in point. Under a federal setup, it would be difficult if not impossible to justify a boundary which provides a suitable sort. With unification, by contrast, the area served by the new unit of government need not and probably should not be as extensive. The appropriate boundary in these circumstances would be one which excluded areas of this framework for concentrating population growth within these sections most readily and appropriately serviced. Unless population is likely to remain static over a long period, the territory embraced by a unified municipality should, of course, include a sufficient amount of land for likely urban expansion in the future. It need not, however, take in areas which do not at the moment form a direct part of the urbanized metropolitan area which, for that very reason, a majority of the citizens in the organized municipalities would not be prepared to recognize as their immediate responsibility or concern."

AREA-WIDE

"Because the metropolitan problems of the Victoria region are not as pressing as in some urban areas, the residents of the region have an opportunity to seek the optimum framework for their metropolitan self-government. They should, we would suggest, be satisfied with nothing less than an area-wide unification. Such a development would offer the best protection for their immediate civic interests of the region alike. Among metropolitan areas, it would place Greater Victoria in a position of leadership throughout the North American continent."

115,500 POPULATION ESTIMATED FOR AREA

The trend of population growth in the Victoria region and in the balance between the city and its suburbs is revealed in this table prepared for the amalgamation report.

POPULATION BY MUNICIPALITIES

	1951 Census	1955 Estimates
City of Victoria	51,300	56,000
District of Oak Bay	10,200	14,000
District of Saanich	28,500	34,500
District of Esquimalt	12,000	11,000
District Total	50,700	59,500
Grand Total	102,000	115,500

COLWOOD, LANGFORD OUT

Split in Saanich Merger Proposal

The areas which would make up the new metropolitan community were outlined as follows by the amalgamation planners:

The fully built-up areas comprising Oak Bay, Victoria, West Victoria, Esquimalt, View Royal and the southern portion of Saanich obviously constitute one continuous urban complex. Within this metropolitan community, the residents of existing municipalities should have an equal responsibility for their maintenance and further development. Within the boundaries of a new greater city of Victoria, there is no question that all these areas should be included."

Scant Government

It is perhaps apparent already that the institute is not prepared to recommend that the new municipality should, at this stage, encompass Langford and Colwood also. Although a portion at least of these two districts will inevitably become part of the city at some future date, their exclusion for the present can be justified on several compelling and practical grounds:

1. They possess only the barest rudiments of a local government, structure and, under existing provincial policy, there is little incentive toward self-improvement.

2. Neither area has more than a minimum level and range of municipal services.

3. The unplanned growth which has been allowed to take place makes it practically impossible to establish a city boundary for any area where population growth is sufficiently concentrated and municipal services sufficiently developed for effective administration.

4. The rugged topography immediately to the north and west of Parsons Bridge and the location of Colwood golf course, Royal Roads and the extensive gravel pits beyond have also made for a disjointed and piecemeal urban development which currently lacks any natural or practical limit.

5. The fact that Langford and Colwood are generally not recognized by local citizens as an integral part of the Greater Victoria urban area is likewise a consideration.

Most Logical

In determining the appropriate area of jurisdiction for the new city, two important questions remain. What is the most logical boundary for the new city along the fringe of the urban development in the present district of Saanich? And once this boundary has been established, what is the most acceptable and satisfactory way to protect the legitimate interests of the new municipality's citizens in the future development of the remaining portion of Saanich and of Central Saanich and also of the Langford-Colwood area?

The exact delineation of the northern boundary of the proposed new city of Greater Victoria will require a careful study and report by land surveyors. Before the work is commenced, it would be both appropriate and advisable to request the assistance of the Capital Region Planning Board and to give special consideration to any suggestions which it may wish to make. In the meantime, the institute recommends that the northern boundary for the new municipality should follow approximately the following course:

Boundary Line

- (1) From a point on Cordova Bay westward to the Patricia Bay Highway, sufficiently north of Royal Oak Avenue to control urban development along the northern side of this feeder artery;
- (2) from the Patricia Bay Highway to the West Saanich Road a short distance north of the urban concentration in the community of Royal Oak;
- (3) from the West Saanich Road in a southwesterly direction to the swamp area located in the vicinity of Ivor and Charlton Avenues;
- (4) thence south in a fairly straight line, crossing Burnside Road north of its junction with the Prospect Lake Road and continuing in a southwesterly direction slightly to the east of Burnside Road to the boundary of the Improvement District of View Royal.

Civic Boards Change

Report Gives Break-Down

LAND-USE CONTROL BOARD

The absolute necessity for an effective system of planning and land-use control extending beyond the boundaries of the new municipality has already been emphasized in this report. The need for such control is heavily underlined by the type of development which has been allowed to take place along the urban fringe up to the present time.

It is further proposed that the land-use control board, like the new city council, consist of nine members. The board would be composed of four representatives appointed by the new city of Victoria, two representatives appointed from the District of Central Saanich and the portion of Saanich which has been excluded from the new city, two representatives from the Langford-Colwood area and beyond and, as a chairman, a ninth member elected by the eight appointed members.

The Capital Region Planning Board would constitute the logical advisory planning agency to this recommended land-use control board.

OTHER INTER-MUNICIPAL BOARDS

The proposed area-wide unification of the Victoria region's municipal governments will obviously entail adjustments in the number, jurisdiction and powers of existing inter-municipal and independent boards.

SCHOOLS

In British Columbia as in other provinces, the administration of primary and secondary schools is traditionally a separate operation. The Institute would suggest, however, that the boundaries of School District No. 61 be adjusted to conform with those of the proposed new municipality as a means of simplifying public control and of providing the most logical framework for the necessary co-ordination of school and municipal policies.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Following unification, civil defence could be handled in one of two ways. The new municipal council might take the full responsibility, aided perhaps by a special advisory committee of administrative and technical personnel recruited from the wider metropolitan region. The alternative would be to continue to develop civil defence policy through an appropriate inter-municipal board.

WATER SERVICES

Under section 8 of the Greater Victoria Water District Act, the objects of the district are defined as "the acquiring, supplying and distributing of water from any source or sources for the use of the inhabitants of the district for all purposes, or for the use of adjacent areas outside the district, including any unorganized territory, or for any other use or purpose within or without the district." If the new municipality were granted a somewhat similar range of authority and responsibility, water supply and distribution could be integrated into the new administration, under the direct purview and control of the elected council. In the institute's considered opinion, however, the future administration of water supply by a semi-independent board should be avoided if at all possible.

HEALTH SERVICES

The provision of adequate health services for the new city would be handled most efficiently by a municipal health department.

LIBRARY SERVICES

A reading of section 24 of the British Columbia Public Libraries Act would seem to indicate that amalgamation would require no change in library administration. The only difference would be that the municipal member of the library board would represent the whole area included within the new municipal boundary rather than, as at present, the city of Victoria alone.

OTHER SERVICES

Maintenance and development of all local and metropolitan parks would come under the new city's parks department; the Victoria and Saanich Beaches and Parks Commission would no longer be required. And the use of the city's justice facilities by outside areas could be continued under a contractual arrangement which fully covered the city's costs.

Victoria Has 'Unique' Amalgamation Problem

Victoria's problem of amalgamation is quite different from that faced by other Canadian cities.

That's what the Toronto amalgamation surveyors claim in their study of the Greater Victoria area.

Here are some of their observations on the subject: Among the 31 metropolitan and major urban areas as defined for purposes of the 1951 Canadian census, the Greater Victoria area is unique in that the population resident outside the boundaries of the central city is greater than the population of the central city itself.

Among the metropolitan areas, the number of separate municipalities included within any single one is frequently much greater than in Victoria's case. In the Greater Montreal area, for example, there are no less than 50 municipalities included under the DBS listing. It might be said, however, that the number in the Victoria area is fairly typical of a Canadian metropolis of its size. It should be noted, moreover, that there is a tendency for new jurisdictions to be formed as the growth of the metropolitan area goes forward. The partitioning of the old Saanich into the two municipalities of Saanich and Central Saanich is a case in point.

Can't Profit From Experience of Others

On the other hand, it is quite unusual within the Dominion of Canada for suburban areas within a metropolitan community to exist as unorganized territories coming under the paternal administration of the province for local government purposes. There is a somewhat similar situation in the metropolitan area of St. John's, Newfoundland, and a partial parallel is found also in the Greater Vancouver area. But Victoria's position is sufficiently unique to prevent it from profiting by the experience in other metropolitan areas in dealing with this particular complicating factor.

The major cause of what is commonly termed the metropolitan problem is urban growth. At any one time, the difficulties created by divided jurisdiction are in part determined by the rate at which growth is proceeding and the pattern that such growth is assuming. Difficulties may also have been built up by a rapid rate of growth earlier which has piled up a backlog of municipal service requirements. Likewise the anticipated rate of growth in the future has a direct bearing upon the boldness of the plans that ought to be considered for solving the metropolitan problem.

Between 1941 and 1951, what the census defines as the Victoria metropolitan area increased in population by 38 per cent. While the figure quoted is reasonably accurate, the definition of the area is deficient in that it leaves out that by portion of the real metropolitan area which lies within unorganized territories. A further point is that the rate of growth within the municipal components of the census area itself were by no means even. The City of Victoria grew by only 16 1/2 per cent between the two census years. Thus the overall average of more than double the rate in the city proper was accounted for the much higher rates of growth in the three surrounding municipalities.

The overall rate of population growth between 1951 and 1954 has continued strong. Yet the growth has dropped off sharply in Esquimalt since 1951 and has slowed down considerably in Oak Bay. In other words, the current expansion is taking place primarily in Saanich and in the unorganized territories.

A comparison with other metropolitan areas gives added perspective. The Victoria metropolitan area as defined for census purposes has been expanding more rapidly than certain metropolitan areas, particularly in the Maritime Provinces, but less rapidly than some of the great metropolitan areas in other parts of Canada. At the same time, Greater Victoria has been sharing the experience of all metropolitan areas in Canada in growing faster than the overall rate of growth throughout the country or even the rate of growth in most smaller urban centres.

Over and above the particular rate and pattern of population growth, the proportions of the problems of arterial road and public transit services within a metropolitan area are related to the intensity of shuttle movement of people and goods throughout the area. How much of the shuttle movement exists and the extent to which it is concentrated in rush-hour periods is determined very largely by the economic base of the metropolis.

Greater Victoria is distinctive in this respect in the extent to which it is dependent upon the tourist industry, in the existence of substantial establishments of both the federal and provincial governments and in the attraction it holds as a residential area for retired people of independent means. Its island location rules the metropolis out as a major manufacturing or distributing centre. The Victoria area has, it is true, built up a number of extractive industries based particularly upon the forest resources of the island. But it cannot hope to compete with the city of Vancouver either as a manufacturing and distributing centre or as an ocean port.

Tourist Car Travel Cut

What is the effect of Greater Victoria's particular economic base upon the shuttle movement of goods and services? Ordinarily, we might expect the tourist industry to bring a great many cars into the metropolis. In point of fact, however, the number is cut down sharply because automobiles have to be brought by ferry from mainland ports in British Columbia or the State of Washington. The small proportion of major manufacturing and the lack of large-scale distributing activities both reduce the overall movement of goods. Governmental establishments are so located that their employees do not necessarily have long trips to and from work. Again, not all the establishments in question are concentrated in a single downtown area. Retired people make less use of the streets than office or factory workers during rush-hour periods. By timing their trips to the stores, they are in a position to avoid contributing to traffic congestion. A further feature is that, except for vehicles carried by ferry, location at the end of a peninsula eliminates all through traffic from and to other centres. In summary, traffic and transit problems—which some people in the Greater Victoria area may regard as quite serious—would be viewed as no problem at all in other large metropolitan areas where lengthy tie-ups have become a daily occurrence.

The metropolitan co-ordination which now exists

Co-Operative Arrangements Are Limited

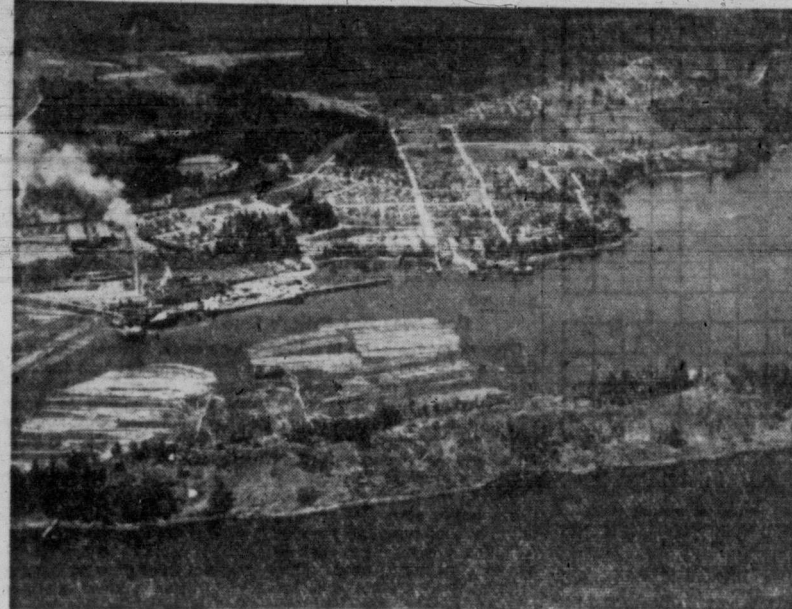

A further point is that co-operative arrangements and inter-municipal boards do not meet all the problems of divided jurisdiction. This limitation can best be illustrated by a number of examples from the Victoria area itself.

The construction and maintenance of roads, except for those arteries which are exclusively a provincial responsibility, is undertaken almost entirely through the separate action of the individual municipalities. Work on municipal boundary roads has involved a limited amount of inter-municipal co-operation but, according to the Institute's information, uniformity in policy and scheduling on these roads has on occasion been far from adequate.

As long as the present municipal boundaries are continued, the City of Victoria will bear the full local responsibility for maintenance and eventual replacement of the Point Ellice and Johnson Street bridges. Since, strictly speaking, these bridges link two sections of the city itself, an inter-municipal arrangement is scarcely a likely development. Yet the bridges are of direct benefit to citizens throughout the metropolitan area and beyond, while, to the residents of Esquimalt at least, they are a virtual necessity. A similar type of situation is currently developing in the District of Saanich. There is a growing need for an east-west traffic artery across the lower portion of the district. Such an artery would undoubtedly be useful to the residents of Oak Bay and of some considerable value to the whole metropolitan area. With the present municipal structure, the District of Saanich alone must bear the responsibility.

Problem of Metropolitan-Wide Importance

Over the next 20 years, the City of Victoria anticipates the necessity of extensive improvements to its storm sewer system. It is possible that an east-west storm sewer across the northern portion of the city, providing drainage for parts of Saanich and Oak Bay as well, would prove a more economical investment or at least warrant a higher priority than re-development of some of the city's present system. Barring another inter-municipal agreement, however, the launching of such an undertaking is inhibited by divided jurisdiction.

GIVING BOYS LIFT COST MOTORIST $20

NANAIMO—Eric Pennington, 20, assured Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts that he will no longer help out hitch-hikers. It cost him $20 on a technical charge of being a minor in possession of liquor.

He said he gave a lift to three boys from Ladysmith. Two helped the third out of the car in Nanaimo as he was under the influence and left behind a jug of wine, partly full.

Pennington's mistake, he admitted, was in later saying "I guess so," when asked by police if the wine was his.

He said he did so to keep the other boys out of trouble.

3-Year, 2-Year Prison Terms For Indecency

DUNCAN (CP)—Two men were sentenced to prison terms here Thursday on charges of gross indecency.

William Jerry Pletz, 20, of Bowser, received a two-year prison term and was led sobbing from the court, while Bernard Emerson, about 40, of Fanny Bay, was given three years in jail by acting police magistrate R. K. Barnes.

The offence was committed in an auto court here June 11.

METHOD STILL PROBLEM

Saltair Will Get Water

LADYSMITH—Ladysmith city council, by unanimous vote, Wednesday night agreed to supply Saltair district with water. Decision on the method and terms was deferred, however, pending recommendations from A. R. Colby, consulting engineer.

There are two alternative methods for the council to consider, the latest being one submitted by the Saltair water board at a special meeting with the council Monday evening.

Basic points in this latest proposal are:

1. Saltair would construct a new 12-inch welded steel pipeline from Stocking Lake to the city's reservoir and would extend the intake further into Stocking Lake to a minimum depth of 29 feet.
2. Saltair would raise the money to pay the entire cost of this new pipeline, estimated at approximately $36,000, and would recover 50 per cent of the cost from the city in free water.
3. Title to the new pipeline would be turned over to the city as soon as it was completed.

If this proposal is adopted, the Saltair Water Board would dispense with a 4,000,000-gallon reservoir which it originally proposed to build adjoining the city reservoir. Cost of this reservoir was estimated at $24,000.

Decision that the city should agree in principle to supply water to Saltair was made on

Ladysmith Hospital Assured

LADYSMITH—Construction of a new hospital here was assured Wednesday night when tenders for the building were opened and found to be well within the $300,000 available for the project.

Letting of the actual contract will culminate two and one-half years of work by local residents to replace the aged frame building serving as Ladysmith General Hospital.

Six construction firms submitted tenders and the basic figures ranged from a low of $236,761 quoted by A. & B. Construction Co. Ltd. of Nanaimo, to a high of $239,670 from Ward & Son Ltd. of New Westminster.

To be on the safe side, the board had asked for the basic tenders and had also asked for quotations on a number of additional installations and had asked the tenderers to quote deductions on a list of things that could be omitted if the basic figures were too high.

D. Wagg, representing the architects, will analyze the various bids to determine what the totals will be with the additions included. At a rough estimate these additions will not total more than $10,000, which would bring the lowest bid up to $246,700, still well below the figure the board had anticipated.

Rifles, Tents, Prizes For Soap Box Derby

PORT ALBERNI—Gyro Club of the Alberni once again will sponsor the 10th annual soap box derby here July 2 on the Third Avenue course.

Youngsters will race their coasters for prizes to include rifles, tents, sleeping bags, and all other types of sport equipment.

All events and prizes can be won by any contestant, either senior or junior.

Regulation soap box derby rules will be observed, with the drivers limited in age from 11 to 15 years.

Although the event conflicts with the B.C. championship at Mission City, also to be held July 2, winners here will be sent to Mission City the following year. Winner of the main event is eligible to race for the world championship at Akron, Ohio.

Inco metals at work in Canada

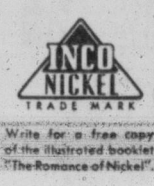

We ordinarily speak of automobile bumpers, grilles, hubcaps and bright metal trim as being "chrome-plated". Actually, these parts are plated with both nickel and chromium—a heavy coating of nickel covered with a thin layer of chromium. All the nickel used for plating auto parts and other products of Canadian industry is Inco nickel—mined, milled, smelted and refined in Canada.

Almost two million pounds of Inco Nickel will help brighten Canadian cars in 1956

... more jobs for Canadians

1. Nickel-bearing ores are mined by Inco workmen. The ore is milled and smelted at Inco's plants near Sudbury, Ontario. Final refining is done at Inco's plant in Port Colborne, Ontario. About 18,000 men and women work for Inco in Canada.
 2. Inco nickel is sold to Canadian companies where Canadian workmen produce anodes for the plating trade.
 3. These anodes are used by other companies for electroplating bumpers, grilles, hub caps and other bright metal parts for cars—thus helping to provide employment for more Canadians.
- This year, almost 2 million pounds of Inco nickel will be used for plating on Canadian cars. In addition, Inco nickel is used by Canadian industries to manufacture hundreds of useful products.

Halloween Bomb Blew Hands Off, But Lad, 18, Will Be Draftsman

BURNABY—After 18-year-old apprentice to become a draftsman, Bob Lagerstrom gets his graduation diploma at Burnaby North High School on Friday, he'll

He is adept at drawing and he wields an eloquent paint brush so it should be easy for him to master the intricate tricks of draftsmanship. It should be easy, but very likely it won't be. You see, Bob Lagerstrom has no hands. He lost them when a home-made bomb exploded in the backyard garage at his home at 4159 East Georgia, on Oct. 31, 1954. Flesh and bone disintegrated in a blinding flash and today he faces the future with scarred stumps that end at the wrists. His working "hand" at school is a metal clamp that straps on his right arm, enabling him to pick up small articles readily. He also has one artificial hand with a movable thumb and is waiting for the other to be properly fitted.

"I'm a year later than I should be because of my foolish experiment with gunpowder, but I'll tell you this," he said. "Grade twelve has been my happiest year in high school. I didn't engage in sports, but I went to every one of the class dances and I didn't have the nerve to do that before."

DIVORCED—The storybook marriage of singing star Jane Froman ended in court Thursday when she divorced the airline pilot who saved her life in a crash in Portugal 12 years ago. She accused John Curtis Burn, her second husband, of desertion.

Symphony Granted $2,500—Subject to Cabinet Action

$1,700 for Arts Centre Included In Total Council Gifts of $23,325

Civic grants totalling $23,325 were approved by Victoria council Thursday. For the first time, Victoria Symphony Society was included in the gift list. But the stipulated $2,500 grant must await action by the provincial government.

Under the Municipal Act, councils may not make grants to organizations such as the symphony, but application will be made by the city for special permission in view of the belief such permission will be included in revisions to the act expected next spring.

Other grants, mostly patterned after council action in 1953, were made as follows: The Arts Centre of Greater Victoria, $1,700; Young Women's Christian Association, $2,500; Young Men's Christian Association, $3,500; Sara Spencer Foundation, $2,000; Greater Victoria Celebrations Association, $3,000; Aged Women's Home, $4,150; Community Chest of Greater Victoria, $2,000; Boy Scouts Association, $200; Navy League of Canada, $1,250; Girl Guides Association, $300; Legion of Frontiersmen, $200; Victoria City Police Revolver Club, $25.

MACMILLAN OBJECTS

The decision to make a grant to the symphony was reached over objection by Ald. Robert Macmillan. He said only charities should be included in the list of grants and moved $10,000 be added to the allotment for Community Chest. There was no second to his motion.

... why not support the symphony? His point was that every recreational dollar spent is enjoyed by some minority group. He added that the symphony was facing a large deficit this year. Ald. Geoffrey Edgell pointed out that most of the grants listed were made to organizations who pay property taxes and the grant was made because it is not possible under provincial law to exempt them from the tax rolls.

ROYAL CAR UNSOLD —BIDS TOO LOW

A number of motorists in Victoria and Vancouver have submitted tenders for a 1951 Lincoln sedan used by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh during their visit to Victoria in 1951.

So far none of the tenders has been accepted and it is possible none will be as they are considered "Too low."

The car was seized by B.C. Forest Service in lieu of debt recently and advertised for sale. Closing date for tenders was last Tuesday.

"We are still looking them over," a Forest Service spokesman said, "but so far none has been accepted. It is possible the car may be advertised again."

H-BOMB FALLOUT NO DANGER TO HEALTH SAYS MINISTER

OTTAWA (CP)—There is no reason to believe that the health of Canadians or people of any other country has been affected by nuclear tests to the point of causing concern, Health Minister Martin said Thursday.

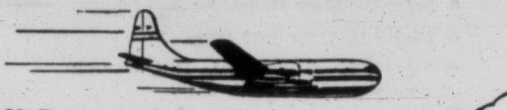

In a Commons reply to Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), he said the health department and other federal agencies are constantly making assessments to determine the extent of radioactivity levels produced by such tests.

Mr. Martin said Canada has agreed with the United States, the United Kingdom and France that banning nuclear tests would be desirable if it could be done without endangering the West's security.

NANAIMO—An 18-year-old who made himself at home in a hotel room without registering pleaded guilty in police court here to a charge of vagrancy, and was fined $5 and $5 costs by Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts.

The accused, John Albert Rose of Surrey, had been released from Oakalla recently, and told the court had quit a job in the woods on the mainland because the work was "too hard."

"If you are not prepared to work, you had better get off the island fast," he was told by the magistrate.

Teachers at Pr. George Now B.C.'s Best Paid

(From the Canadian Press) PRINCE GEORGE—A new salary contract which will make teachers in Prince George school district the highest paid in B.C. has been approved by trustees of District 57.

It will go into effect next September for a 16-month period. The salary scale will provide increases of up to $700 a year for some classifications of teachers and will cost taxpayers an additional $90,000 during the 1956-57 school year.

Average starting salary of $2,800 for a beginning book-keeper or stenographer with high school graduation and some college training was used to arrive at the starting salary of a teacher with junior matriculation and one year of normal college training.

Each additional step up the scale, determined by the teacher's certification and years of experience, is recognized with a $200 annual increase.

LAD REALLY IN THE HOLE; POLICE TO THE RESCUE

City police pried a north Douglas youngster out of post hole Thursday evening after he became stuck while playing.

Rescued and taken home was seven-year-old Richard Chase, 3116 Steele, who became wedged in a four-foot-deep hole dug in the 2900 block Douglas for erection of a billboard.

His plight was reported by a passing woman to men at No. 3 firehall who called police.

Police dug earth from around the boy's knees to release him. There were 14 uncovered holes, 12 inches in diameter, left in the lot by the workmen.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

As the old saying goes, I don't care what you say about me as long as you get my name right.

... so I was much intrigued to read an item in another newspaper about the forthcoming Swiftsure yacht race. It made reference to Bucanier III, a yacht formerly owned by—I quote—Schubert Wallace.

Wonder if "Schubert" sold her because she was developing a list? (I hope Hubert appreciates good music.)

But I shouldn't make snide remarks. Errors can creep in anywhere, even into such a hot-bed of accuracy as Between Times.

The other day I ventured a kindly remark about m'pals, Barney and John Olson of the Strathcona.

In the paper, it came out "Alson."

Ah, well, chalk up an "A" for effort.

And hand out another "A" plus a gold star, to Toronto swimmer Ted Simmons.

When our Tony Dickason was chatting with Ted the other day, Tony asked the usual question: "Why are you going to try the Strait?"

But did Ted give the usual answer, namely "It's a challenge?"

No.

Ted said "I hope to make something out of it."

I never thought I'd live to see the day, but I did.

Dialogue for a dull day: "Mr. Interlocutor, why does a Strait swimmer cross the Strait?"

"I don't know, Mr. Bones. Why DOES a Strait swimmer cross the Strait?"

"To get to the other side."

Yuk yuk yuk.

Alan Wilson, editor of the Gyro Club bulletin, is out of town on business (he says) and he had better hurry home.

The pro-tem editor, who modestly signs himself merely as "Bob," perpetrated this in the current issue:

A race track enthusiast told his wife "The darndest thing happened to me at the races this afternoon. I was bending down to tie my shoe laces, when some near-sighted stable hand slapped a saddle on me."

"What did you do?" asked his wife.

"What could I do?" complained the husband. "I came in third."

As I said, come home, Alan.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Three new cases of infantile botulism were treated at Jubilee Hospital emergency Thursday night. The youngsters had their stomachs pumped and were released. Two earlier cases are still being treated after being taken to hospital this week.

As yet, no infantile botulism cases have been reported at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The infantile botulism season will last until about mid-August.

Advance party of one officer and 32 men from Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada leaves Saturday at 2:10 p.m. via ferry and rail for Camp Wainwright, Alta., where the battalion will hold six weeks' summer camp.

Main body of troops will leave Camp Gordon Head next Wednesday, with many returning to Victoria for leave early in August. The rest will take annual leave from Wainwright and be back here in mid-September.

The advance party is in command of Capt. Fred Coe.

Dale Carnegie Club International will hold a dinner meeting at the Glenis Hotel Monday, starting at 7:15 p.m. The program will be arranged and produced by members of the Duncan club.

Royal Oak motorist Thomas R. Flynn, 4881 Townsend, undertook in Saanich court Thursday to drive only for business purposes for the next 12 months. He was previously convicted of impaired driving June 8 on West Saanich road and fined $250.

Police said his car went out of control after sideswiping another car, ran up a bank and through a fence.

L. M. Newbuer, Camp Gordon Head, was fined $25 in Saanich police court Thursday for driving without a driver's licence.

Canadian Mental Health Association discussion group will meet Tuesday at 1530 Pandora avenue, Oak Bay junction, instead of at 2240 McNeill avenue, as previously announced.

Three juveniles were fined $10 each in Victoria RCMP court today when convicted of carrying firearms without a licence at Durant Lake.

A game department officer picked up the trio at a camp they had made during the recent forest closure. He asked them if they had any guns and they said they did not, but he found rifles rolled up in their blankets.

NEW TEACHER PLAN

Last Class Graduates Under Old System

By DINAH KERR

The mood was nostalgic, reminiscent, and optimistic Thursday night as members of the largest and last graduating class of the Provincial Normal School gathered with faculty and parents for the final graduation banquet.

Speaking at Central Junior High School, Franklin P. Levis, chief inspector of schools for B.C., told the students "the traditions of the school are not passing, but will coalesce with Victoria College to build one vital institution. This is not absorption, but union."

This fall a two-year teacher training program will be introduced in the College of Education at Victoria College, replacing the one-year program offered at the Normal School. To obtain a bachelor of education degree, students must complete a five-year course.

The new teachers are joining one of the best trained and experienced teaching bodies in Canada, Mr. Levis said. As indication of this province's progress in education, he noted that 36.2 per cent of B.C. teachers have university degrees, as compared to an average of 29 per cent in other provinces.

British Columbia also has the least turnover in teaching staff, and ranks first in the most varied experience.

"The new college of education should do even more to add to the prestige of teachers in this province," he said.

Miss Tannis Killough, 20, Castlegar, B.C., was announced winner of the Denton Memorial for "best all-round student" by Dr. J. F. K. English, assistant deputy minister of education.

Winner of the Maxwell Cameron memorial prize for scholarship was Miss Rosalind Franz, Osoyoos, B.C. She received her award from J. Phillipson, president, B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Sixteen honor students, all women, were presented to Dr. English.

They were Misses Ruth Donaldson, Rosie Franz, Mavis Jowsey, Tannis Killough, Donna Landers, Shirley Lynch, Joan Miller, Evelyn Mout, Jacqueline Ormond, Margaret Royce, Frances Smigol, Kathleen Thornberry, Violet Tonzeitch, Sister Mary Jeanine, Sister Ellen Maureen and Sister Mary Dolores.

Valedictorian was Gerald Guest.

Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today the government is not prepared to take action to remedy the acute shortage of cattle fodder reported by Vancouver Island dairymen and mainland farm organizations.

"We shall await the findings of a joint committee which has been set up by the Fraser Valley Farmers' Institute and kindred organizations," Mr. Kiernan said.

"While the situation was critical a week ago, it is possible the recent rains may have changed the picture somewhat."

Mr. Kiernan returned to Victoria today after hearing representations from Fraser Valley farmers at a meeting in New Westminster organized by the Fraser Valley Municipal Association.

Earlier the Vancouver Island Association supported the B.C. Federation of Agriculture in its efforts to secure government aid, and circulated a questionnaire among members asking them to state their present needs.

"The results of this questionnaire are now being tabulated," Mr. Kiernan said, "and the government will consider it in conjunction with the findings of the committee."

In Victoria last week the B.C. Federation of Agriculture held a closed meeting with government officials and stated afterwards that the current feed situation was one of "extreme emergency."

The money will come from his sponsors, Bee Hive corn syrup and Bulova.

The 172-pound swimmer will make his bid at 5 a.m. Saturday from the point, 18 miles west of Race Rocks.

"We aren't interested in getting to Port Angeles," Mellors said. "We're interested in getting to the other side."

"Ted is going to work with the currents, not against them. He definitely will get across, and I estimate nine hours."

The Scottish coach said Simmons would get almost all the money if he made the swim. For himself, he said, "I'm only interested in swimming. I want to build an Olympic pool in Toronto to train champions."

Toronto now politics comes into sports and I want nothing to do with that."

Mellors quoted co-navigator Alf Webb as saying he (Webb) was taking the course he had always wanted to on previous swims, but didn't because local opinion was against it.

Order by Cabinet Ruled Insufficient

The drive for a six-day shopping week in Victoria today received a severe setback.

A municipal affairs department spokesman said the longer business week for some store categories cannot be effected by order in council—as claimed by six-day week boosters.

"It would require an amendment to the Shops Regulation and Weekly Holidays Act," the spokesman said, pointing out the act was amended previously to permit six-day shopping in Vancouver.

THIS MEANS NO CHANGE can be brought about at least until the Legislature sits again next year.

On Thursday city council unanimously endorsed a brief presented by the six-day shopping week committee and authorized Mayor Scourrah to approach the provincial cabinet for the passage of an order in council bringing about six-day operation of stores in almost every field of retailing.

The brief was presented by city lawyer Alan Baker and signed by chairman of the committee, J. Harold Wilson.

Newly Ordained Priest to Sing First High Mass

Rev. Joseph Ayling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Ayling, 812 Lamson street, will sing his first solemn high mass Sunday at Queen of Peace Church, Old Esquimalt road.

He was ordained last Sunday at Camrose, Alta.

Fr. Ayling will be assisted at the mass by Archbishop Joseph Charbonneau and members of the local clergy. Most Rev. Bishop James M. Hill, Bishop of Victoria, will preach the sermon.

After mass a dinner will be served in the parish hall by members of the Catholic Women's League.

Born in Vegreville, Fr. Ayling was educated in Vermillion and Camrose, then spent two years in the navy.

'WAIT AND SEE'

Leading Citizens Ponder Report

Public reaction to sweeping recommendations of the Chamber of Commerce amalgamation report was a "wait and see" attitude, a survey of opinions from civic leaders, business men and citizens revealed today.

No one took a definite stand for or against the report. The general opinion was that the report should be carefully studied and discussed by all municipalities before any action is taken to submit the amalgamation proposal to the people.

The prospect of higher taxes was the main concern of the residents of Saanich and Oak Bay.

Mayor Percy Scourrah felt the "reasoning behind the report was fundamentally sound."

"The report is comprehensive in its scope and is going to require a great deal of study," he stated.

He said he did not know yet what effect amalgamation would have on the individual taxpayer. "This will only be known when we have studied the report further," he said.

"As for the method of bringing amalgamation," he added, "I haven't been able to decide yet whether the report states clearly the way this should be brought about."

SYMPATHETIC

Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash said he was "sympathetic towards the proposal for an overall government, and advocated a careful study of the report."

"For anyone to say the report is prejudiced only reveals their own prejudice and opposition to the spirit of co-operation and understanding which seems to be sorely needed in this community," he said. "Let us approach this problem with common sense and determination."

Oak Bay Reeve Fred-Norris said he wanted to study the report before making a definite comment.

He said he didn't like the way the report "steers away from the financial problem. This is the biggest stumbling block."

"Personally, I don't think it will make much difference to the average ratepayer if we have amalgamation or not," he said.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said the plan might be feasible, but the whole matter would first have to be carefully studied.

"We are ready to listen to reason and to co-operate," he said.

Forrest L. Shaw, chairman of the joint amalgamation committee of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce, described the report as excellent.

"I don't say everything will be accepted," he said. "But it is a start and something we can work on."

He said the most serious matter will be the effect of taxation on other municipalities. "It might mean higher taxation for some municipalities for a brief period, but in the long run the outer municipalities may benefit," he said. "This is one of the problems which will have to be studied."

Mr. Shaw said he was pleased the report is strongly against federation of municipalities with a superimposed group on top of autonomous individual groups.

The appointments of metropolitan boards whittles down the responsibilities of the elected representatives," he said. "They are tax gatherers and are not responsible for collecting the money or its expenditure. That's why I favor the formation of a new corporation."

UNPOPULAR?

Kenneth R. Genn, chairman of the Saanich Town Planning Commission, said amalgamation "might be economically sound in some respects, but if it has the effect of doubling the tax rate in Saanich, it would be very unpopular with ratepayers."

Duncan McTavish, former city councillor and a resident of View Royal, said residents of his community at present are opposed to amalgamation.

"They are satisfied to remain under the government," he said. "Their views might change after the matter has been discussed and carefully studied. That remains to be seen."

Mr. McTavish said, however, he felt the three municipalities should join with Victoria to form a new corporation. "Such a form of government would be fair and beneficial to all the municipalities," he said.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said the report was a good basis for continued study.

"The report will have to be carefully studied," he said.

EINAR GUNDERSON
P.G.E. GENERAL MANAGER
... hears hat talk

Hot Talk, Hat Talk as Gundy, Boss Trade Denials

An angry exchange of denials involving the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, Railways Minister Ralph Chetwynd, PGE general manager E. M. Gunderson—and a hat—flew back and forth between Victoria and Vancouver Thursday afternoon and today.

It went this way: Vancouver, Thursday, 2 p.m. Railways Minister Chetwynd was reported to have revealed plans for a $180,000, 000 extension of the PGE to the Yukon and Alaska.

Vancouver, 3 p.m.: PGE President Gunderson was quoted as saying his boss, the minister, was "talking through one of his hats."

Chetwynd denied the minister had any immediate plans for extending the PGE to the Yukon and Alaska.

He said the report apparently stemmed from the fact there are engineering men north of Fort St. John. They are deciding whether, if the rail link should ever be extended, it should be along the line of the present Alaska Highway or via the Rocky Mountain Trench.

had made such a statement, he was talking through one of his hats. I did not believe he had made it and Mr. Chetwynd has since confirmed that he did not."

Mr. Chetwynd was attending a meeting on the mainland today and could not be reached for his opinion on the hat reference.

But in an interview Thursday he denied that the government had any immediate plans for extending the PGE to the Yukon and Alaska.

He said the report apparently stemmed from the fact there are engineering men north of Fort St. John. They are deciding whether, if the rail link should ever be extended, it should be along the line of the present Alaska Highway or via the Rocky Mountain Trench.

The same extension story was denied by Premier Bennett, last February. At that time he said the government had no extension plans but it was conceivable that such a rail line would ultimately materialize. He added the government could not undertake such an extension on its own.

"At the moment," Mr. Chetwynd said, "we are making preliminary surveys to find out if it would be feasible to extend the line up into the Yukon."

"Field engineers are now studying possible roads through the Yukon Territory and will report back on the conditions they find. We are also making economic studies between Fort St. John and the Yukon to discover what traffic would be available if we were to extend the line up there."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Prices Rise, Prices Fall
In Our Local Food Markets

By PENNY SAVER

Some prices have gone up a bit, and others have taken a welcomed dip on local food markets. Displays are spilling over with fresh vegetables and fruit, much of which has been grown right on the island. Depending on the size of the berries strawberries are priced at 55, 59 or 65 cents for two boxes. Last week they were 35 cents a box, so no matter what size you choose, the price has dropped considerably. On the other hand, though, peaches from California were three for a quarter last week, but are now three for 29 cents. Cantaloupe has dropped to 25 cents, and sweet and rich California apricots are yours at 35 cents a pound. Locally grown rhubarb is selling at four pounds for a quarter, and plums are 38 cents a pound.

The tomatoes were piled so high and precariously in one of the markets that I visited, I was afraid that they'd be rolling all over the sidewalk if anyone should bump the display. But I can't blame the storekeepers for wanting to show off the bright and tasty toms, 'cause they're really top quality and bursting with goodness. Hot-house variety are 29 cents a pound, while desserts are two pounds for 45 cents. These dropped a nickel this week.

Local cucumbers are cheaper, too. They were a quarter each, and are now two for 35 cents. Lettuce from local farms cost 15 cents each, and spinach is two pounds for 25 cents.

Carrots are two bunches for 25 cents, and celery, a little higher priced than last week, is 25 cents a stalk. Fresh peas, locally grown, have dropped three cents, and are now 27 cents a pound, while new potatoes have gone the other way, and are up from three pounds for a quarter to three pounds for 29 cents. Radishes and green onions are still 15 cents for two bunches. Red cabbage that tastes so good pickled or not, costs 29 cents for two pounds. Seedless cukes are a quarter each, and asparagus is 29 cents a pound.

While we're thinking of shopping for foods, now is the time for me to tell you about the handy shopping carts in town. Oh, they're not for you, mother, but for the small fry who would ordinarily be under foot while you're trying to shop.

Instead of a hindrance on shopping day, perhaps the tiny Miss could be a bit of a help. The shopping cart made of black metal is just like the one mommy has (or wants), and will carry the groceries that the little helper has collected. Lightweight, it's easy for the child to push. It costs $1.

Call me at 2-3131 for information about foods or other items mentioned in the column.

A CAC Fact

Did you ever consider a list of the small services the Canadian Association of Consumers has rendered in its short history? The pink gauze is gone from the peaches; the red stripes have left the bacon; the weight of the contents is marked on the soap packages. The design and usefulness of household articles and of toys is improving. There is more information on labels on fabrics. Stockings often have the length marked at the top.

WYNNE SHAW STUDIO 'STARS OF TOMORROW'

In the annual revue to be presented in the Royal Theatre on Monday evening, glittering sea waves, a sea horse, and sea maidens, will dance around a large shell which opens to reveal a nymph with a pearl in her hands.

In a ballet which begins and ends in poses of famed paintings of ballet dancers by Degas, will appear John Hodder and Vivian Boggs, and John Fraser and Sheila Mackinnon. Special interest will also be shown in a Bach number "The White Ballet", in which well-known dancers, Rae Evenden Burns, Pat Sparks Olson and Marie Maggiora will appear. Sponsors of the revue are Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie and Royal Roads Chapters of the IODE.

Floral Baskets Deck Church At Wedding

Delphiniums and pink peonies in standard baskets were placed at the front of St. John's Anglican Church for the wedding, Wednesday evening, of Louella Marie Claire Goulet, daughter of Mrs. L. Goulet, of Keating, B.C., to Roland Jack Stacey, elder son of Capt. and Mrs. W. R. Stacey, Musgrave Street, Victoria. Canon George Biddle conducted the service and the bride's cousin, Ralph McNeill, gave her in marriage.

A gown of white satin and nylon tulle with full ballerina-length skirt and fitted bodice topped by a lace jacket was worn by the charming bride. Her circular fingertip wedding veil was held by a tiny bandeau hat of pleated lace, touched with sequins and mother of pearl. She carried pink roses and white carnations in her bouquet and her jewelry was a pendant of amethyst and pearls, which had been worn by the groom's mother on her wedding day.

Bridesmaid Mrs. C. J. Roberts wore a gown of green nylon net over taffeta with butterfly appliques of sequins and pearls. Bridesmaids Miss Barbara Hague and Miss Lila Flett were gowned in mauve and yellow, respectively. Their dresses were styled similarly to the bridesmaid's. All attendants carried bouquets of pink carnations trimmed with ribbon to match their gowns.

Richard Nortons was best man and ushers were Douglas Bavington and C. J. Phillips.

Reception was held in the lower lounge of the Empress Hotel, where the young couple cut a three-tier wedding cake. Mrs. W. F. Lloyd proposed the toast to the bride.

For her honeymoon trip, the bride donned a blue wool suit with pink hat and accessories.

Public Ownership Of Power Urged

Royal Commission Sought By Island Ratepayers' Group

NANAIMO—A resolution urging that ownership and operation of all power projects in the province be taken over by the B.C. Power Commission will be forwarded to the provincial cabinet by the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association.

The resolution also asks that a royal commission be established to investigate hydroelectric power in the province.
The resolutions were adopted
at a meeting here Thursday,
sponsored by the VIRA and open to the public, called to hear arguments for and against the new rate structure of the power commission that will increase rates in certain categories.

STRONG BRIEF

Strongest brief of all was submitted by Jack Moore, representing IWA Local 1-85 in Port Alberni, that claimed there was a conspiracy to "undermine the power commission and allow its assets, dams, and power lines
to be handed over to private power interests." It was his organization that asked for the royal commission investigation.
He claimed the B.C. Electric

Rugged Trade Talks Face PMs Conference

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Preliminary soundings suggest that the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opening in London June 27 may be the liveliest since the gatherings were inaugurated 12 years ago.

Australia, beset by balance-of-payments difficulties, has made plain she is going to press for tough talks on trade, perhaps to the point of suggesting a revamping of the tariff agreements reached at the Ottawa conference of 1932.

Initially, Australia's biggest grievances will be directed against Britain. Communications with Whitehall have been bitter about Britain's apparent preference for Argentine over Australian wheat.
The same preference has been noted for hard Canadian wheat over the soft Australian variety, but in the case of Canada there might be a willingness to admit the superior Canadian quality.

As for the Ottawa agreements, the Australians have one particular worry. The tariffs they grant to Britain are calculated on a percentage basis, whereas Britain's discounts to Australia, figured as specific duties, have declined in value in a period of rising prices.

POLICY PROBLEM

Australia would like to have a population of 21,000,000 before the end of the century and this policy, coupled with her special stress on development of secondary industries, has made it hard for her to pay her way in the world.

Canadian officials would likely feel that Australia has invested too much in secondary industries and immigration instead of concentrating on ways of making export products more competitive by efficient farming techniques, and so on.

"It may be broadly true that the Australians, having started on this road, now prefer a discriminatory setup for trade whereby we would say let's sell on an open market," one Canadian official said.

The Australian view has been emerging as a series of rumblings from Melbourne, prompting London observers to anticipate some fireworks, one official was quoted as saying. "The Australians will set them off, the Canadians will do the jumping and Prime Minister Eden will try to take away the matches."

Shawnigan Man Hurt in Train-Carrier Collision

DUNCAN (CP)—Ian Cudlipp,
18, of Shawnigan Lake, is in
"good condition" in King's Daughters' Hospital with a frac-
ankle following an accident
Wednesday morning in which the lumber carrier he was driving was struck by a freight train in Koksilah.

Dermot Moore, fireman of the freight train, said he saw the carrier stop at the crossing and then proceed across the track.

Cudlipp was pinned beneath the carrier after it was thrown some distance by the impact of the train. A lumber stacker was used to lift the carrier
from his body.

The carrier was reported to be a total loss.

Cop Who Inspired Dragnet Visits Here

BY TONY DICKASON. bothers me, and that's when a
He certainly didn't look like small child is killed, otherwise a cop whose beat is "The City." it's a job," he said.

But Lee Jones has been 27
years with the Los Angeles
"this is the city" police department, immortalized weekly by TV's Dragnet.

Mr. Lee has seen more violent death, mangled corpses and general mayhem than Madam Tussaud's wax museum. And he's a quiet, professor-like personage, aged 60.

Mr. Lee was, in fact, instrumental in starting the famed TV presentation of Mr. Monotone, Jack Webb.

"I got the idea from Lee
Jones," Webb is quoted.
And today the legitimate policeman aids and abets Webb's presentations from a police technical viewpoint.

CRIMINALISTICS

Mr. Jones is a forensic chemist. His field is called "crim-inalistics" which is identification or comparison of physical evidence for presentation in courts
of law.

Probably because of his close association with Dragnet's Webb,
Mr. Jones said presentations are
"very accurate." The program uses legitimate L.A. police department names, including that of Mr. Jones.

He, incidentally, has identi-

HOW THE CITY WOULD GROW BY CONSOLIDATION

Rough sketch shows the new City of Victoria proposed by municipal experts in report for Chamber of Commerce. City would take in all Oak Bay and Esquimalt, all View Royal district and the southern part of Saanich, approximately out to 5-mile circle from Victoria City Hall. Top arc indicates new boundary.

Mica Creek Talks Set Here July 4

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Lesage said today he will confer in Victoria July 4 with Premier Bennett of British Columbia on planned Canada-United States talks on control of waters flowing across the international boundary.

Canada and the U.S. announced May 23 that control of these waters is to be examined by the two governments for the first time in 46 years. Main object of the study is to find a solution to apparent problems which have arisen in development of the St. John River in New Brunswick, the Columbia in British Columbia and the Yukon River.

Mr. Lesage said May 23 he planned a full discussion with Premier Bennett June 5. Federal officials said Thursday the meeting would be held June 25, but Mr. Lesage stated today the conference has been postponed until July 4.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia confirmed here Thursday night he will meet Resources Minister Lesage in Victoria July 4 for preliminary discussions concerning development of a $247,000,000 hydro-electric project in Mica Creek on the Columbia River.

Asked in an interview to comment on a statement in Ottawa by Gen. A. G. N. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the international joint commission, that engineers have deemed such a project feasible, Premier Bennett said:

"There has never been any doubt about the feasibility of this dam. The Social Credit government of B.C. has always been in favor of the Mica Creek dam. We've said all along that it was feasible."

After a political speech here Thursday night, the premier told a reporter he has made no definite plans as yet concerning construction of a power station at Mica Creek, 150 miles north of Revelstoke. The talks with Mr. Lesage would be a preliminary nature.

Asked if the B.C. government planned to carry out the project or if it would be left to private enterprise, Mr. Bennett said it would be done by "whoever can do it best."

"If it hadn't been for the interference from Ottawa, we in B.C. would already have the dam under construction."

Ducsharm Hanged

SUDBURY (CP)—Convicted killer Robert Bruce Ducsharm died on the gallows early today, 18 months after a school teacher's bullet-riddled body found stuffed under a woodpile. Without emotion, but hesitantly, he walked 20 feet to the gallows on the second floor of Sudbury district jail. A six-man coroner's jury witnessed the hanging.

RCMP Corporal Appointed to Safety Committee

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today announced that Cpl. M. R. Godfrey of RCMP headquarters, Victoria, has been appointed a member of the B.C. Highway Traffic Safety Committee.

He replaces Staff Sgt. Lock, who has retired from service. Other members of the committee, which was set up in August, 1955, are George Lindsay, superintendent of motor vehicles, and J. H. Harding, traffic manager of the department of highways.

$500,000 Hail Loss

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Hailstones as big as marbles chewed up a newly-planted tobacco crop in nearby Innerkip township Thursday, causing an estimated $500,000 damage within 15 minutes.

Conscription 'Unrealistic'—Sinclair

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fisheries Minister James Sinclair said in an interview here Thursday that conscription is unrealistic now.

Mr. Sinclair said defence problems have changed so radically that he is even opposed to national registration.

The fisheries minister said advice being given by Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds at the convention of the Canadian Legion here is the point of view of the professional soldier only.

"I would rather see compulsory mathematics and sciences for our 16-year-olds than any other form of compulsory service."

RIGHT TO LIFE WON BY GWAUN-CAE-GURWEN

GWAUN-CAE-GURWEN, Wales (AP)—The National Coal Board decided today that Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen should live.

The board, which runs the nationalized mines, made the decision after three weeks of watching 279 Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen men dig coal in a test to determine whether the mines should stay open or be closed forever, bringing death to this Welsh hamlet of 1,065 miners.

What they saw convinced them Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen's record—249 strikes in nine years—was not as bad as it looked and that it should be given a second chance.

The people of Gwaun-Cae-Gurwen took the news in a holiday mood.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS

East Still Bakes

TORONTO (CP)—Cool weather eluded southern Ontario today as the humidity climbed toward the prospect of another bout with 90-degree temperatures.

The weather office repeated a cooler-weather forecast of Thursday but put it ahead to Saturday when, it said, the high will be a balmy 70.

Ben Hogan Leads

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP)—Ben Hogan, shooting for an unprecedented fifth U.S. Open golf title, carded a two under par 33-58 today for an aggregate of 140 which gave him the second round lead with about half the field in.

Victim of Gas

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A young married woman was killed and two others overcome by gas poisoning in a south Vancouver home today.

Identity of the dead woman, about 25, is being withheld by police. Overcome by the fumes were Mrs. Daisy Dyer, 54, and Mrs. Dyer's sister, Mrs. Thomas Gundry.

Subway Fires Strikers

NEW YORK (UP)—The New York transit authority today suspended 27 men who participated in Thursday's wildcat strike of subway motormen despite union threats to paralyze transportation again if disciplinary action was taken. Subway service was "100 per cent on schedule" this morning for the city's 4,500,000 riders from Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens. During yesterday's strike chaos ruled during record 56.1-degree heat.

Wins Fourth Trial

REGINA (CP)—Jacob Dyck won his appeal from a murder conviction and death sentence Thursday, and returned to prison to await his fourth jury trial.

The retrial, expected in September, was ordered by Saskatchewan Appeal Court. It will be the first time in Canadian legal history that a man is tried four times on the same murder charge.

Ike Has Good Night

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's physicians reported today that he had "a very good night."

Legion in Stormy Debate On French Language Issue

VANCOUVER (CP)—A four-page supplement in French will be published each month for the next two years in the 40-page Legionary, official organ of the Canadian Legion.

Decision to continue the French insert in the veterans' magazine, with one of the largest circulations in Canada, came after a stormy debate today at the 16th convention of the Legion's Dominion command. The first French insert appeared in the Legionary four months ago.

Before a resolution from the Quebec command was approved, statements of "very offensive suggestions" and "contrary to the constitution" were heard from the floor. Some of the delegates indicated the Quebec motion was an attempt by the Quebec command to seize control of the Legionary, which in its first full year of 100 per cent circulation accounted for $24,000 of the Legion's $32,000 overall surplus.

The stormy bilingual issue was introduced when Alex. Solomon of Montreal, said the Quebec command had thought originally that "some criticism should be sent to the Dominion command" over a 13-month lapse between the time the idea of a French edition first came up in 1954 and the first attempt to find how many wanted such an edition.

Earlier, in an interview, John Hunderd of Ottawa, editor of the Legionary since 1932, said delegates to the 15th convention in Toronto in 1954 proposed a full French edition for all Legion members requesting it.

Experts Envision New Victoria City Of 115,500 People

Full Amalgamation Urged for Area

Civic and business leaders of Victoria and its surrounding municipalities today are studying the most comprehensive report yet compiled on the subject of amalgamating the districts into one separate civic unit.

In effect, it lays down a preliminary blueprint for a new Victoria of 115,500 instead of four separate municipalities and their fringe areas.

The report, compiled by Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, was submitted to Victoria senior and junior chamber of commerce directors Thursday afternoon.

One of the most significant findings was that instead of a loosely knit metropolitan area, with a "super" body over the individual districts, they should all be joined in one compact city with single administration.

The proposed full union would include the city, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and southern Saanich, roughly in a five-mile circle from the city centre. The new city would be Canada's 13th largest in terms of population.

The report recommends that Langford and Colwood should be given local government and after these areas had raised their standards of municipal services to urban level, they, too, should be brought into the new city.

This would boost the population to 120,500.

SURVEY CHIEF

Compiler of amalgamation report was Dr. George Hougham, assistant director, Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, Toronto. He and assistant came here last Dec. 5, studied functions of all municipalities and municipal affairs branch of provincial government in matters pertaining to Greater Victoria. He took leading role in planning for Metropolitan Toronto.

GOVERNMENT OF MAYOR AND EIGHT ALDERMEN

It is further recommended that a planning control area be set up in conjunction with neighboring districts extending to the northern boundary of Saanich and as far west as Albert Head or Metchosin. Government of the expanded city would be by a mayor and eight aldermen, but it would not be formed for a year after any decision to amalgamate was reached by member municipalities.

The first council would comprise of a mayor and four aldermen elected at large, plus one alderman elected by Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and a combined Esquimalt-View Royal. Term of office would be two years.

Second and later councils would be elected at large. The planning control board would have nine members.

Four would represent Victoria, two Central Saanich and that part of Saanich excluded from the new union, two Langford and Colwood, and a chairman would be chosen at large. Capital Region Planning Board would be an advisory committee.

The plan recommends reduction of the number of other district control boards.

It calls for expansion of school district 61 to agree with the boundaries of the new city.

The report stressed that no very precise estimate on the effect of amalgamation on local taxes and the general financial situation could be conscientiously given.

When the compilers of the report carried out their survey of municipal records last year, only 1954 statistics were available. Any estimates would be vitally affected by conditions in individual municipalities at the time of possible union.

The report stressed that no very precise estimate on the effect of amalgamation on local taxes and the general financial situation could be conscientiously given.

When the compilers of the report carried out their survey of municipal records last year, only 1954 statistics were available. Any estimates would be vitally affected by conditions in individual municipalities at the time of possible union.

Four would represent Victoria, two Central Saanich and that part of Saanich excluded from the new union, two Langford and Colwood, and a chairman would be chosen at large. Capital Region Planning Board would be an advisory committee.

The plan recommends reduction of the number of other district control boards.

It calls for expansion of school district 61 to agree with the boundaries of the new city.

Main Points

Here are the main points in the 75-page Canadian Research Institute report:

1. Greater Victoria municipalities should amalgamate rather than join in a metropolitan federation.
 2. The union should include Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and the urban section of Saanich south of Royal Oak.
 3. Langford and Colwood should be incorporated as separate self-governing communities and be drawn into Victoria at a later date.
 4. A planning area should be set up extending from North Saanich to Albert Head.
 5. Government of Victoria should be by nine-man council.
 6. Effect on taxes is uncertain, could help city, hurt put increased load on others.
 7. Province should be asked for added grants.
 8. Decision should not be by referendum.
 9. Province would be required to pass special legislation permitting the proposed union.

be in store for some municipal taxpayers in the Victoria region even without unification."

"Since school costs are already distributed on the same basis throughout most of the area, unification would have little, if any, effect on the mill rate for schools," according to the report.

However, under the new system of municipal grants-in-aid started last year, the total of individual grants now in effect would be sizeably reduced by amalgamation.

A municipality now receives $14 per capita for the first 3,500 of population, $9 per capita from 3,501 to 8,000, $6 from 8,001 to 50,000 and $4.25 per capita from 50,000 up.

Based on estimated 1955 population, Victoria would get $367,000 this year, Oak Bay $125,500, Saanich $248,500, Esquimalt $107,500 of a total of $848,000 to the municipalities.

If they were linked in one city with population of 115,000 the same grant scale would bring a grant of only $617,750, a loss of $231,000. Other municipal grants to education, health and social assistance would be unaffected.

The report points out that in a budget sure to be close to $10,000,000 the loss should not be a "governing consideration."

"If it were feasible to strike a balance in dollars and cents, a financial penalty of this magnitude would not be an exorbitant price to pay for the civic benefits which unification may be expected to bring."

SUGGEST SPECIAL AID FROM B.C. GOVERNMENT

The institute examiners suggest this is not an important point and in the capital region in particular, a strong case can and should be made for the provincial government to provide special financial assistance to foster the setting up and development of unified cities.

In the event of unification it is recommended the province be asked for a Greater Victoria per capita grant and should also be prepared to assist financially in the launching of the new administration.

It is pointed out that when Metropolitan Toronto was brought into being, Ontario put up over $1,250,000 to defray expenses in the transition period, and larger unconditional per capita grants benefit the city in perpetuity.

SPECIAL GRANT

The often-heard claim that the province at this time makes no payment in lieu of taxes for provincial buildings in this area, is repeated in the report.

A special grant to defray costs of bringing undeveloped View Royal up to the standard of the other proposed components of the united area, would so be justified, the report states.

It also points out the city would have grounds for additional aid from the federal government in lieu of taxes on federal installations here, at Esquimalt, Royal Roads and various other Dominion government buildings in Victoria and Saanich.

With regard to the problem of pooling of municipal liabilities and assets, the only fair way to settle the issue in the eyes of the Institute examiners would be to lump them all together and start fresh.

The question is so complicated, and the responsibility for both so socially and geographically combined, "... the institute recommends generally against any adjustment of assets and liabilities between present municipalities entering the city."

NO REFERENDUM

The 75-page submission recommends against any final settling of the amalgamation question by referendum.

"If, however, the viewpoint of the Institute is accepted, the latter issue will not even arise."

"Most problems of government have to be entrusted to representatives who are expected to study them in detail."

PRAYER FOR TODAY

FATHER OF ALL, we are conscious most of our daily forgetfulness when we set a yearly "day" for fathers. In this observance we acknowledge again our guilt and neglect that dad is not honored every day of the year. Nevertheless, we thank Thee for the fine man that he is, for the quiet constancy and uncomplaining cheerfulness with which he bears so many daily burdens. Bless him, God, through Jesus Christ, Thy Son. Amen.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $275; T'WAS 'LOB' NOT 'MOB'

Once again Times' crossword puzzles failed to send in a correct answer to last week's puzzle so this week's award to a winning subscriber jumps to $275.

The first clue down was one of the big stumbling blocks last week. The answer was "LOB," but most contestants came up with "MOB" and "Job."

The clue read: "Can certainly be difficult to control at times." This makes "lob" the answer since the clue specifies "at times." A mob, necessarily an unruly crowd is always difficult to control.

Complete answer and explanation to last week's puzzle and a new contest for this week are on Page 27 of today's Times.

DUTCH DENY ROYAL RIFT

Juliana Divorce 'Just Silly Rumors'

AMSTERDAM (UP)—The Dutch government took the unprecedented step last night of denying rumors of a divorce between Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard because of the queen's trust in a faith healer.

And the faith healer, Miss Greet Hofmans, a 61-year-old spinster, told the United Press today she exercised no influence over the queen and that her sole mission in life was to dedicate people to Christ.

The government's official denial broke a strict government rule that no statements are made concerning the personal affairs of the royal family. Dutch newspapers already had departed from tradition by reprinting the foreign rumors about the queen.

Both developments indicated that the reports of a rift between Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard had deeply shocked the nation.

A Dutch government spokesman said the government was issuing the denial "notwithstanding the silliness of these rumors" that the queen was contemplating a divorce.

Armstrong Withdraws Again, No TV Studio on Smith's Hill

CKDA owner-manager David gave approval to the Smith's Hill Armstrong again withdrew his proposal to erect a $250,000 television studio (CHEK-TV) atop Smith's Hill Thursday.

The matter never reached council as was anticipated, following a Wednesday night meeting with Mayor Percy Scarr.

It is now reliably reported Mr. Armstrong is considering a site in Saanich.

A council official said the withdrawal was made when Mr. Armstrong learned council could not

In view of the fact 153 persons had opposed similar plans by petition in April when Mr. Armstrong paid the city $4,500 for three Blackwood street lots at the Smith's summit, it was felt even if his newer bid were approved it would only be after delayed negotiations.

sound out the views of their constituents and then hammer out the best form of remedial action.

"New questions are sufficiently straightforward... that they can be adequately resolved by popular vote... the points at issue are too complicated for constructive use to be made of the referendum technique."

UNION FORCED

Though the report was prepared for the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Institute points out that little can be done to implement its recommendations without the interest of civic officials and taxpayers of the district and full co-operation of the department of municipal affairs.

It adds that if unanimity cannot be reached at the local level, the province has the right to work openly for those changes which it believes would be most desirable. It points out that in the case of Metropolitan Toronto, the province stepped into the picture and forced the union.

Weaknesses to all the proposals other than full amalgamation are spelled out in detail. Also detailed is the full argument for complete union.

Complete union has been discussed here since 1911. Exact delineation of the boundaries of the proposed new city will require further study and surveys according to the report. But rough recommendations start the boundary at a point on Cordova Bay and take it west just north of Royal Oak Avenue to Patricia Bay Highway then to West Saanich Road at a point north of Royal Oak community.

The line would go southwest-erly to the swamp area near Ivor and Charlton Avenues, then southwest east of Burnside to View Royal.

UNDEVELOPED LAND

The area enclosed takes in all the heavily urbanized sections of Saanich and also encloses sufficient undeveloped land to allow for a likely pattern of urbanization to follow.

Objections to divided jurisdiction of an area which is geographically a tight unit are first that development of municipal services is hindered. "Artificial partitioning" means that the area of industrial development, or the area of fine homes, enjoys the best tax rate, while escaping any responsibility of the tax load of the whole metropolitan area.

SPECIAL ACT

In Greater Victoria, the city is shown to suffer for its position as the trading centre for the district. The new Point Ellice bridge to be built by the city next year is given as a case in point. The city will pay but the bridge is a necessity to Esquimalt.

Saanich would be paying for her neighbors' convenience if the proposed east-west arterial Saanich highway ever is constructed. Similarly, heavy use

Thetis Lake Logging Not Yet Dead

Selective logging of Thetis Lake Park to raise funds for improvement of the area now used by the public, is again under consideration by city council.

Council decided Thursday that unless the B.C. government indicates within two weeks whether it has plans for the park in the Capital District Improvement Commission scheme, the logging plan will be lifted from the table.

Council offered the park, along with parks at Goldstream and Elk Lake, to the province last fall for development as provincial parks.

NO ANSWER YET

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow brought the matter up and urged council go ahead with the plan to log back areas of the park, beyond the points accessible to the public.

The plan was approved by a majority of council after a visit to the back areas last year. But it was strongly opposed by former mayor Claude Harrison, who threatened to veto any decision by council to log.

CAUTION URGED

Present Mayor Percy Scudrah said prior to his election that Thetis Lake was valuable property and the city must be careful not to destroy its natural beauty. He thought he would have to look further into the meaning of council's selective logging plan before deciding whether he would favor it. The council of last fall felt selective logging would yield about $62,000 now and $15,000 every five years on a sustained yield basis, money to be used in park beautification.

Saturday Hearing for Final Vogee Arguments

Summation of arguments in the appeal of Arthur E. Vogee against his demotion from the post of principal of Mount Newton High School will be heard Saturday by the board of reference hearing the appeal.

The hearing opened May 14, and since then the reference board has met 14 days.

Saanich school board demoted Mr. Vogee for what it called shortcomings in the administration of the school. It took action following receipt of a report on the school by Dr. Harold Johns, inspector for the district.

Kenneth C. Murphy, board chairman, refused on Thursday to accept testimony from Victor E. Virgin, resident of the Mount Newton area, to the effect that he saw "antipathy" between Mr. Vogee and the school building committee.

J. Alan Baker is counsel for the school board, and Victor Dryer of Vancouver is representing Mr. Vogee. Following arguments Saturday, the board will consider evidence and reaction to the council of public instruction, which in return will notify both parties in the dispute of its decision.

ROYAL JUBILEE LABORATORY WORKER, Miss Carole Savage, shows spectrophotometer used in new heart tests.

'MOST SENSITIVE YET'

New Heart Tests Conducted in City

New blood tests for detection of "hidden" heart attacks, which were described to a Chicago convention of the American Medical Association, Tuesday, have been carried out in Victoria hospitals for at least two weeks.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital said the new tests are "... valuable in locating damage specifically in coronary thrombosis cases (when blood supply is cut off to part of the heart)."

They were anxious that persons suffering heart ailments generally did not put too much emphasis on the Chicago announcement.

The test was described at the convention as "... the most important forward step in diagnosis since the electrocardiograph was introduced early in the century."

St. Joseph's Hospital has also been carrying out the test procedure recently and Veterans' Hospital is setting up laboratory equipment to follow suit.

DONATED

The test is conducted by use of an ultra-violet spectrophotometer. Jubilee's was donated last year by police and firemen, sponsors of annual "Family Night" at Memorial Arena. The device was primarily intended for use in treatment of polio. Now that polio is on the wane, it still will be valuable.

Laboratory officials describe the test as the "most sensitive yet devised," but pointed out it is not a magic formula for discovering heart damage where it was never suspected in a patient.

In coronary thrombosis cases, however, the test will localize the failure in the heart permitting quicker and accurate diagnosis, which can mean the difference between life and death.

THE OUTDOORS

If there is such a thing as a perfect life for a lover of the outdoors, Les Morrow appears to have come as close to the Utopia as anyone.

Les is a public relations man, a writer, fisherman, hunter, amateur naturalist, conservationist and a lover of guns of all calibre.

And by careful organization, Les has managed to weld all these activities into a combined hobby and profession that not only nets him a comfortable income, but provides him with what he calls, "a perfect life."

Primarily, Les is an information officer for Canadian Industries Limited's ammunition branch and he specializes in spreading the gospel to hunters and shooters on the newest ammunition wrinkles turned out by CIL's research labs.

But Les, being an ex-newspaperman, as so many public relations men seem to be, still has an urge to pound out stories. He satisfies his urge by selling to publications like Sports Illustrated, which recently paid him $750 for one article; Field & Stream, Sports Afford and Outdoor Life and writes a monthly column for Rod and Gun.

In addition, he makes frequent radio and television appearances in his hometown, Montreal, again through his intensive knowledge of the outdoors.

Eating plays a large part in Les' life, since he once wrote a food column for the Montreal Herald. To satisfy his culinary cravings, Les is a charter member of a select Montreal organization known as Les Chevaliers de la Cuisine (Knights of the Kitchen). The club consists of 11 World War II veterans and their wives, all of whom love good food properly prepared. They meet at regular intervals and the men do the cooking, each preparing his own specialty. Les' specialty is biscuits but he hopes soon to graduate to spaghetti as he claims to have concocted a marvelous sauce of white wine and garlic.

Children Follow Tradition

Les' wife contributes outdoors columns occasionally and is an ardent skeet shooter. His three children follow the family tradition. Both boys received a gun at the age of four and were taken hunting at six. Daughter Dolly will be four this year and she, too, will receive her gun and instruction.

When he is not bounding across the country for CIL, Les fits in this hunting schedule:

After Christmas, he starts shooting rabbit and fox until the timber wolves oblige as targets. He has a special licence permitting him to shoot wolves from a low-flying airplane.

After the wolves, he amuses himself by hunting crows and ground-hogs and long-range varmit shooting.

In the fall, he switches to upland game birds—partridge, woodcock and odd pheasant and it is a happy coincidence that the deer season opens at the same time, enabling him to pick up his white-tail for the family freezer.

Ducks and Snow Geese are in his sights in the early part of the winter, he usually picks up a moose in October and then it is back to ducks until December, by which time it is rabbit season again.

Yes, Les Fishes, Too

Fishing? Yes, he does this too, pursuing trout, pickerel, pike, muskie and bass.

And in case time should weigh heavy, he works out on a small-bore range twice a week and plans to start trap shooting sometime this summer.

But CIL is still his big love and he is proud of the fact that his company manufactures more kinds of ammunition than any other concern in the world. CIL does a service to gun-collectors and owners of obsolete guns by manufacturing small amounts, as low as 1,000 rounds per year, of any odd-line calibre that there is the slightest demand for.

Les currently is plugging for CIL's new magnum lines in 16 and 20-gauge which joins the 12-gauge introduced last year.

According to Les, CIL's research crews have designed a magnum cartridge that increases the shot load by 30 per cent without increasing the breech pressure, making it usable in any ordinary gun.

The magnum load will not increase the distance but packs greater hitting power and, particularly in the late fall when ducks are packing heavy plumage, will register kills where old loads only wounded.

Major League Clubs In Rash of Trading

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Red Schuendienst, Mr. Redbird himself, went to New York Giants Thursday in a four-for-four trade which brought veteran Alvin Dark to St. Louis Cardinals.

The 33-year-old Schuendienst, a veteran of 12 seasons with the Cardinals, took the news of the trade in the same stoic manner in which he plays second base. "That's the way the ball bounces," he said.

General Manager Frank Lane, moving quickly before the deadline on trading at midnight tonight dealt off Schuendienst, outfielder Jackie Brandt, catcher Bill Sarni and pitcher Dick Littlefield for shortstop Dark, first baseman Whitey Lockman, catcher Ray Katt and pitcher Don Liddle.

NEEDED INFELD DEFENCE

"Red was the toughest to give up," Lane said. "He's the type of ball player who could go out and make five errors in a row and the fans wouldn't be made at him. But then again Dark is good, too."

Lane said he will use Dark, who is also 33, at shortstop, switching rookie Don Blasingame to second, his natural position.

"We felt that without defence on our infield we couldn't call ourselves a contender," Lane said.

Lane said that Dark isn't the "great ball player" he was five years ago, but he still would improve the Cards at shortstop. Lockman will go to first, replacing Wally Moon who will play the outfield. Katt will alternate with Hal Smith behind the plate, the fast-dealing Lane added.

The Yankees and Athletics also figured in another four-player deal of their own.

Eddie Robinson, 35-year-old long ball hitting first baseman, was sent to Kansas City by the Yankees along with outfielder Lou Skizas.

In exchange, the Yankees acquired pitcher Ed Bertschy and outfielder Bill Renna, both of whom were assigned to Richmond, along with an undisclosed amount of cash.

In the only other pre-deadline activity, the Red Sox optioned third baseman Frank Malzone to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League.

Small Field Entered in Plate Classic

TORONTO (CP)—Ten horses will go to the post Saturday in the 97th running of the Queen's Plate. It is one of the smallest fields in the history of the $25,000-added classic for three-year-olds.

Entries closed Thursday and only 10 owners stepped up with the necessary $250 final subscription fee to keep their horses in the running for the Queen's 50 Guineas and $26,650, the winner's share of the purse.

A record 258 colts and fillies were originally nominated for the stakes Dec. 15, 1954, by payment of $10. The list was trimmed to 90—a year ago and to 45 last May 4.

Since then owners have taken a good look at aptly-named Canadian Champ, owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, and one by one they decided their entries wouldn't have a chance over the nine-furlong distance against the nifty bay colt, unbeaten in eight starts the last two years.

Canadian Champ, by Windfields out of Bolesto, set an earnings record for two-year-olds in Canada last season when he collected $51,840 in purses. This year he started three times, including the Plate Trial over seven furlongs on Tuesday, and was an easy winner each time.

The entries with the names of their jockeys and owners:

Canadian Champ, Dave Stevenson, Bill Beasley; Argent, Vic Bovine, Ben Steen; Lawday, H. B. Wilson, J. E. F. Seagram; Winchester, Dick Buisson, R. Y. Grant; Bunt's Flight, George Walker, Larkin Maloney; Conn Smythe; Bernmar, George Gubins, Paul McGarry; O'Morrissey, Eddie Plesia, Miss Olive Armstrong; Big Berne, Pat Remillard, Jack Stafford; London Calling, Avelino Gomez, E. P. Taylor; a-Censor, Gil Robillard, Mrs. E. P. Taylor. a-Coupled as Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor entry.

Stars Win 11th Straight; Mounties Roll

Hollywood and San Francisco are winning furiously in the Pacific Coast League but who's getting all the glory? First-place Los Angeles.

Hollywood dumped San Diego 11-5 Thursday night, stretching the PCL season's longest victory run to 11. San Francisco took its third straight from second-place Seattle 4-1. Hollywood has jumped from seventh to fourth on its string and the Seals are up from seventh to fifth.

So Los Angeles, which had Seattle breathing down its neck only a half game behind Sunday, now has a comfortable four-game lead. The Angels have taken four straight from Portland, including yesterday's 12-5 win.

Even last-place Vancouver got hot, drubbing Sacramento 14-1 after losing nine in a row to the Seals. Kal Segrist got two homers and Bruce Edwards one for the Mounties. Winner Charlie Beamon gave only five hits, struck out eight Solons and drove in four runs.

Sacramento signed outfielder Wally Westlake, a PCL veteran down from the majors.

The Yankees and Athletics also figured in another four-player deal of their own.

TIME OUT! 1954 SEAS

Marlene Gains Collegiate Semifinal

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Petite Marlene Stewart of Rollins College played the sharpest golf Thursday in quarter-finals of the women's national collegiate golf tournament to get a shot at defending champion Jackie Yates of the University of Redlands in the semi-finals today.

The Fonthill, Ont., youngster played even par golf for 14 holes over the wooded hills of Purdue's South course to defeat Virginia Denney of Maryville, 6 and 4. Miss Yates, Hawaiian star who has been runner-up in the Tam O'Shanter "world tourney" the last two years, eliminated Anne Richardson of Rollins, 1953 semi-finalist in the coeds' meet, 4 and 3.

Barbara McIntire of Rollins and Ruth Jensen of Seattle will meet in the other semi-final.

FIGHT RESULTS

LOS ANGELES—Tommyette Smith 15½, Los Angeles, outpointed Charley Sawyer 16½, Los Angeles, (12).

SAN FRANCISCO—All Scott 11½, San Francisco, outpointed Johnny Ortega 11½, Oakland, Calif. (10).

PHILADELPHIA—Charlie Scott 14½, Philadelphia, outpointed Tom Dynamis Williams 15½, Washington, D.C. (10).

Varley Seeks Share Of Track Spotlight

Victoria's Dick Willoughby and Jack Rumley of Chemainus may have been getting most of the headlines in the stock car world lately, but quiet, dark-haired Dick Varley is steadily earning the respect of both drivers and fans at Western Speedway.

Varley, 23-year-old Victoria mechanic, who has been racing four years, has already picked up one main event victory this year and is improving every time out.

In Saturday night's meet at Western, Varley will battle it out with Willoughby, winner of three mains this year; Rumley, and popular Gerry Sylvester in the 25-lap feature race.

Also expected to give the leaders trouble is veteran driver Dave Cooper, who has his new Ford stocker ready to roll. A total of 28 cars will be on hand when time trials start at 7:30.

Rosewall Upset

BECKENHAM, Eng. (AP)—Mal Anderson of Australia pulled the big upset of the Kent lawn tennis championships today by defeating Ken Rosewall, also of Australia, 6-3, 6-2, in a semi-final match.

Rosewall, making his first appearance in England this season, had been the favorite to win the title in a warmup for his quest for the Wimbledon singles crown.

TENNIS STAR DIES

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Gordon Shields, 45, former fifth-ranked Canadian tennis player and a football, soccer and badminton star, died Thursday.

Also expected to give the leaders trouble is veteran driver Dave Cooper, who has his new Ford stocker ready to roll. A total of 28 cars will be on hand when time trials start at 7:30.

RECORDS COULD FALL

The oldest Canadian record in the book, 220 yards in 21.4 seconds, will be the big target for Trinidad's Mike Agostini next Saturday in the YMCA-Victoria Times Vancouver Island Track and Field Championships at Victoria High School Stadium.

Agostini, double world record holder with the 100-yard mark of 9.3 and the 220 of 20.1, will also have a good chance of breaking his own Canadian 100-yard record if conditions are right.

To push him along his way, he will have Rafael Duke of Victoria, current B.C. sprint champ, and Harry Nelson of New Westminster, who has a 9.6 to his credit this year and who was a BEG finalist.

As for Agostini, he is the current British Empire Games champion and besides his 9.3 100, has run 9.4 four times and 9.6 four times this year. He has also been under 21 seconds for the 220 on six occasions.

CURVED TRACK

Most of his 220 times have been on a straight track, while at Vic High he will be running on a curved track, which experts say adds 4-10ths of a second to the running of the distance.

The old Canadian 220 record was set in 1908 by Bobby Kerr of Hamilton, Ont.

Looking impressive in his first workout at Vic High this week since returning to Victoria from the University of Washington was the Cumberland Comet, Terry Tobacco, now a much more stylish athlete than the gangling 17-year-old that captured the imagination of 35,000 people watching the BEG quarter-mile two years ago.

Terry's stiffest quarter-mile competition should come from teammate Ted Whan, who took both the 440 and 880 in the Evergreen Conference meet recently, the first time that feat had been accomplished.

9-Man Council-at-Large Suggested for New City

3-Phase Proposal To Smooth Switch

The proposed "new city" of Victoria should have a mayor and eight councillors elected at large, the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada says in its amalgamation report unfolded Thursday.

The council would be chosen by the electors of Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and the southern portion of Saanich. The planners recommended three separate stages for the unification plan, based on experience in formation of the municipality of metropolitan Toronto.

Here is the section of the report dealing with this phase:

A reading of Sections 10 and 11 of the Municipal Act reveals that the provincial government generally favors a two-year term and election at large for metropolitan councils in British Columbia. Section 491 of the same act sets out a procedure whereby municipalities having a population of 15,000 or more may also institute a board of control system. Although the provision is of long standing, no municipality has taken it up.

The institute is generally opposed to a board of control system and, moreover, believes it to be incompatible with the council-manager plan. On the other hand, it fully endorses a two-year term and election at large for the new municipal council. It is further recommended that the governmental framework of the proposed new city be established in three separate stages.

One Year Needed for Survey

1. Whether unification of the proposed area requires a special act or not, provision should be made for a one-year interval between the final decision to create the new municipality and the date of its actual incorporation. During this period, a special inter-municipal committee made up of representatives from the existing municipalities and the provincial government would survey the detailed adjustments necessary and formulate the policies required in order to get the new municipality launched on a sound basis.

2. For the first two-year term,

we suggest that the new municipal council be composed of a mayor and four councillors elected at large plus one representative elected from within the area of each of the four existing municipalities. For the election of one of these representatives, it would be most appropriate to include the Improvement District of View Royal with the District of Esquimalt.

3. It is proposed that the council elected for the second year term and every council thereafter should consist of a mayor and eight councillors elected entirely at large.

Toronto Merger Plan Followed

Each of the stages here outlined has, in our opinion, a good deal to commend it. In the Act which established the Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto, an interval of eight and a half months was provided for the necessary work of organization before the new administration undertook its full responsibilities. The experience of the responsible municipal officials during these months demonstrated clearly that not enough time had been allowed. Although Victoria's experience with inter-municipal arrangements may, as already noted, help to make the transition easier, a year's work by the proposed inter-municipal committee should prove to be a very worthwhile investment.

Qualified Pool of Candidates

A further point is that, through the proposed inter-municipal committee and the area representation on the first council, representatives from the various sections of the metropolitan community will have an opportunity to gain broad and valuable experience in the handling of area-wide problems. The plan would also help to create a qualified pool of candidates for election at large.

In the proposal for a permanent council consisting of a mayor and eight councillors elected at large, consideration has been given both to the current population picture in the Victoria area and to the desirability of establishing a suitable council structure to meet the needs of a large and growing urban centre.

If the proposed new city had come into being in 1955, its total population would have been, by a very rough estimate, about 115,000, of which some 60,000 were in the suburban area.

On the question of council representation, a number of points should be noted with regard to these figures. The largest single block of voters in the new municipality will continue for some time to be the residents of the present City of Victoria. Adequate representation of this area on the new municipal council is virtually assured. On the other hand, the suburban areas need have no fear that they will be completely over-ridden in the make-up of the new municipal council. In 1955, the population of these areas already constituted a majority of the proposed new city's total population. A comparison with the totals derived from the 1951 census indicates that this ascendancy is almost certain to continue and, indeed, to increase. A further point is that individual communities like Oak Bay or Esquimalt will undoubtedly have outstanding citizens who can attract a sufficient area-wide following to achieve election to the new council regardless of the particular population distribution.

A council of nine members, it is suggested, offers a reasonable balance among the conflicting requirements for an effective representative body. It is sufficiently large to allow for a proper distribution of the likely workload. On the basis of the 1955 population totals, it also provides reasonable representation both in relation to the existing size of the electorate and to the probable growth in the number of voters in the foreseeable future. Yet a coun-

'Greatest Long-Run Stability' In Unified Form of Government

The amalgamation researchers came up with these specific advantages of unification:

"A unified form of local government will have by far the greatest long-run stability. Where there are racial, religious or other deep-rooted divisions within a community, a federal system may offer the most effective structure that is politically feasible. It remains, nevertheless, a second - best alternative which the citizens of the Victoria region have no real need to favor and should not be prepared to accept. The current level of development in the area makes it desirable and practical to get a more suitable form of local government firmly established before the needs and requirements of metropolitan growth reach a more critical stage. In a very real sense, acceptance of unification is a measure of the metropolitan community's political maturity."

WELL-DEFINED

"An area-wide unification in Victoria will introduce a governmental framework within which the political and administrative responsibility for all municipal services is clearly defined and immediately determinable. Within the limits imposed by general provincial control and the community's financial resources, the local government will have the necessary power to discharge its responsibilities, control the nature and direction of future development and evolve a comprehensive policy for improving the level of existing services where necessary and meeting anticipated future requirements. A pooling of assessments will ensure, at the same time, that the distribution of the local financial burden is reasonably fair and equitable."

COMMON

"The Victoria region is confronted with a situation which is far from uncommon in metropolitan areas. A failure to control urban development adequately in the past has produced both a series of ribbon developments adjacent to main traffic arteries and a number of population pockets that are relatively close to but separate from those areas of current urbanization which are contiguous to the fully developed urban community. Cordova Bay to the northeast, Langford, Colwood and even Albert Head to the west and south, provide cases in point. Under a federal setup, it would be difficult if not impossible to justify a boundary which provides a suitable sort. With unification, by contrast, the area served by the new unit of government need not and probably should not be as extensive. The appropriate boundary in these circumstances would be one which excluded areas of this framework for concentrating population growth within those sections most readily and appropriately serviced. Unless population is likely to remain static over a long period, the territory embraced by a unified municipality should, of course, include a sufficient amount of land for likely urban expansion in the future. It need not, however, take in areas which do not at the moment form a direct part of the urbanized metropolitan area which, for that very reason, a majority of the citizens in the organized municipalities would not be prepared to recognize as their immediate responsibility or concern."

"Because the metropolitan problems of the Victoria region are not as pressing as in some urban areas, the residents of the region have an opportunity to seek the optimum framework for their metropolitan self-government. They should, we would suggest, be satisfied with nothing less than an area-wide unification. Such a development would offer the best protection for their immediate civic interests of the region alike. Among metropolitan areas, it would place Greater Victoria in a position of leadership throughout the North American continent."

Victoria Has 'Unique' Amalgamation Problem

Victoria's problem of amalgamation is quite different from that faced by other Canadian cities. That's what the Toronto amalgamation surveyors claim in their study of the Greater Victoria area.

Here are some of their observations on the subject: Among the 31 metropolitan and major urban areas as defined for purposes of the 1951 Canadian census, the Greater Victoria area is unique in that the population resident outside the boundaries of the central city is greater than the population of the central city itself.

Among the metropolitan areas, the number of separate municipalities included within any single one is frequently much greater than in Victoria's case. In the Greater Montreal area, for example, there are no less than 50 municipalities included under the DBS listing. It might be said, however, that the number in the Victoria area is fairly typical of a Canadian metropolis of its size. It should be noted, moreover, that there is a tendency for new jurisdictions to be formed as the growth of the metropolitan area goes forward. The partitioning of the old Saanich into the two municipalities of Saanich and Central Saanich is a case in point.

On the other hand, it is quite unusual within the Dominion of Canada for suburban areas within a metropolitan community to exist as unorganized territories coming under the paternal administration of the province for local government purposes. There is a somewhat similar situation in the metropolitan area of St. John's, Newfoundland, and a partial parallel is found also in the Greater Vancouver area. But Victoria's position is sufficiently unique to prevent it from profiting by the experience in other metropolitan areas in dealing with this particular complicating factor.

The major cause of what is commonly termed the metropolitan problem is urban growth. At any one time, the difficulties created by divided jurisdiction are in part determined by the rate at which growth is proceeding and the pattern that such growth is assuming. Difficulties may also have been built up by a rapid rate of growth earlier which has piled up a backlog of municipal service requirements. Likewise the anticipated rate of growth in the future has a direct bearing upon the boldness of the plans that ought to be considered for solving the metropolitan problem.

Rate of Growth Uneven in Component Parts

Between 1941 and 1951, what the census defines as the Victoria metropolitan area increased in population by 38 per cent. While the figure quoted is reasonably accurate, the definition of the area is deficient in that it leaves out that big portion of the real metropolitan area which lies within unorganized territories. A further point is that the rate of growth within the municipal components of the census area itself were by no means even. The City of Victoria grew by only 16 per cent between the two census years. Thus the overall average of more than double the rate in the city proper was accounted for by the much higher rates of growth in the three surrounding municipalities.

The overall rate of population growth between 1951 and 1954 has continued strong. Yet the growth has dropped off sharply in Esquimalt since 1951 and has slowed down considerably in Oak Bay. In other words, the current expansion is taking place primarily in Saanich and in the unorganized territories.

A comparison with other metropolitan areas gives added perspective. The Victoria metropolitan area as defined for census purposes has been expanding more rapidly than certain metropolitan areas, particularly in the Maritime Provinces, but less rapidly than some of the great metropolitan areas in other parts of Canada. At the same time, Greater Victoria has been sharing the experience of all metropolitan areas in Canada in growing faster than the overall rate of growth throughout the country or even the rate of growth in most smaller urban centres.

Over and above the particular rate and pattern of population growth, the proportions of the problems of arterial road and public transit services within a metropolitan area are related to the intensity of shuttle movement of people and goods throughout the area. How much of the shuttle movement exists and the extent to which it is concentrated in rush-hour periods is determined very largely by the economic base of the metropolis.

Greater Victoria is distinctive in this respect in the extent to which it is dependent upon the tourist industry. In the existence of substantial establishments of both the federal and provincial governments and in the attraction it holds as a residential area for retired people of independent means, its island location rules the metropolis out as a major manufacturing or distributing centre. The Victoria area has, it is true, built up a number of extractive industries based particularly upon the forest resources of the island. But it cannot hope to compete with the city of Vancouver either as a manufacturing and distributing centre or as an ocean port.

Tourist Car Travel Cut

What is the effect of Greater Victoria's particular economic base upon the shuttle movement of goods and services? Ordinarily, we might expect the tourist industry to bring a great many cars into the metropolis. In point of fact, however, the number is cut down sharply because automobiles have to be brought by ferry from mainland ports in British Columbia or the State of Washington. The small proportion of major manufacturing and the lack of large-scale distributing activities both reduce the overall movement of goods. Governmental establishments are so located that their employees do not necessarily have long trips to and from work. Again, not all the establishments in question are concentrated in a single downtown area. Retired people make less use of the streets than office or factory workers during rush-hour periods. By timing their trips to the stores, they are in a position to avoid contributing to traffic congestion. A further feature is that, except for vehicles carried by ferry, location at the end of a peninsula eliminates all through traffic from and to other centres. In summary, traffic and transit problems - which some people in the Greater Victoria area may regard as quite serious - would be viewed as no problem at all in other large metropolitan areas where lengthy tie-ups have become a daily occurrence.

The metropolitan co-ordination which now exists

115,500 POPULATION ESTIMATED FOR AREA

The trend of population growth in the Victoria region and in the balance between the city and its suburbs is revealed in this table prepared for the amalgamation report.

POPULATION BY MUNICIPALITIES
	1951 Census	1955 Estimates
City of Victoria	51,300	56,000
District of Oak Bay	10,200	14,000
District of Saanich	28,500	34,500
District of Esquimalt	12,000	11,000
District Total	50,700	59,500
Grand Total	102,000	115,500

COLWOOD, LANGFORD OUT

Split in Saanich Merger Proposal

The areas which would make up the new metropolitan community were outlined as follows by the amalgamation planners:

The fully built-up areas comprising Oak Bay, Victoria, West Victoria, Esquimalt, View Royal and the southern portion of Saanich obviously constitute one continuous urban complex. Within this metropolitan community, the residents of existing municipalities should have a common interest in the adequate provision of municipal services and an equal responsibility for their maintenance and further development. Within the boundaries of a new greater city of Victoria, there is no question that all these areas should be included.

Scant Government

It is perhaps apparent already that the institute is not prepared to recommend that the new municipality should, at this stage, encompass Langford and Colwood also. Although a portion of the city at some future date, their exclusion for the present can be justified on several compelling and practical grounds:

1. They possess only the barest rudiments of a local government structure and, under existing provincial policy, there is little incentive toward self-improvement.

2. Neither area has more than a minimum level and range of municipal services.

3. The unplanned growth which has been allowed to take place makes it practically impossible to establish a city boundary for any area where population growth is sufficiently concentrated and municipal services sufficiently developed for effective administration.

4. The rugged topography immediately to the north and west of Parsons Bridge and the location of Colwood golf course, Royal Roads and the extensive gravel pits beyond have also made for a disjointed and piecemeal urban development which currently lacks any natural or practical limit.

5. The fact that Langford and Colwood are generally not recognized by local citizens as an integral part of the Greater Victoria urban area is likewise a consideration.

Most Logical

In determining the appropriate area of jurisdiction for the new city, two important questions remain. What is the most logical boundary for the new city along the fringe of the urban development in the present district of Saanich? And once this boundary has been established, what is the most acceptable and satisfactory way to protect the legitimate interests of the new municipality's citizens in the future development of the remaining portion of Saanich and of Central Saanich and also of the Langford-Colwood area?

The exact delineation of the northern boundary of the proposed new city of Greater Victoria will require a careful study and report by land surveyors. Before the work is commenced, it would be both appropriate and advisable to request the assistance of the Capital Region Planning Board and to give special consideration to any suggestions which it may wish to make. In the meantime, the institute recommends that the northern boundary for the new municipality should follow approximately the following course:

Boundary Line

(1) From a point on Cordova Bay westward to the Patricia Bay Highway, sufficiently north of Royal Oak Avenue to control urban development along the northern side of this feeder artery;

(2) from the Patricia Bay Highway to the West Saanich Road a short distance north of the urban concentration in the community of Royal Oak;

(3) from the West Saanich Road in a southwesterly direction to the swamp area located in the vicinity of Ivor and Charlton Avenues;

(4) thence south in a fairly straight line, crossing Burnside Road north of its junction with the Prospect Lake Road and continuing in a southwesterly direction slightly to the east of Burnside Road to the boundary of the Improvement District of View Royal.

Civic Boards Listed

Functions Outlined

Handling of special civic affairs under various boards in the proposed new one-city set-up is outlined in the report, as follows:

The absolute necessity for an effective system of planning and land-use control extending beyond the boundaries of the new municipality has already been emphasized in this report. The need for such control is heavily underlined by the type of development which has been allowed to take place along the urban fringe up to the present time.

It is further proposed that the land-use control board, like the new city council, consist of nine members. The board would be composed of four representatives appointed by the new city of Victoria, two representatives appointed from the District of Central Saanich and the portion of Saanich which has been excluded from the new city, two representatives from the Langford-Colwood area and beyond and, as a chairman, a ninth member elected by the eight appointed members.

The Capital Region Planning Board would constitute the logical advisory planning agency to this recommended land-use control board.

OTHER INTER-MUNICIPAL BOARDS

The proposed area-wide unification of the Victoria region's municipal governments will obviously entail adjustments in the number, jurisdiction and powers of existing inter-municipal and independent boards.

SCHOOLS

In British Columbia as in other provinces, the administration of primary and secondary schools is traditionally a separate operation. The Institute would suggest, however, that the boundaries of School District No. 61 be adjusted to conform with those of the proposed new municipality as a means of simplifying public control and of providing the most logical framework for the necessary co-ordination of school and municipal policies.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Following unification, civil defence could be handled in one of two ways. The new municipal council might take the full responsibility, aided perhaps by a special advisory committee of administrative and technical personnel recruited from the wider metropolitan region. . . . The alternative would be to continue to develop civil defence policy through an appropriate inter-municipal board.

WATER SERVICES

Under section 8 of the Greater Victoria Water District Act, the objects of the district are defined as "the acquiring, supplying and distributing of water from any source or sources for the use of the inhabitants of the district for all purposes, or for the use of adjacent areas outside the district, including any unorganized territory, or for any other use or purpose within or without the district." If the new municipality were granted a somewhat similar range of authority and responsibility, water supply and distribution could be integrated into the new administration, under the direct purview and control of the elected council. . . . In the institute's considered opinion, however, the future administration of water supply by a semi-independent board should be avoided if at all possible.

HEALTH SERVICES

The provision of adequate health services for the new city would be handled most efficiently by a municipal health department.

LIBRARY SERVICES

A reading of section 24 of the British Columbia Public Libraries Act would seem to indicate that amalgamation would require no change in library administration. The only difference would be that the municipal member of the library board would represent the whole area included within the new municipal boundary rather than, as at present, the city of Victoria alone.

OTHER SERVICES

Maintenance and development of all local and metropolitan parks would come under the new city's parks department; the Victoria and Saanich Beaches and Parks Commission would no longer be required. And the use of the city's justice facilities by outside areas could be continued under a contractual arrangement which fully covered the city's costs.

LAD REALLY IN THE HOLE; POLICE TO THE RESCUE

City police pried a north Douglas youngster out of post hole Thursday evening after he became stuck while playing.

Rescued and taken home was seven-year-old Richard Chase, 3116 Steele, who became wedged in a four-foot-deep hole dug in the 2900 block Douglas for erection of a billboard.

His plight was reported by a passing woman to men at No. 3 firehall who called police.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

As the old saying goes, I don't care what you say about me as long as you get my name right.

... so I was much intrigued to read an item in another newspaper about the forthcoming Swiftsure yacht race. It made reference to Buchanan III, a yacht formerly owned by—I quote—Schubert Wallace.

Wonder if "Schubert" sold her because she was developing a list? (I hope Hubert appreciates good music.)

But I shouldn't make snide remarks. Errors can creep in anywhere, even into such a hot-bed of accuracy as Between Times.

The other day, I ventured a kindly remark about m'pals, Barney and John Olson of the Strathcona.

In the paper, it came out "Alson."

Ah, well, chalk up an "A" for effort.

And hand out another "A" plus a gold star, to Toronto swimmer Ted Simmons.

When our Tony Dickson was chatting with Ted the other day, Tony asked the usual question: "Why are you going to try the Strait?"

But did Ted give the usual answer, namely "It's a challenge?"

No.

Ted said "I hope to make something out of it."

I never thought I'd live to see the day, but I did.

Dialogue for a dull day: "Mr. Interlocutor, why does a Strait swimmer cross the Strait?"

"I don't know, Mr. Bones. Why DOES a Strait swimmer cross the Strait?"

"To get to the other side."

Yuk yuk yuk.

Alan Wilson, editor of the Gyro Club bulletin, is out of town on business (he says) and he had better hurry home.

The pro-tem editor, who modestly signs himself merely as "Bob" perpetrated this in the current issue.

A race track enthusiast told his wife "The darndest thing happened to me at the races this afternoon. I was bending down to tie my shoe laces, when some near-sighted stable hand slapped a saddle on me."

"What did you do?" asked his wife.

"What could I do?" complained the husband. "I came in third."

As I said, come home. Alan.

Last Class Graduates Under Old System

By DINAH KERR

The mood was nostalgic, reminiscent, and optimistic Thursday night as members of the largest and last graduating class of the Provincial Normal School gathered with faculty and parents for the final graduation banquet.

Speaking at Central Junior High School, Franklin P. Levis, chief inspector of schools for B.C., told the students "the traditions of the school are not passing, but will coalesce with Victoria College to build one vital institution. This is not absorption, but union."

This fall a two-year teacher training program will be introduced in the College of Education at Victoria College, replacing the one-year program offered at the Normal School. To obtain a bachelor of education degree, students must complete a five-year course.

The new teachers are joining one of the best trained and experienced teaching bodies in Canada, Mr. Levis said. As indication of this province's progress in education, he noted that 36.2 per cent of B.C. teachers have university degrees, as compared to an average of 29 per cent in other provinces.

British Columbia also has the least turnover in teaching staff, and ranks first in the most varied experience.

"The new college of education should do even more to add to the prestige of teachers in this province," he said.

Miss Tannis Killough, 20 Castlegar, B.C., was announced winner of the Denton Memorial for "best all-round student," by Dr. J. F. K. English, assistant deputy minister of education.

Winner of the Maxwell Cameron memorial prize for scholarship was Miss Rosie Franz, Osoyoos, B.C. She received her award from J. Phillipson, president, B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Sixteen honor students, all women, were presented to Dr. English.

They were Misses Ruth Donaldson, Rosie Franz, Mavis Jowsey, Tannis Killough, Donna Landers, Shirley Lynch, Joan Miller, Evelyn Mouat, Jacqueline Ormond, Margaret Rounce, Frances Smigol, Kathleen Thornberry, Violet Tonsetich, Sister Mary Jeanine, Sister Ellen Maureen and Sister Mary Dolores.

Valedictorian was Gerald Guest.

Toastmaster was Henry C. Gilliland, principal of the Normal School.

Toronto swimmer Ted Simmons, 30, will get about $25,000 if he makes the 20.7 miles of water between Sheringham Point to the United States shore, coach Steve Mellors, told the Times today.

The money will come from his sponsors, Bee Hive corn syrup and Bulova.

The 172-pound swimmer will make his bid at 5 a.m. Saturday from the point, 18 miles west of Race Rocks.

"We aren't interested in getting to Port Angeles," Mellors said. "We're interested in getting to the other side."

"Ted is going to work with the currents, not against them. He definitely will get across, and I estimate nine hours."

The Scottish coach said Simmons would get almost all the money if he made the swim. For himself, he said, "I'm only interested in swimming. I want to build an Olympic pool in Toronto to train champions. In Toronto now politics come into sports and I want nothing to do with that."

Ontario, Crescent, Cayuga, Athabaskan, Sioux, St. Theresa, Sussexville leave San Diego Sunday for Magdalen, return Esquimalt Aug. 10.

James Ray, Fortune, on reserve training cruise, returns Monday.

Port Quebec on exercises, returns Tuesday.

Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today the government is not prepared to take action to remedy the acute shortage of cattle fodder reported by Vancouver Island dairymen and mainland farm organizations.

"We shall await the findings of a joint committee which has been set up by the Fraser Valley Farmers' Institute and kindred organizations," Mr. Kiernan said.

"While the situation was critical a week ago, it is possible the recent rains may have changed the picture somewhat."

Mr. Kiernan returned to Victoria today after hearing representations from Fraser Valley farmers at a meeting in New Westminster organized by the Fraser Valley Municipal Association.

QUESTIONNAIRE

Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association was represented at this meeting, at which a joint committee was set up to inquire further into the current feed shortage.

Earlier the Vancouver Island association supported the B.C. Federation of Agriculture in its efforts to secure government aid, and circulated a questionnaire among members asking them to state their present needs.

"The results of this questionnaire are now being tabulated," Mr. Kiernan said, "and the government will consider it in conjunction with the findings of the committee."

In Victoria last week the B.C. Federation of Agriculture held a closed meeting with government officials and stated afterwards that the current feed situation was one of "extreme emergency."

Swim plans were made with the co-operation of the hydrographic office in Ottawa and the Pacific naval laboratory.

"After the swim, we'll hand over the charts to all the local boys who want to have a go," said Mellors.

He was critical of what he termed "wildcat" swimmers who jumped into the strait without a medical check-up, no sponsor and "no proven ability."

He said the mass-swim plan of the Junior Chamber of Commerce was "a good idea" but added his swimmer was not the least bit interested at present.

The swimmer's trunks will be packed with vasoline, and lanolin, and capsule will also be used. Capsule, a heat-building chemical, will be rubbed on the exposed veins such as in the arms.

Thursday night Mellors and Webb, co-navigator Jack Russell went over the course.

Mellors emphasized that he is "not interested" in a swim from Victoria to Port Angeles, but in getting across the strait.

All the 45 previous swims have been attempted between the two cities, and locally have generally been the accepted route for swim aspirants, as the most difficult stretch of the strait.

"Field engineers are now studying possible roads through the Yukon Territory and will report back on the conditions they find. We are also making economic studies between Port St. John and the Yukon to discover what traffic would be available if we were to extend the line up there."

Order by Cabinet Ruled Insufficient

The drive for a six-day shopping week in Victoria today received a severe setback.

A municipal affairs department spokesman said the longer business week for some store categories cannot be effected by order in council—as claimed by six-day week boosters.

"It would require an amendment to the Shops Regulation and Weekly Holidays Act," the spokesman said, pointing out the act was amended previously to permit six-day shopping in Vancouver.

NEXT YEAR

This means no change can be brought about at least until the Legislature sits again next year.

On Thursday city council unanimously endorsed a brief presented by the six-day shopping week committee and authorized Mayor Scourrah to approach the provincial cabinet for the passage of an order in council bringing about six-day operation of stores in almost every field of retailing.

The brief was presented by city lawyer Alan Baker and signed by chairman of the committee, J. Harold Wilson.

'WAIT AND SEE'

Leading Citizens Ponder Report

Public reaction to sweeping recommendations of the Chamber of Commerce amalgamation report was a "wait and see attitude," a survey of opinions from civic leaders, business men and citizens revealed today.

No one took a definite stand for or against the report.

The general opinion was that the report should be carefully studied and discussed by all municipalities before any action is taken to submit the amalgamation proposal to the people.

The prospect of higher taxes was the main concern of the residents of Saanich and Oak Bay.

Mayor Percy Scourrah felt the "reasoning behind the report was fundamentally sound."

"The report is comprehensive in its scope and is going to require a great deal of study," he stated.

He said he did not know yet what effect amalgamation would have on the individual taxpayer. "This will only be known when we have studied the report further," he said.

"As for the method of bringing amalgamation," he added, "haven't been able to decide yet whether the report states clearly the way this should be brought about."

SYMPATHETIC

Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash said he was "sympathetic towards the proposal for an overall government, and advocated a careful study of the report."

"For anyone to say the report is prejudiced only reveals their own prejudice and opposition to the spirit of co-operation and understanding which seems to be sorely needed in this community," he said. "Let us approach this problem with common sense and determination."

Oak Bay Reeve Fred Norris said he wanted to study the report before making a definite comment.

He said he didn't like the way the report "steers away from the financial problem. This is the biggest stumbling block."

"Personally, I don't think it will make much difference to the average ratepayer if we have amalgamation or not," he said.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said the plan might be feasible, but the whole matter would first have to be carefully studied.

"We are ready to listen to reason and to co-operate," he said.

Forrest L. Shaw, chairman of the joint amalgamation committee of the Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce, described the report as excellent. "I don't say everything will be accepted," he said. "But it is a start and something we can work on."

He said the most serious matter will be the effect of taxation on other municipalities. "It might mean higher taxation for some municipalities for a brief period, but in the long run the outer municipalities may benefit," he said. "This is one of the problems which will have to be studied."

Mr. Shaw said he was pleased the report is strongly against federation of municipalities with a superimposed group on top of autonomous individual groups.

The appointments of metropolitan boards whittles down the responsibilities of the elected representatives," he said. "They are tax gatherers and are not responsible for collecting the money or its expenditure. That's why I favor the formation of a new corporation."

UNPOPULAR?

Kenneth R. Genn, chairman of the Saanich Town Planning Commission, said amalgamation "might be economically sound in some respects, but if it has the effect of doubling the tax rate in Saanich, it would be very unpopular with ratepayers."

Duncan McTavish, former city councillor, and a resident of View Royal, said residents of his community at present are opposed to amalgamation.

"They are satisfied to remain under the government," he said. "Their views might change after the matter has been discussed and carefully studied. That remains to be seen."

Mr. McTavish said; however, he felt the three municipalities should join with Victoria to form a new corporation. "Such a form of government would be fair and beneficial to all the municipalities," he said.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said the report was a good basis for continued study.

"The report will have to be carefully studied," he said.

HON. RALPH CHETWYND RAILWAYS MINISTER ... has the hats

An angry exchange of denials involving the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, Railways Minister Ralph Chetwynd, PGE general manager E. M. Gunderson—and a hat—flew back and forth between Victoria and Vancouver Thursday afternoon and today.

It went this way: Vancouver, Thursday, 2 p.m., Railways Minister Chetwynd was reported to have revealed plans for a $180,000,000 extension of the PGE to the Yukon and Alaska.

Vancouver, 3 p.m.: PGE President Gunderson was quoted as saying his boss, the minister, was "talking through one of his hats."

Victoria, 4 p.m.: Mr. Chetwynd denied announcing plans for the PGE extension; said he had merely expressed a hope the extension would come "in our time."

Vancouver, 5 p.m.: Mr. Gunderson reported to have denied saying the minister was talking through his hat. (Both statements retracted by the Canadian Press.)

In Vancouver today Mr. Gunderson told the Times he may have said the minister was talking through his hat (or hats) but only in a light-hearted reference to Mr. Chetwynd's reported statement and his recent wager with Squamish folk in which he bet them 40 Stetson hats the PGE extension between Squamish and North Vancouver would be completed June 11.

"I said, if Mr. Chetwynd had made such a statement, he was talking through one of his hats. I did not believe he had made it and Mr. Chetwynd has since confirmed that he did not."

Mr. Chetwynd was attending a meeting on the mainland today and could not be reached for his opinion on the hat reference.

But in an interview Thursday he denied that the government had any immediate plans for extending the PGE to the Yukon and Alaska.

He said the report apparently stemmed from the fact there are engineering men north of Fort St. John. They are deciding whether, if the rail link should ever be extended, it should be along the line of the present Alaska Highway or via the Rocky Mountain Trench.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Prices Rise, Prices Fall
In Our Local Food Markets

By PENNY SAVER

Some prices have gone up a bit, and others have taken a welcomed dip on local food markets. Displays are spilling over with fresh vegetables and fruit, much of which has been grown right on the island. Depending on the size of the berries, strawberries are priced at 55, 59 or 65 cents for two boxes. Last week they were 35 cents a box, so no matter what size you choose, the price has dropped considerably. On the other hand, though, peaches from California were three for a quarter last week, but are now three for 29 cents. Cantaloupe has dropped to 25 cents, and sweet and rich California apricots are yours at 35 cents a pound. Locally grown rhubarb is selling at four pounds for a quarter, and plums are 38 cents a pound.

The tomatoes were piled so high and precariously in one of the markets that I visited, I was afraid they'd be rolling all over the sidewalk if anyone should bump the display. But I can't blame the storekeepers for wanting to show off the bright and tasty 'toms, 'cause they're really top quality and bursting with goodness. Hot-house variety are 29 cents a pound, while dessert are two pounds for 45 cents. These dropped a nickel this week.

Local cucumbers are cheaper, too. They were a quarter each, and are now two for 35 cents. Lettuce from local farms cost 15 cents each, and spinach is two pounds for 25 cents.

Carrots are two bunches for 25 cents, and celery, a little higher priced than last week, is 25 cents a stalk.

Fresh peas, locally grown, have dropped three cents, and are now 27 cents a pound, while new potatoes have gone the other way, and rose up from three pounds for 29 cents. Radishes and green onions are still 15 cents for two bunches. Red cabbage that tastes so good pickled or not, costs 29 cents for two pounds. Seedless cukes are a quarter each, and asparagus is 29 cents a pound.

While we're thinking of shopping for foods, now is the time for me to tell you about the handy shopping carts in town. Oh, they're not for you, mother, but for the small fry who would ordinarily be under foot while you're trying to shop.

Instead of a hindrance on shopping day, perhaps the tiny Miss could be a bit of a help. The shopping cart, made of black metal is just like the one mommy has (or wants), and will carry the groceries that the little helper has collected. Lightweight, it's easy for the child to push. It costs $1. Call me at 2-3131 for information about foods or other items mentioned in the column.

WMS Rallies
Up-Island

Mrs. E. H. Bewell, president, men's Missionary Society of the United Church, Mrs. F. E. H. James, Mrs. Ernest McGinnis, Mrs. A. T. Hunkin and Mrs. S. H. Shaw, have just returned from a series of sectional one-day rallies held at Qualicum, Alberni and Courtenay. Affiliation services with CGIT and Explorers were part of the program, also a mother and daughter banquet and a Cadet Nursing Division No. 148C, 6.30 p.m. Miss Isabel sonated a girl from another land, Pearce, officer-in-charge.

A visit was made to the Indian Residential School in Alberni where a girls choir sang selections. The entire program was planned to present the work of the WMS throughout the world. Discussions were held on various problems including ways and means to promote interest in this work.

St. John Ambulance

Friday—A. J. Dallain Nursing division No. 210, 8 p.m. Mrs. B. D'Atroy, supt., Denton Holmes Cadet Nursing Division No. 148C, 6.30 p.m. Miss Isabel sonated a girl from another land, Pearce, officer-in-charge.

A CAC Fact

Did you ever consider a list of the small services the Canadian Association of Consumers has rendered in its short history? The pink gauze is gone from the peaches; the red stripes have left the bacon; the weight of the contents is marked on the soap packages. The design and usefulness of household articles and of toys is improving. There is more information on labels on fabrics. Stockings often have the length marked at the top.

WYNNE SHAW STUDIO 'STARS OF TOMORROW'

In the annual revue to be presented in the Royal Theatre on Monday evening, glittering sea waves, a sea horse, and sea maidens, will dance around a large shell which opens to reveal a nymph with a pearl in her hands.

In a ballet which begins and ends in poses of famed paintings of ballet dancers by Degas, will appear John Hodder and Vivian Boggs, and John Fraser and Sheila Mackinnon. Special interest will also be shown in a Bach number "The White Ballet", in which well-known dancers, Rae Evenden Burns, Pat Sparks Olson and Marie Maggiora will appear. Sponsors of the revue are Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie and Royal Roads Chapters of the IOOE.

HUGE B.C. DAM TALKS SET

$247 Million Plan To Be Discussed By Bennett, Lesage

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Lesage said today he will confer in Victoria July 4 with Premier Bennett of British Columbia on planned Canada-United States talks on control of waters flowing across the international boundary.

Canada and the U.S. announced May 23 that control of these waters is to be examined by the two governments for the first time in 46 years. Main object of the study is to find a solution to apparent problems which have arisen in development of the St. John River in New Brunswick, the Columbia in British Columbia and the Yukon River.

Mr. Lesage said May 23 he planned a full discussion with Premier Bennett June 5. Federal officials said Thursday the meeting would be held June 25, but Mr. Lesage stated today the conference has been postponed until July 4.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia confirmed here Thursday night he will meet Resources Minister Lesage in Victoria July 4 for preliminary discussions concerning development of a $247,000,000 hydro-electric project in Mica Creek on the Columbia River.

Asked in an interview to comment on a statement in Ottawa by Gen. A. G. N. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the international joint commission, that engineers have deemed such a project feasible, Premier Bennett said:

"There has never been any doubt about the feasibility of this dam. The Social Credit government of B.C. has always been in favor of the Mica Creek dam. We've said all along that it was feasible."

After a political speech here Thursday night, the premier told a reporter he has made no definite plans as yet concerning construction of a power station at Mica Creek, 150 miles north of Revelstoke. The talks with Mr. Lesage would be a preliminary nature.

Asked if the B.C. government planned to carry out the project or if it would be left to private enterprise, Mr. Bennett said it would be done by "whoever can do it best."

"If it hadn't been for the interference from Ottawa, we in B.C. would already have the dam under construction."

HOW THE CITY WOULD GROW BY CONSOLIDATION

FINAL BULLETINS

City Child Dead, Said Suffocated

A young Gorge district child was reported dead at St. Joseph's Hospital at 2:45 p.m. today after it was rushed there by a Saanich police resuscitator squad shortly after 2. Police believe the child was choking when they received the emergency call.

Parents were away from the house at the time and it is believed the child was in care of a grandparent who collapsed and also required emergency treatment.

Further details were not available at press time.

U.S. Women Sweep Cup Tennis

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UP)—The United States swept the three opening-day matches in the Wightman Cup tennis competition today to gain a 3-0 lead over Britain's best women players.

Team captain Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., fought off Angela Mortimer, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, and Shirley Fry of St. Petersburg, Fla., turned back Angela Buxton, 6-2, 6-8, 7-5, in singles matches.

Marlene Stewart Gains Final

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Canadian champion Marlene Stewart of Pontilith, Ont., eliminated defending champion Jackie Yates of Honolulu from the women's U.S. Collegiate golf tournament today, 5 and 4.

Miss Stewart will meet Ruth Jensen of Seattle in the final.

Steelers Rejected 65c Wage Hike

NEW YORK (UP)—The big three U.S. steel producers said today their contract offer, rejected by the U.S. Steelworkers' Union, called for a package increase of 65 cents an hour over the next five years.

Blame Laid for Hospital Infections

VANCOUVER (CP)—The failure of modern hospitals to apply antiseptic principles known 100 years ago was blamed by a doctor here Thursday for outbreaks of "vicious" and sometimes fatal bacterial infections.

Dr. J. C. Colbeck of Vancouver Shaughnessy Hospital placed the issue before the Western Canada Institute for Hospital Administrators and Trustees, meeting in convention here. Dr. Colbeck said surgeons and hospitals place too much reliance on modern antibiotics and less on fundamental antiseptic techniques.

Body Found on Rails Near Lytton

LYTTON, B.C. (CP)—The body of Leslie Black, 23, was found today between rails of the Canadian National Railways track one and a half miles east of here. He had apparently been hit by a train. He was a CNR employee but was not believed working at the time of the accident. An inquest will be held here.

Pineau Arrives for Talks With Ike

NEW YORK (UP)—French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau arrived by plane today for Atlantic Alliance talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Pineau told newsmen at Idlewild Airport that his expression of pleasure at coming to the United States "is far more than a diplomatic figure of speech." He expressed gratitude for America's help in liberating France and helping his nation back on its feet.

prepared to assist financially in the launching of the new administration.

It is pointed out that when Metropolitan Toronto was brought into being, Ontario put up over $1,250,000 to defray expenses in the transition period, and larger unconditional per capita grants benefit the city in perpetuity.

SPECIAL GRANT
The often-heard claim that the province at this time makes no payment in lieu of taxes for provincial buildings in this area, is repeated in the report.

A special grant to defray costs of bringing undeveloped View Royal up to the standards of the other proposed components of the united area, would it so be justified, the report states.

It also points out the city would have grounds for additional aid from the federal government in lieu of taxes on federal installations here, at Esquimalt, Royal Roads and various other Dominion government buildings in Victoria and Saanich.

With regard to the problem of pooling of municipal liabilities and assets, the only fair way to settle the issue in the eyes of the Institute examiners would be to lump them all together and start fresh.

The question is so complicated, and the responsibility for both so socially and geographically combined, "the institute recommends generally against any adjustment of assets and liabilities between present municipalities entering the city."

NO REFERENDUM
The 75-page submission recommends against any final settling of the amalgamation question by referendum.

"If, however, the viewpoint of the Institute is accepted, the latter issue will not even arise.

"Most problems of government have to be entrusted to representative who are expected to study them in detail, sound out the views of their constituents and then hammer out the best form of remedial action.

"View questions are sufficiently straightforward... that they can be adequately resolved by popular vote... the points at issue are too complicated for constructive use to be made of the referendum technique."

UNION FORCED
Though the report was prepared for the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Institute points out that little can be done to implement its recommendations without the interest of civic officials and taxpayers of the district and full co-operation of the department of municipal affairs.

It adds that if unanimity cannot be reached at the local level, the province has the right to work openly for those changes which it believes would be most desirable. It points out that in the case of Metropolitan Toronto, the province stepped into the picture and forced the union.

FOUR APPROACHES
The Institute listed four alternative approaches to Victoria's metropolitan area problem—add to the number of existing intermunicipal federations; form a metropolitan federation (recently suggested by the department of municipal affairs) wherein each municipality would retain its own administration for local matters but would support an inter-municipal council for projects of mutual interest such as water, sewerage, road and garbage services; remain as they are at present, or amalgamate.

Weaknesses to all the proposals other than full amalgamation are spelled out in detail. Also detailed is the full argument for complete union.

Complete union has been discussed here since 1911.

Exact delineation of the boundaries of the proposed new city will require further study and surveys according to the report.
But rough recommendations start the boundary at a point on Cordova Bay and take it west just north of Royal Oak Avenue to Patricia Bay Highway then to West Saanich Road at a point north of Royal Oak community.

The line would go southwest to the swamp area near Ivor and Charlton Avenues.

Main Points

Here are the main points in the 75-page Canadian Research Institute report:

1. Greater Victoria municipalities should amalgamate rather than join in a metropolitan federation.

2. The union should include Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and the urban section of Saanich south of Royal Oak.

3. Langford and Colwood should be incorporated as separate self-governing communities and be drawn into Victoria at a later date.

4. A planning area should be set up extending from North Saanich to Albert Head.

5. Government of Victoria should be by nine-man council.

6. Effect on taxes is uncertain, could help city, hurt but increased load on others.

7. Province should be asked for added grants.

8. Decision should not be by referendum.

9. Province would be required to pass special legislation permitting the proposed union.

Saanich would be paying for her neighbors' convenience if the proposed east-west arterial Saanich highway ever is constructed. Similarly, heavy use of septic tanks in that municipality could create a health problem important to Oak Bay and Victoria, the report states.

The Institute feels the only solution is amalgamation but points out such procedure would first have to pass a special act. Otherwise, a complicated procedure would ensue.

For instance, if Saanich is to be partitioned under present legislation there would have to be passage of the question by council, approval obtained from ratepayers who were seceding, consent obtained from municipal bondholders and the part seceding would have to be 50 per cent of the area of the part entering Victoria.

The Institute felt this would be practically unworkable.

The report adds, "The Institute has been informed the province would be extremely reluctant to impose any solution on its own initiative which involved a breaking-up of existing municipalities or a forced enlargement of municipal boundaries."

Shawnigan Man
Hurt in Train-Carrier Collision

DUNCAN (CP)—Ian Cudlipp,
18, of Shawnigan Lake, is in
"good condition" in King's
ankle following an accident
Wednesday morning in which
the lumber carrier he was driving was struck by a freight train in Koksilah.

Dermot Moore, fireman of
the freight train, said he saw
the carrier stop at the crossing
and then proceed across the track.

Cudlipp was pinned beneath
the carrier after it was thrown some distance by the impact of the train. A lumber stacker
was used to lift the carrier
from his body.

Mayor Will Appoint
Centennial Committee

City council Thursday authorized Mayor Percy Scurrell to appoint three persons to be a nucleus of a committee to arrange Victoria participation in the provincial 100th birthday in 1958.

Council confirmed action of the finance committee and revoked its earlier resolution which permitted sale of floral souvenirs on the Causeway. The action was taken "in view of certain technicalities that have arisen." This was taken to mean council felt there would be no control over the number of peddlers' licences which would be issued if precedent were established.

Referred to finance committee was a request from Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club for a civic banquet when Davis Cup match North American zone finals come here July 27, 28 and 29. The tennis club also asked a civic grant of $750.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation advised council it will offer for sale to tenants 200 of its veteran housing units in the city on June 15. Terms will be 10 per cent down with 25 years to pay, with interest at 5 1/2 per cent, and payments would include taxes. If the buyer remains in the home for two years or more a $1,000 reduction in the total cost, which was not stated, will be made.

The plan was announced by CHMC officials last year.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $275;
T'WAS 'LOB' NOT 'MOB'

Once again Times' crossword puzzles failed to send in a correct answer to last week's puzzle so this week's award to a winning subscriber jumps to $275.

The first clue down was one of the big stumbling blocks last week. The answer was "Mob" but most contestants came up with "Mob" and "Job."

The clue read: "Can certainly be difficult to control at times." This makes "lob" the answer since the clue specifies "at times." A mob, necessarily an unruly crowd is always difficult to control.

Complete answer and explanation to last week's puzzle and a new contest for this week are on Page 27 of today's Times.

L.A. IS HIS BEAT

Cop Who Inspired Dagnet Visits Here

BY TONY DICKASON
He certainly didn't look like a cop whose beat is "The City."

But Lee Jones has been 27
years with the Los Angeles
"this is the city" police department, immortalized weekly by TV's Dagnet.

Mr. Lee has seen more violent death, mangled corpses and general mayhem than Madam
Tussaud's wax museum. And he's a quiet, professor-like personage, aged 60.

Mr. Lee was, in fact, instrumental in starting the famed
TV presentation of Mr. Mono-
tone, Jack Webb.

"I got the idea from Lee
Jones," Webb is quoted.

And today the legitimate police man aids and abets Webb's presentations from a police
technical viewpoint.

CRIMINALISTICS
Mr. Jones is a forensic chemist. His field is called "crim-inalistics" which is identification or comparison of physical evidence for presentation in courts
of law.

Probably because of his close association with Dagnet's Webb,
Mr. Jones said presentations are
"very accurate." The program uses legitimate L.A. police department names, including
that of Mr. Jones.

He, incidentally, has identified murderers by a lip print on the fender of an auto; a piece of skin adhering to a cap, which came from the wife's ring finger, and many others. A fingernail was enough to convict a burglar.

BAD SHOCK
"There's only one thing that

Ralph Reading, of the Mid-Island Electrical Association, said that rates for home heating were up 50 per cent in some cases under the commission's new rate schedule.

George E. Bonner, VIRA
president, was chairman.

Strongest brief of all was submitted by Jack Moore, representing IWA Local 1-85 in Port Alberni, that claimed there was
a conspiracy to "undermine the
power commission and allow its assets, dams, and power lines
to be handed over to private power interests." It was his organization that asked for the royal commission investigation.

He claimed the B.C. Electric has franchises to distribute power in profitable urban areas, while the B.C.P.C. must serve
"rural and unprofitable" areas.

He also complained that the BCE is allowed to buy power from the commission at a lower rate than most of the commission customers enjoy.

"We feel the public of B.C. is being hornswoggled in regard to power," Mr. Moore said.

L. E. Wight, commission manager in the Nanaimo-Duncan area, said the commission had a duty to the public "to see that we continued to carry on in the black."

Public Ownership of Power Urged

Royal Commission Sought
By Island Ratepayers' Group

NANAIMO—A resolution urging that ownership and operation of all-power projects in the province be taken over by the B.C. Power Commission will be forwarded to the provincial cabinet by the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association.

The resolution also asks that a royal commission be established to investigate hydro-electric power in the province.

The resolutions were adopted
at a meeting here Thursday,
sponsored by the VIRA and
open to the public, called to hear arguments for and against the new rate structure of the
power commission that will increase rates in certain categories.
